PREFACE

First Edition

Over the years since its earliest incarnation nearly two decades ago, the present textbook has had the benefit of input from many students and scholars of Akkadian, and it is a sincere pleasure to acknowledge here those individuals who gave so much of their time to improve it.

The first thanks must be to the many students who have used this book in its various pre-publication manifestations, in my own classes at Columbia, Johns Hopkins, and Harvard, and in the classes of other instructors at Arizona, Berkeley, Boston, Brandeis, Chicago, Emory, Harvard, Johns Hopkins, Michigan, North Carolina, SUNY, and elsewhere. For their many valuable suggestions for improving the volume and for their patience with the sometimes unclear explanations, nonsensical exercises, and bewildering typos of the earlier versions, these intrepid students have my heart-felt thanks.

Many individuals took the time to send me lists of corrections and suggestions. Of these Matthew W. Stolper and Daniel A. Foxvog must be singled out for their painstaking reading of earlier drafts and for the pages and pages of helpful criticism they gave. Others who provided lists of improvements are Esther Flueckiger-Hawker, Matthias Henze, Sara Chute Hsiang (and the rest of Prof. Anne D. Kilmer's class of 1993–94), Jan Jackson, Eugene C. McAfee, P. Kyle McCarter, Judith H. Newman, Neal H. Walls, Chris Woods, and Norman Yoffee. My thanks to these colleagues for saving me from many errors.

I am also grateful to a number of colleagues for taking the time to discuss, in person or in writing, issues in the presentation of Akkadian grammar in an introductory textbook: Walter R. Bodine, Steven W. Cole, Jerrold S. Cooper, W. Randall Garr, Brigitte Groneberg, Thomas O. Lambdin, Piotr Michalowski, William L. Moran, Jack M. Sasson, Daniel C. Snell, Piotr Steinkeller, Wheeler M. Thackston, Raymond Westbrook, Paul E. Zimansky, and the late Thorkild Jacobsen. None of these kind individuals should, of course, be held responsible for the final product.

Rachel Rockenmacher has my thanks for typing lessons of an earlier draft onto disk, and for doing much of the work of preparing the English–Akkadian word list.

Many aspects of the present textbook are modeled on Thomas O.

xvi PREFACE

Lambdin's exemplary introductory grammars of Hebrew, Ethiopic, and Coptic. In addition, I have learned much and incorporated many ideas from the three earlier textbooks of Akkadian that have appeared in English: Richard Caplice, Introduction to Akkadian (3rd ed., 1988); David Marcus, A Manual of Akkadian (1978); Kaspar K. Riemschneider, An Akkadian Grammar (translated by T. Caldwell et al.; 3rd ed., 1977). I must also express my sincere admiration for the fundamental work on Akkadian grammar that Wolfram von Soden has carried out over the past sixty years; his reference grammar, his dictionary, his sign list, and his many articles have assured a secure basis for the study of Akkadian.

I owe a special debt of gratitude to Kathryn Slanski, who devoted several hundred hours to working on this book: drawing most of the cuneiform signs in the book, compiling much of the Akkadian–English glossary, and looking after many details in the preparation of the volume. Her reading of previous drafts and her use of them in teaching several introductory Akkadian classes at Harvard resulted in many improvements, as did our many hours of discussion on matters of grammar and formatting. Her steadfast friendship and her gentle humor have also helped me see this book to its completion. I acknowledge here a grant from Consortium for Language Teaching and Learning (New Haven, Ct.), which allowed me to remunerate Ms. Slanski for a part of the time she devoted to this project.

For permission to include copies of cuneiform texts I am grateful to Béatrice André-Salvini of the Musée du Louvre (Paris), to P. Pasquale Puca of Editrice Pontificio Istituto Biblico (Rome), to the Trustees of the British Museum (London), to Harrassowitz Verlag (Wiesbaden), and to Éditions Dalloz-Sirey (Paris).

As always I am profoundly indebted to Jo Ann Hackett, who has had to put up with this book from the beginning. Her unfailing encouragement and support, her willingness to discuss, at all hours, matters from the smallest detail of Akkadian grammar to the broadest problems of computer formatting, are an unending source of wonder to me.

This book is dedicated to Professor William L. Moran, my beloved mentor and friend, who taught me Akkadian, and so much more. For half my life now Bill has exemplified for me the true scholar: a person of perfect integrity and constant modesty, pursuing learning for the sheer joy of it.

Second Edition

A few typographical errors and other problems were corrected in the second and third printings of this textbook. In the present version, considerably more revisions have been made. Again most of the changes are minor and cosmetic, although in a few instances I have made more substantial changes in the presentation of the grammar, and I have incorporated some of the findings of scholarship on Akkadian grammar in the past decade, and added references to research and learning tools that have appeared recently. The supplementary reading, Gilgameš tablet II, has been revised in accordance with Andrew George's magnificent new critical edition of the epic (2003). Despite the large number of revisions, the pagination of the first edition has been retained (with minor exceptions), so that copies of both editions may be used side-byside in the classroom.

The Old Babylonian cuneiform signs in this edition have been scanned from three sign lists: Harper (1904) for the lapidary, and Ranke (1906) and Goetze (1947a) for the cursive. The Neo-Assyrian font is LaserAkkadianTM (for Macintosh) from Linguist's Software, Inc.

Once again it is my great pleasure to thank the many individuals who generously took the time to send corrections and other suggestions for improvement: Tzvi Abusch, Lesley Adye, Elitzur Bar-Asher, Bronson Brown-DeVost, Karljürgen Feuerherm, Sergei Lyosov, Gianni Marchesi, Jennie Myers, A.D. Riddle, Aaron Rubin, Gonzalo Rubio, Michael Seleznev, Brad Spencer, Matthew Tarazi, Benjamin Thomas, David Vanderhooft, and Avi Winitzer. Among the reviewers of the first edition I am especially indebted for their remarks and suggestions to D. Charpin, W. Farber, B. Groneberg, N.J.C. Kouwenberg, E. Robson, M.P. Streck, and N. Wasserman. I am also grateful to Michael Coogan and Jim Eisenbraun for their wise advice and their patience in seeing this revision through to completion, and to Benjamin Studevent-Hickman, who provided corrections and improvements, and scanned and formatted the cuneiform texts and signs. Finally, my late friend Michael Patrick O'Connor, who used the book several times in his Akkadian classes at the Catholic University of America, in addition to reporting many typos, offered scores of thoughtful proposals for improving the pedagogical value of the work, many of which I was able to include in this edition.

> Carlisle, Mass. July, 2005 (second printing) August, 2008

xviii PREFACE

Third Edition

In this edition changes have been made in the section on the nominal morpheme $-\bar{a}n$ (§20.2) and the sections on the meaning of the D stem (§24.3) and the Gt stem (§33.1(b)); these revisions reflect recent scholarship in Akkadian grammar. Other changes include minor revisions in wording in the presentation of the grammar in a few other sections; a number of new notes to some of the readings; additions to the glosses of a small number of words in the lesson vocabularies (and the Glossary and English–Akkadian word list); and updates of the resources available for the study of Akkadian, and of the bibliography.

A new appendix (F) has been added, giving Hebrew and other Semitic cognates of the Akkadian words in the lesson vocabularies. I wish to thank Aren Wilson-Wright for his help in correcting an earlier draft of this appendix and for a number of important suggestions for improving it.

Once again the pagination of the previous editions has for the most part been retained, apart from the insertion of the new appendix and a few minor deviations elsewhere.

Several formatting problems and other infelicities have also been corrected in this edition. For their faithful reporting of many of these, and for other suggestions for making the book clearer and more useful, I am especially grateful to Lesley Adye, Salter Duncan, Yitzhaq Feder, Andrew Gross, and Benjamin Studevent-Hickman. I also want to thank Michael Coogan, Jim Eisenbraun, and James Spinti for again providing much good advice and help in the preparation of this new edition.

INTRODUCTION

The Akkadian Language

Akkadian is the language of the Assyrians and Babylonians of ancient Mesopotamia, that is, the region 'between the rivers', the Euphrates and the Tigris (roughly the area of modern Iraq). The name 'Akkadian' is a translation of the ancient speakers' term for their language, $Akkad\hat{u}m$, which derives from Akkad(e), the name of the still-undiscovered town built about 2300 BCE by king Sargon as his capital. (In both ancient and modern times Akkadian has also been called 'Assyrian' and 'Babylonian', terms that are now generally restricted to the main geographical dialects, which are discussed below.)

Akkadian is the earliest-attested member of the Semitic family of languages. Other Semitic languages include Arabic, Aramaic, Ethiopic, and Hebrew. As the following chart illustrates, Akkadian and Eblaite, the recently-discovered language of the ancient Syrian city of Ebla, comprise East Semitic, while all other members of the family comprise West Semitic.

It is not certain when speakers of Akkadian or its linguistic predecessor(s) first arrived in Mesopotamia. The first written evidence of the language is found in names in texts from the 26th century BCE, while connected texts begin to appear in the 24th century. It is also not known when Akkadian ceased to be a spoken language — probably during the mid-first millennium BCE, having been replaced over a number of centuries by Aramaic — but it continued to be used as a written medium of literature and scholarship until the first century CE.

After the demise of Akkadian both the language and its complicated writing system were forgotten for over a millennium and a half. In the 17th century European travelers to the Middle East began to bring home a few clay artifacts with unusual wedge-shaped writing. Attempts at decipherment were aided in the 19th century by the publication of a long trilingual inscription, Akkadian–Old Persian–Elamite. After the simpler Old Persian script was decoded it became possible to tackle the Akkadian version successfully; the Akkadian script was deciphered and the basic elements of the grammar were established by the 1850's. In the past 150 years much scholarship has been devoted to the publication of texts, to the further elucidation of the grammar, and to the preparation of dictionaries. Today the Akkadian language may be said to be well — but by no means completely — understood.

Because Mesopotamian scribes were exceedingly prolific and because they usually wrote on the virtually indestructible medium of clay, vast numbers of the ancient documents have been preserved to posterity. The number of Akkadian texts extant has not been counted, but it is certainly in the hundreds of thousands, and many new texts are discovered in archaeological excavations every year. While many texts have received scholarly publication over the last century and a half, many other texts remain unpublished, awaiting interested scholars in museums around the world.

As was just noted, Akkadian texts were usually written on clay, a material found in great abundance in Mesopotamia. Moist clay was molded into a rectangular tablet and the writing was impressed into the clay with a stylus made of reed. The size of tablets varied from about an inch square to some 18 inches along a side; the most common shape was a rectangle that was longer than it was wide. The reed stylus made wedge-shaped, i.e., cuneiform, impressions in the clay. Because the writing system is very cumbersome, modern publications, including this textbook, present elements of Akkadian grammar in transcription; and because the writing system is unquestionably the most difficult aspect of learning Akkadian, it is not introduced here until Lesson 9, by which time the student will have acquired some familiarity with Akkadian forms and structures. (It is worth remembering that ancient Mesopota-mian students were fluent in Akkadian — it was their native tongue — before they began to tackle the writing system.)

Dialects of Akkadian

All languages change over time. English texts of a few centuries ago, such as the writings of Shakespeare, contain spellings, words, phrases, and grammar that are sometimes unfamiliar; the 14th-century writings of Chaucer are more difficult to understand still; and Old English, of the 8th-10th centuries, must be studied almost as a foreign language to be understood by modern speakers of English. When we consider that the recorded history of Akkadian is over twice as long as that of English, we should not be surprised to witness the development of significant chronological variations in Akkadian as well. Further, geographical variations are also evidenced in the texts, particularly between those of Assyria in the north and Babylonia in the south (see further below), but also in many smaller dialect regions. Although these developments arose continuously, so that neat divisions cannot be drawn in actuality, scholars refer nevertheless for the sake of convenience to the following subphases, or dialects, of Akkadian, which correspond roughly to periods in Mesopotamian political history (common abbreviations for the dialects are given in parentheses):

Old Akkadian (OAkk), mid-3rd to end of 3rd millennium

Old Assyrian (OA)	2000-1500	Old Babylonian (OB)
Middle Assyrian (MA)	1500-1000	Middle Babylonian (MB)
Neo-Assyrian (NA)	1000-600	Neo-Babylonian (NB)
	600-100 CE	Late Babylonian (LB)

These may be reviewed briefly in turn.

The earliest Akkadian texts, to about the end of the third millennium, are referred to collectively as Old Akkadian, although they reflect a number of local dialects. The texts include documents dating to the reigns of Sargon, Naram-Sin, and other kings of Akkad. There are Old Akkadian letters, legal texts, economic dockets, royal inscriptions, and a few literary texts (such as a love incantation).

In the second and first millennia, two major geographical dialects are attested, Assyrian in northern Mesopotamia and Babylonian in the south. Linguistically these are distinguished by a number of phonological, morphological, and lexical differences. (This textbook presents the grammar of [Old] Babylonian; see Appendix E for major features of Assyrian.) The Assyrian and Babylonian scripts also developed somewhat independently of one another.

Old Assyrian is known from some 15,000 letters and legal and economic documents dating from the mid-20th to the mid-18th century, most of which have been found in Cappodocia (eastern Turkey) at the site of Kanesh (modern Kültepe), although other sites in Anatolia and Assyria have also produced a few similar texts. Most of these documents concern the business activities of Assyrian merchant houses and their trade with outposts in Anatolia.

Middle Assyrian is sparsely attested, although it is known from a variety of genres, including letters, legal and economic texts, and inscriptions of the kings of the nation and early empire of Assyria. There is also a set of harem decrees and, of great interest, 14 tablets containing the Middle Assyrian laws, discovered in the city of Asshur.

Neo-Assyrian is the spoken language of first-millennium Assyria, attested until the downfall of the empire late in the seventh century. There are a great many letters and administrative texts. Many royal inscriptions and scholarly writings are also attested; as in all periods, literary texts exhibit a considerable amount of linguistic influence from the more prestigious Babylonian dialect.

Old Babylonian is the Akkadian of southern Mesopotamia during the period of the first dynasty of Babylon. It is the dialect covered in the present textbook, and is described in detail further below.

Middle Babylonian is the language of texts from the period of the Kassite domination of Babylonia, after the fall of Hammurapi's dynasty to the Hittites in 1595. Like Middle Assyrian, Middle Babylonian is less well represented than the dialects that precede and follow it. It is known from letters, legal texts, economic texts, a few royal inscriptions, and inscribed boundary stones (kudurrus).

Already during the Kassite period Old Babylonian had come to be regarded as the classical period of Akkadian language and literature, and scribes in both Babylonia and Assyria attempted to duplicate it in a purely literary (i.e., unspoken) dialect that Assyriologists call Standard Babylonian (SB). The scribes' efforts to reproduce the classical language usually had mixed results, as their own language patterns frequently intruded. Standard Babylonian is the dialect in which such important works as $En\bar{u}ma$ $eli\check{s}$ and the later, longer version of Gilgamesh are written, indeed, all of the literary texts of the late second and the first millennia, as well as many royal inscriptions. The grammatical features of Standard Babylonian are presented in Appendix D.

Beginning in the Old Babylonian period, but especially in the second half of the second millennium, Akkadian, particularly in its Babylonian form, was used as an international lingua franca; Akkadian texts have been found in a great many sites outside Mesopotamia, including Ugarit (Ras Shamra) and Emar (Tell Meskeneh) in modern Syria, Hattusas (modern Boğazköy, the capital of the Hittite empire) and Alalah (Tell Açana) in Turkey, and el-Amarna in Egypt, to name a few. The language of these texts, which was often written by non-native speakers, is termed Peripheral Akkadian; the texts vary considerably in their fidelity to the grammar of native Mesopotamian Akkadian and frequently betray the influence of the scribes' own languages.

Neo-Babylonian is the spoken language of southern Mesopotamia until the end of the Assyrian empire, after which the term Late Babylonian is used for the final period of texts written in Akkadian. These dialects are attested in large numbers of letters and administrative documents. For literary and monumental texts, Standard Babylonian (see above) was employed.

Akkadian and Sumerian

Akkadian was not the first language to be given written form in Mesopotamia. History's earliest writing appeared in southern Mesopotamia, near the end of the fourth millennium; the language for which this first writing was invented was Sumerian, which was not genetically related to the Semitic languages, or indeed to any other known language. Speakers of Sumerian and speakers of Akkadian coexisted in southern Babylonia for centuries, and the two languages naturally had a significant impact on each other. Thus, many features of Akkadian grammar, from its phonology to its syntax, reflect Sumerian influence, and many Akkadian words are loans from Sumerian. (Conversely many original Akkadian words were borrowed into Sumerian.) And the writing system originally devised for Sumerian was taken over to write the very different Akkadian as well.

Sumerian died out as a spoken language long before Akkadian; the date of its demise is much debated, however, placed variously between the mid-third and the early second millennium. Even after it ceased to be spoken, Sumerian remained a language of learning and scholarship, like Latin in medieval Europe.

Old Babylonian

It is customary to begin the study of Akkadian with Old Babylonian. Old Babylonian Akkadian was spoken and written in southern Mesopotamia during the first half of the second millennium BCE. Several tens of thousands of documents are attested from the first dynasty of Babylon, from the Isin and Larsa dynasties and from other cities in Babylonia (such as Kish, Nippur, Sippar, Umma, Ur, and Uruk), from sites in the Diyala region, and from farther afield, such as the city of Susa in Elam and the city of Mari in Syria some 250 miles up the Euphrates from Babylon (see Lesson 29.4).

There are several reasons to choose Old Babylonian as the entry to Akkadian language study. Although there was naturally some dialectal diversity among the wide geographical range of texts, on the whole the Old Babylonian corpus presents a remarkably uniform grammar. Moreover, many texts, especially those of the royal court, were carefully written in a clear and relatively simplified system of signs that is considerably easier to learn than, for example, the more cumbersome sign set used later to write Standard Babylonian. The grammar of Old Babylonian exhibits both a consistency and a number of significant features that were lost in later dialects, including Standard Babylonian; it is therefore easier to move from a familiarity with Old Babylonian to the later dialects than it is to work one's way back in time. The Old Babylonian period is also the time in which Akkadian literature began to blossom, in such stunning works as the Epic of Gilgamesh. Indeed, the Old Babylonian literary dialect (see Lesson 30.2) was considered the classical form of Akkadian for the rest of Mesopotamian history, and was the model for the later literary dialect of Standard Babylonian.

Text Genres

An extremely diverse variety of genres has been preserved, nearly all of which are represented in Old Babylonian documents. In addition to the myths and epics such as Gilgamesh, mentioned just above, there are other literary genres, such as hymns and prayers. Still other intellectual works include a wide range of scholarly texts, among which are lexical texts (encyclopedic lists of words, often with their Sumerian counterparts), grammatical texts, medical texts, and mathematical texts. Texts written for public display include many royal inscriptions and documents like the famous "code" of laws of Hammurapi (the longest single Old Babylonian document).

Equally important are the many documents that inform us of matters of everyday life. There are thousands of letters, from kings to their viziers, from men and women to their business partners, and from schoolchildren to their parents. Much greater in number still are the legal contracts and economic documents that record marriages, adoptions, sales, rentals, leases, loans, guarantees, and the proceedings of lawsuits. Finally, there are the many omen texts, records of attempts to foretell the future, from which we learn both what was seen as normal and what was considered unusual.

About this Book

The present textbook is a graded introduction that covers the grammar and writing system of Old Babylonian Akkadian in 38 lessons. It is primarily intended to be used under the supervision of an instructor in a college class, but it is also meant to be sufficiently clear, thorough, and self-contained to be used profitably by an individual in independent study. The 38 lessons require the better part of a full academic year to cover adequately, but at the end of the lessons the student will be familiar with all the main and most of the minor points of Old Babylonian grammar and script, will already have read quite a few texts, and will be ready to move on to additional Old Babylonian texts and to begin the study of Standard Babylonian texts (with the aid of Appendix D).

In each lesson two or three points of grammar are covered. The grammar sections are followed by ten to fifteen vocabulary items to be learned and, beginning in Lesson 9, by about ten cuneiform signs that are also to be memorized. (It should be noted here that the English glosses given in the vocabularies are for the most part based on those of the Chicago Assyrian Dictionary, about which see the next section. See above on the rationale for delaying presentation of the writing system until Lesson 9.) The vocabulary items (and signs) are followed in turn by a series of exercises that are intended to drill the points of grammar covered in the lesson, to review new and old vocabulary (and signs), and to present samples of Akkadian texts.

One of the first exercises in each lesson consists of words, phrases, or short sentences to "write in Akkadian." There is some feeling that it is unrealistic to ask students to "compose" in a dead language. Without the repeated need to reproduce forms accurately, however, a student's knowledge of a language remains passive rather than active, and an active knowledge is essential for full understanding of the details of grammar, for attention to the fine points and nuances of a sentence or text, and for awareness of unusual or even improper constructions on the part of the scribe. Students are therefore encouraged to write vocabulary, signs, and paradigms on flash cards and to learn not only to recognize forms but also to reproduce them.

Other exercises ask the student to translate Akkadian phrases and sentences. In the earliest lessons, these have of necessity been invented, although they are modeled on phrases and sentences found in actual texts. As early as is practical, authentic sentences from Old Babylonian texts are given, either reproduced verbatim or adapted slightly to accommodate the grammar and vocabulary that have been introduced to that point.

Beginning in Lesson 13, thus, by about the mid-point of the first semester, actual Old Babylonian texts are reproduced as part of the exercises. The texts introduced in Lesson 13 are contracts; laws from Hammurapi's "code" are introduced in Lesson 17, omen texts in Lesson 22, letters in Lesson 24, Mari letters in Lesson 29, royal inscriptions in Lesson 30, hymns and prayers in Lesson 33. In the presentation of real texts it has of course been necessary to provide glosses and explanatory notes for words and features that have not yet been covered in the grammar sections and vocabularies. The presentation of a significant number of texts in a wide range of genres is intended both to hold students' interest and to introduce them to the rich variety of textual material preserved to us in Akkadian.

In deciding how many exercises to include in this textbook it seemed preferable to err on the side of overabundance. Quite simply, there are too many, especially if one wants to complete the book within a single academic year. Thus, both instructors and independent students should choose a selection of the exercises and texts to work through, sometimes only half of them, particularly in the later lessons; this, at least, has proven to be a successful strategy with forerunners of this textbook to teach Akkadian. Nevertheless it has not seemed unreasonable to provide additional texts and exercises for students who have more time available to them or who want additional practice.

A Key to most of the exercises is published separately.

Research Tools

Akkadian and Sumerian texts offer the modern reader extraordinary views of one of humanity's earliest literate societies. But the languages of the texts are obscure, and the script in which they are written is very difficult to read, both in its complexity and in its (usual) presentation as a series of hard-to-make-out impressions in tablets of not-quite-flat clay. The most fundamental task of the Assyriologist is to make these texts accessible to a wider audience.

The full publication of a text, either in a journal article or as one of many texts in a monograph, involves a number of steps. Although photographs of tablets are frequently very useful, they generally do not capture the full three-dimensional effect of the impressed signs; further, tablets are often inscribed around their sides and on their edges as well as on their faces, and these peripheral parts of a tablet are difficult to photograph adequately. It is therefore the common practice for the Assyriologist to produce a hand drawing of a text in ink; this is called an "autograph copy" or simply an "autograph" or a "copy." A sign-by-sign rendering in Latin script, called a transliteration, is then produced, along with a translation. For the interpretation of individual signs a sign list is consulted. For the interpretation of individual words, of course, one consults one of the standard dictionaries; and for larger philological and linguistic matters there are the standard reference and dialect grammars. A brief review of these standard Assyriological tools, with their customary abbreviations, follows.

Sign Lists. Three modern sign lists are in common use. R. Labat's Manuel d'épigraphie akkadienne (6th ed. by F. Malbran-Labat, 1988; MEA^6) presents the chronological development of the forms of individual signs through all the various dialects, their phonological values, and their usage as logograms (see Lesson 13), all in an "at-a-glance" format. R. Borger's Mesopotamisches Zeichenlexikon (2nd ed., 2010; MZ^2) is a comprehensive reference work. W. von Soden and W. Röllig's Das akkadische Syllabar (4th ed., 1991; AS^4) gives phonetic sign values, with examples, for all periods of Akkadian.

A useful tool for learning signs is D. C. Snell's A Workbook of Cuneiform Signs (1979). W. Schramm's Akkadische Logogramme (2003) lists logograms alphabetically with their Akkadian equivalents. L.-J. Bord and R. Mugnaioni's L'Écriture cunéiforme (2002), gives lists of sign forms by period, including a list of Old Babylonian signs. In C. Mittelmayer's Alt- babylonische Zeichenliste (2006), signs in literary texts are listed according to their Old Babylonian shape, with syllabic and logographic values.

Dictionaries. There are two excellent reference dictionaries of Akkadian. W. von Soden's three-volume Akkadisches Handwörterbuch (1965–81; AHw) lists many occurrences for each word, but usually without extensive citation of the context and usually without translation of passages. Useful features are the clear layout of the verb entries, the inclusion of Semitic cognates, and the listing of roots at the beginning of each "letter." The Assyrian Dictionary of the University of Chicago (1956-2010), less formally known as the Chicago Assyrian Dictionary (CAD), was produced over five decades by an editorial board of noted Assyriologists. It is an encyclopedic reference work in which each volume is devoted to words beginning with one of the Akkadian phonemes; several of the volumes are in two or even three parts. (The volumes may be downloaded in pdf format free of charge at http://oi.uchicago.edu /research/pubs/catalog/cad/.) In CAD many occurrences of each word are cited, often with their full context and a translation; comparative Semitic data are not given. The inexpensive Concise Dictionary of Akkadian, edited by J. Black, A. George, and N. Postgate (1999; CDA), is a thoroughly reliable one-volume work (updated at www.trin.cam.ac.uk /cda_archive/). The Assyrian–English–Assyrian Dictionary, edited by S. Parpola and R.M. Whiting (2007), covers the Assyrian and Standard Babylonian dialects of the Neo-Assyrian empire; it can also be used to look up the Akkadian word for something, as can Mark E. Cohen's English to Akkadian Companion to the Assyrian Dictionaries (2011), T. Kämmerer and D. Schwiderski's Deutsch-Akkadisches Wörterbuch (1998). The Rückläufiges Wörterbuch des Akkadischen by K. Hecker (1990) is a "reverse dictionary" that is useful for working with damaged texts in which the beginnings of words are broken away.

Grammars. The standard reference grammar of Akkadian is W. von Soden's Grundriss der akkadischen Grammatik (3rd ed., with W. R. Mayer, 1995; GAG); the presentation of the grammar in the present textbook follows that of von Soden's GAG in most details, particularly in the few minor points over which there is some disagreement or uncertainty among Assyriologists. Another fine reference grammar, though less complete than GAG, is A. Ungnad's Grammatik des Akkadischen, 5th ed. by L. Matouš (1969), which has been translated into English by H. Hoffner, Jr. as Akkadian Grammar (1992). Linguistically-oriented grammars of Akkadian are E. Reiner, A Linguistic Analysis of Akkadian (1966); I. J. Gelb, Sequential Reconstruction of Proto-Akkadian (1969); B. Groneberg Syntax, Morphologie und Stil der jungbabylonischen "hymnischen" Literatur (2 volumes; 1987); and G. Buccellati, A Structural Grammar of Babylonian (1996).

Reference grammars of many of the individual dialects, both Mesopotamian and peripheral, also exist. The following list is not intended to be comprehensive.

Bibliographies. The field of Assyriology is very fortunate to have R. Borger's three-volume Handbuch der Keilschriftliteratur (1967–75; HKL), in which all Akkadian and Sumerian texts published in journals and monographs through the end of 1973 are listed under the names of publishing scholars, with detailed cross-references to all subsequent discussion of individual texts; the third volume of HKL organizes the texts by content. Updates of HKL, i.e., texts and discussions of texts published since 1973, appear in the "Register Assyriologie" of the periodical Archiv für Orientforschung. Notice should also be taken of the annual "Keilschriftbibliographie" in the journal Orientalia.

Journals. Several scholarly journals are devoted to the field of Assyriology:

Archiv für Orientforschung (AfO) Journal of Cuneiform Studies (JCS)

 $Nouvelles\ assyriologiques\ br\`eves\ et\ utilitaires\ (NABU)$

Revue d'assyriologie et d'archéologie orientale (RA)

Zeitschrift für Assyriologie und vorderasiatische Archäologie (ZA)

Other journals at least partly concerned with Assyriology are:

Altorientalische Forschungen (AoF)

Archiv Orientální (ArOr)

Aula Orientalis (AuOr)

 $Bibliotheca\ Orientalis\ (BiOr)$

Iraq

Journal of Near Eastern Studies (JNES)

Journal of the American Oriental Society (JAOS)

Orientalia (Or.)

 $Orientalistische\ Literaturzeitung\ (OLZ)$

Rivista degli studi orientali (RSO)

Studi epigrafici e linguistici (SEL)

Sumer

Syria (revue d'art oriental et d'archéologie)

Welt des Orients (WO)

Other Reference Works. An encyclopedic work covering all aspects of Assyriology is the Reallexikon der Assyriologie (begun by E. Ebeling et al., continued by D. Edzard, and most recently edited by M. P. Streck).

Akkadian (and Sumerian) personal names are treated in the now-outdated but still-indispensable work of J. Stamm, Die akkadische Na- mengebung (1939); see also Stol 1991 in the Bibliography below.

Geographical names (towns, cities, regions, lands, rivers) are collected in the several volumes of Répertoire géographique des textes cunéiformes (RGTC; 1974–; for the Old Babylonian period: volume 3, by B. Groneberg).

Selected Bibliography

It was noted in the preceding section that the grammar of Akkadian as presented in this textbook follows in the main the outlines of W. von Soden's GAG. During the preparation of the textbook the second, 1969, edition of GAG was consulted (the third edition having appeared too late to be used). But in addition to GAG numerous other articles and monographs devoted to issues of Akkadian grammar were also consulted, especially studies published after 1969. A few of those are specifically cited within the text; the findings of most, however, are incorporated into the presentation of the grammar silently. For the record, and for reference, there follows a list of those works consulted. The list also contains full references for the Akkadian texts reproduced in the Lessons.

LESSON ONE

1.1 The Sounds of Akkadian

Since there have been no native speakers of Akkadian for some two millennia, it is impossible to determine exactly how the language was pronounced. The pronunciation used by scholars is merely an educated guess, based largely on comparisons with languages related to Akkadian, such as Arabic, Amharic, and Hebrew.

(a) Vowels

There are four short vowels, a, e, i, u, and four corresponding long vowels. Long vowels are marked either with a macron, \bar{a} , \bar{e} , \bar{i} , \bar{u} , or with a circumflex, \hat{a} , \hat{e} , \hat{i} , \hat{u} , depending on the origin of the length (see §6.1). The vowels may be pronounced as follows:

SHORT VOWELS	LO	LONG VOWELS
a as in swap	\bar{a},\hat{a}	as in f a ther e as in pet	$ar{e}$, \hat{e}	as in rein
i as in pit	ī, î	as in mar i ne
u as in put	\bar{u} , \hat{u}	as in r u le

The distinction between short a and long \bar{a}/\hat{a} is basically one of duration.

It is crucial to know the length of a vowel, since a difference in length may mark a significant difference in meaning between otherwise identical words, as in mutum 'husband'vs.mūtum 'death'dannatum 'fortress'vs.dannātum 'fortresses'bêlum 'to rule'vs.belûm 'to be extinguished'

```

(b) Consonants

Most of these are pronounced like their English equivalents:

b	as in b et	m	as in m et	š	as sh in sh ot
d	as in d ot	n	as in n ot	t	as in tot
g	as in get	p	as in pot	w	as in wet
k	as in k id	r	as in r ot	у	as in Mayan
l	as in l ot	s	as in set	z	as in zoo

Note that w does not occur before other consonants (except itself, as in nuwwurum 'to brighten') or at the end of words. The consonant y occurs between vowels (singly, as in $el\bar{\imath}ya$ 'against me', or doubly, as in $dayy\bar{a}num$ 'judge'), and at the beginning of a few words (as in $y\hat{u}m$ 'mine'); many scholars prefer to transcribe j rather than y, and the phoneme is counted as j for alphabetization in the modern dictionaries.

Five consonants require special comment:

The phonemes q, s, and t are usually referred to as "emphatic" consonants. The ancient pronunciation of these is not known, and most modern students of Akkadian pronounce q like k, s as ts in fits, and t like t.

The sounds corresponding to Akkadian q, s, t in the modern Semitic languages of Ethiopia and South Arabia are glottalized, that is, pronounced like k, s, and t with accompanying glottal closure and sharp ejection of air $(q = [k^3]; s = [s^3]; t = [t^3])$. In Arabic the phonemes corresponding to the Akkadian emphatics are pronounced as follows: q is articulated farther back than k (at the uvula); s and t resemble s and t, respectively, but with a simultaneous constricting of the throat (pharyngealization).

Consider the following table (note: "voiced" consonants are pronounced with resonance of the vocal cords, "voiceless" without):

Voiced	Voiceless	Emphatic
b	p
d	t	ţ
g	\boldsymbol{k}	q
z	s	s

One of the several difficulties with the Akkadian writing system is its frequent failure to distinguish voiced, voiceless, and emphatic consonants that have otherwise identical articulation. Thus, for example, the same sign is used to write both za and sa; another sign is used to write any of ag, ak, or aq. This problem will be considered in detail under "The Writing System," §9.2.

The phoneme h should be pronounced like ch in German ach and Scottish loch. The student should be sure to include the "hook" when writing this consonant.

The remaining consonant, transcribed \circ (or, conveniently, as a single close-quote mark: '), is referred to as "aleph" (after the corresponding Hebrew consonant). It is the glottal stop or catch, the sound heard between n and i in 'an iceman' when one wishes to distinguish carefully that phrase from 'a nice man', or the sound heard in some pronunciations of 'bottle' as $[bo^{\circ}l]$. Like w and y, z is of limited distribution: it occurs only between vowels, either singly or doubled (as in $na^{3}\bar{a}dum$ 'to heed', $\dot{s}ita^{3}al$ 'interrogate!'), and, rarely, at the end of a syllable (e.g., $na^{3}dum$ 'attentive'; see §21.4). In modern Akkadian dictionaries, ' is ignored in alphabetization.

All consonants may occur doubled, as in wuššurum 'to release', libbum 'heart'. Doubled consonants should be held longer (cf. [nn] in 'meanness' or 'penknife'; [dd] in 'bad day'; [tt] in 'hot tub').

Alphabetization in modern Akkadian dictionaries is as follows:
```

a, b, d, e, g, h, i, j(y), k, l, m, n, p, q, r, s, s, s, t, t, u, w, z.

As noted above, words containing $^{\circ}$ are listed as though the $^{\circ}$ were not present.

1.2 Syllabification

The cuneiform writing system, as adapted for Akkadian (see below, §9.2), was based on the syllabification of the language; that is, to "spell" a given word, the scribe thought in terms of the constituent syllables of that word. It is therefore important that the student be able to determine the syllables that make up Akkadian words. There are three essential rules:

- (a) Every syllable has one, and only one, vowel.
- (b) With two exceptions, no syllable may begin with a vowel. The exceptions are: the beginning of a word; the second of two successive vowels (note: some scholars prefer to write ³ between any two vowels in a word: e.g., ki^3am rather than our kiam).
- (c) No syllable may begin or end with two consonants.

Some examples:

bal\bar{a}ț\bar{\imath}: ba/l\bar{a}†\bar{\imath} \bar{\imath} teneppuš: \bar{\imath}/te/nep/puš kiam: ki/am (or, el\hat{u}m: e/l\hat{u}m narkabtum: nar/kab/tum ki^{3}am: ki/^{3}am) sabat: sa/bat epištašu: e/piš/ta/šu

1.3 Stress (Accent)

For any Akkadian word, the position of the stress is completely predictable, according to the rules given below. To determine which syllable bears the stress in any given word, it is convenient to consider syllables as being of three different types:

- (a) Light: ending in a short vowel: e.g., -a, -ba.
- (b) Heavy: ending in a long vowel marked with a macron, or in a short vowel plus a consonant: e.g., $-\bar{a}$, $-b\bar{a}$, -ak, -bak.
- (c) Ultraheavy: ending in a long vowel marked with a circumflex, or in any long vowel plus a consonant: e.g., $-\hat{a}$, $-b\hat{a}$, $-b\hat{a}k$, $-b\hat{a}k$.

The syllable bearing the stress may be determined for any given word by applying the following rules, in order:

(a) If the last syllable is ultraheavy, it bears the stress, as in $ibn\hat{u}$: $ib/\underline{n\hat{u}}$; $id\bar{u}k$: $i/\underline{d\bar{u}k}$.

(b) Otherwise, stress falls on the last non-final heavy or ultraheavy syllable, as in iparras: i/par/ras; $t\bar{e}teneppu \bar{s}\bar{a}: t\bar{e}/te/nep/pu/\bar{s}\bar{a};$ $nidittum: ni/\underline{dit}/tum;$ $it\hat{a}r\bar{s}um: i/\underline{t}ar/\bar{s}um;$ $id\bar{u}k\bar{u}: i/\underline{d}\bar{u}/k\bar{u};$ $napi\bar{s}ta\bar{s}unu: na/pi\bar{s}/ta/\bar{s}u/nu.$

(c) Words that contain no non-final heavy or ultraheavy syllables have the stress on the first syllable:

zikarum: $\underline{zi}/ka/rum$; $il\bar{u}$: $\underline{i}/l\bar{u}$. \underline{sunu} : \underline{su}/nu ;

wardum 'male slave, manservant'.

LESSON ONE 5

- B. How is \check{s} pronounced? q? \check{h} ? \check{s} ? \check{t} ? the vowels? Pronounce the vocabulary words aloud.
- C. Which Akkadian consonants are voiced? voiceless? emphatic?
- D. Divide the nouns in the vocabulary into syllables, and mark the syllable with the stress: e.g., abum: \underline{a}/bum .
- E. For additional practice, divide the following words into syllables, and mark the syllable with the stress:

$1.\ mušallimum$	$5.\ tabnianni$	9. tabnû	13. paris
2. $i\check{s}\bar{a}l$	6. niqīaš	10. iššiakkum	14. išmeānim
3. idin	7. epēšum	11. $r\bar{e}d\hat{u}m$	15. pete
$4.\ iddin\bar{u}niš \check{s}um$	$8.\ kullumum$	12. $iqbi$	16. $\check{s}\bar{u}\hat{s}\hat{u}$

2.1 Noun Declension

(a) Paradigms

Study the following paradigms of the masculine words ilum 'god' and šarrum 'king' and the feminine words iltum 'goddess', šarratum 'queen' and $n\bar{a}rum$ 'river':

		MASC	ULINE	F E	M I N I	N E
SINGULAR	nominative genitive accusative	ilim	šarrim	iltim	šarratim	$nar{a}rim$
DUAL	nominative gen.–acc.			iltān iltīn	šarratān šarratīn	nārān nārīn
PLURAL	nominative gen.–acc.		šarrū šarrī		šarrātum šarrātim

(b) Definiteness

Akkadian has neither a definite nor an indefinite article; thus, e.g., according to the context in which it occurs, šarrum may be rendered 'king', 'a king', or 'the king'.

(c) Base and Endings

It is convenient to consider the noun (and the adjective; see §4.2–4) as consisting of a base, which conveys the meaning, plus an ending or endings, which signify gender, number, and case.

(d) Case

Akkadian nouns and adjectives have three cases:

Nominative (nom.): for the subject of the sentence, and the nominal predicate of some verbless sentences (see §2.5 below);

Genitive (gen.): to indicate possession and other noun–noun modification, and after prepositions (cf. §31.3);

Accusative (acc.): for the direct object of the verb, and in several adverbial expressions (see §18.3).

The cases are expressed by specific endings.

On all singular nouns, the case-endings are:

nom.: -um as in ilum \check{s}arrum iltum \check{s}arratum n\bar{a}rum gen.: -im as in ilim \check{s}arrim iltim \check{s}arratim n\bar{a}rim acc.: -am as in ilam \check{s}arram iltam \check{s}arratam n\bar{a}ram

The final -m, which also appears on feminine plurals, on masculine plural adjectives, and on some verb forms, is called "mimation."

(e) Gender

Akkadian has two genders, masculine and feminine. As is to be expected, nouns signifying male animate beings are masculine and nouns signifying female animate beings are feminine. For other nouns, there is usually no apparent semantic factor that determines their gender.

Masculine singular nouns have no special formal marker:

ilum 'god', šarrum 'king', mārum 'son', ālum 'city', kaspum 'silver'.

Many nouns that are masculine in the singular are always or sometimes construed as feminine in the plural; see the next section.

Most feminine singular nouns have -t or -at after the base, -t if the base ends in a single consonant or in a vowel, -at if the base ends in two consonants:

with -t: iltum 'goddess', mārtum 'daughter', qibītum 'utterance'; with -at: šarratum 'queen', warkatum 'back'.

Some nouns without -t or -at are also feminine, however; these include both animate and non-animate nouns, such as ummum 'mother', enzum 'she goat', nārum 'river', and most paired parts of the body, such as īnum 'eye', šēpum 'foot'.

All nouns that are feminine in the singular, including those without the ending -(a)t, remain grammatically feminine in the plural.

Still other nouns without -t or -at are of variable gender, that is, they sometimes take masculine modifiers, sometimes feminine; e.g., abnum 'stone', gerrum 'way', ṭuppum 'tablet', ugārum 'open field'. Such nouns also usually exhibit variable gender in the plural.

A few nouns with t before the case-ending are masculine, the t being part of the base rather than the fem. marker:

bītum 'house', liptum 'handiwork'.
```

In the vocabularies, nouns with t- before the case-ending are to be taken as feminine (e.g., iltum, šarratum, mātum 'country') and other nouns as masculine, except as otherwise noted.

(f) Number

There are three categories of number: singular, dual, and plural. The dual and the plural both distinguish only two cases, each having a common form for the genitive and accusative (gen.–acc., sometimes referred to as the oblique case).

The dual case-endings are:

nom. -\bar{a}n gen.-acc. -\bar{t}n

(The final -n is called "nunation.") These endings replace the sg. endings, following the base and the fem. sg. marker -(a)t if it is present:

The dual usually indicates precisely two of something. In OB, the use of the dual is generally confined to natural pairs of objects (that is, it is not normally used with words like 'god', 'king', 'goddess', 'queen', 'river', as the examples above might suggest); thus, where English has, for example, simply 'my eyes', Akkadian normally has 'my two eyes'. The dual also occurs on a small number of nouns with the same meaning as the singular, e.g.,

i\dot{s}dum and i\dot{s}d\bar{a}n 'foundation' (dual originally 'buttocks'); qablum and qabl\bar{a}n 'middle, waist, hips'; r\bar{e}\dot{s}um and r\bar{e}\dot{s}\bar{a}n 'top'.

Adjectives, verbs, and pronouns do not have dual forms in OB, and so nouns that are dual in form have plural agreement. Most nouns that occur in the dual in OB are feminine in the singular, and dual forms of these take feminine plural adjectives and verbs. Dual forms of nouns that are masculine in the singular may also take feminine plural adjectives and verbs, or, less often, masculine plural.

In the plural, the declensional endings of the masculine and the feminine differ from one another.

Masculine plurals replace the sg. case-endings with:

nom. -\bar{u} as in il\bar{u} 'gods' \check{s}arr\bar{u} 'kings' ward\bar{u} 'slaves' gen.–acc. -\bar{\iota} il\bar{\iota} \check{s}arr\bar{\iota} ward\bar{\iota}

Feminine plurals, like sg. nouns, end in -m:

```
nom. -\bar{a}tum as in il\bar{a}tum 'goddesses' \check{s}arr\bar{a}tum 'queens' gen.-acc. -\bar{a}tim il\bar{a}tim \check{s}arr\bar{a}tim

Note that the fem. pl. endings replace both the sg. case-endings and the sg. fem. marker: šarratum, pl. šarrātum; iltum, pl. ilātum; amtum, pl. amātum.

As noted earlier, all nouns that are feminine in the singular, including those without the ending -(a)t, have $-\bar{a}tum$, $-\bar{a}tim$ in the plural; e.g.,

nārum 'river', pl. nārātum;
ummum 'mother', pl. ummātum.
```

Many nouns that are masculine in the singular become feminine in the plural, such as dīnum 'legal decision', pl. dīnātum; igārum 'wall', pl. igārātum.

```

Other nouns that are masculine in the singular exhibit both masculine and feminine plurals, e.g.,

kunukkum 'seal', pl. kunukkū or kunukkātum;
našpakum 'granary', pl. našpakū or našpakātum.
```

Nouns that are of variable gender in the singular usually exhibit both masculine and feminine plural forms:

abnum 'stone', pl. abnū or abnātum;
tuppum 'tablet', pl. tuppū or tuppātum.

It should be noted that in the plural, it is the ending that effectively determines the gender of the form: all plurals ending in $-\bar{a}tum/-\bar{a}tim$ are grammatically feminine plural, and all but one or two plurals ending in $-\bar{u}/-\bar{\iota}$ are grammatically masculine plural.

In the lesson vocabularies, it should be assumed that masculine nouns have masculine plurals and that feminine nouns have feminine plurals, unless there is a note to the contrary.

For designating groups of animate beings of both sexes, the masculine plural usually serves as the common plural:

il\bar{u} 'gods (and goddesses)'; il\bar{a}tum is only 'goddesses'; m\bar{a}r\bar{u} 'sons' or 'children'; m\bar{a}r\bar{a}tum is only 'daughters'.

Some words occur only as plurals, e.g.,

namrirrū 'divine luminosity';
šīpātum 'wool'.
```

In some instances the singular and the plural have the same meaning:

dibbatum and dibbātum 'agreement, discussion';
uzzum and uzzātum 'anger';
zīmum and zīmū 'appearance, looks';
sg. emūqum, dual emūqān, pl. emūqū and emūqātum, all 'strength'.

Some nouns are singular in form but may denote groups or collections of people or things. Such collectives, as they are called, may be construed with either singular or plural modifiers and verbs; e.g., ṣābum 'worker, soldier'; as collective, 'gang, workers, troop(s), army' (construed as masc. sg. or pl.).

2.2 Prepositions

Most Akkadian prepositions are two-syllable words ending in a short vowel, such as ana 'to, for, at'ina 'in, among, with, by, from'ištu 'from, out of'itti 'with, in the company of'.

Nouns following prepositions are always in the genitive case:

ana iltim 'to the goddess' ina šarrī 'among the kings' ištu ālim 'from the town' itti bēlim 'with the lord'.

2.3 The Determinative Pronoun δa

The determinative pronoun $\check{s}a$ literally means 'the one of', as in $\check{s}a$ $B\bar{a}bilim$ 'the one of Babylon, he of Babylon'.

Usually, δa occurs in apposition to a preceding noun, and may be translated simply 'of' (apposition is considered in detail in §11.2):

 $\check{s}arrum\ \check{s}a\ B\bar{a}bilim$ '(the) king of Babylon' (lit.: 'the king, the one of Babylon').

Nouns after δa are in the genitive:

2.4 Independent Personal Pronouns

Akkadian personal pronouns have distinct masculine and feminine forms not only for the third person singular ('he', 'she'), but also for the third person plural and for the second person singular and plural (so that there are four forms for 'you'). To refer to a group of people or objects in which both sexes or genders are present, the masculine forms are used. The first person forms ('I', 'we') are common for both genders. (A dual pronoun existed for the third person [common gender] in the oldest stages of Akkadian, but fell out of use very early in OB.)

In this and subsequent sections concerning both pronouns and verbs, person, gender, and number will be referred to, for example, as 3ms (i.e., third person, masculine, singular), 2fp (second person, feminine, plural), 1cs (first person, common gender, singular).

The nominative forms of the independent personal pronouns are:

1csan\bar{a}ku 'I'1cpn\bar{i}nu 'we'2msatta 'you (ms)'2mpattunu 'you (mp)'2fsatti 'you (fs)'2fpattina 'you (fp)'3msš\bar{u} 'he, it (m)'3mpšunu 'they (m)'3fsš\bar{i} 'she, it (f)'3fpšina 'they (f)'

These pronouns are used as subjects of verbless clauses (see the next section; other uses are discussed in §3.5).

When more than one person is expressed, the Akkadian order is the reverse of the English:

an\bar{a}ku\ u\ atti 'you and I' (lit. 'I and you'); an\bar{a}ku\ u\ wardum 'the servant and I' (lit. 'I and the servant'); atta\ u\ š\bar{\imath} 'she and you' (lit. 'you and she').

2.5 Verbless Clauses

Akkadian has no verb 'to be'. Such clauses are expressed simply by juxtaposing the subject and the predicate, and are called verbless (or nominal) clauses.

If the subject of a verbless clause is a noun, it stands at the beginning of the clause; if the subject is a pronoun, it stands at the end. The tense in such clauses can be determined only from the surrounding context. Some examples:

Ḥammurapi šarrum ša Bābilim 'Hammurapi is/was (the) king of Babylon.'

amātum ina ālim 'The womenservants are/were/will be in the town.' mārtum ša šarrim atti 'You are the king's daughter.' ina ālim nīnu 'We are/were/will be in the town.'

Clauses of the type Adverb (phrase) — Noun (phrase) also occur, but infrequently; most of these are existential clauses: e.g., ina libbim ša ālim nārum 'In the center of town (there) is a river' or 'There is a river in the center of town' (vs. nārum ina libbim ša ālim 'The river is in the center of town').

Verbless clauses may also express simple possession when δa and a following genitive constitute the predicate:

 $b\bar{\imath}tum$ ša iltim 'The house is the goddess's, belongs to the goddess.' kaspum u $hur\bar{a}sum$ ša $\bar{a}lim$ 'The silver and gold belong to the town.' $ward\bar{u}$ ša $b\bar{e}lim$ 'The slaves belong to the lord, are the lord's.' ša ilim š \bar{u} 'It is the god's, belongs to the god.'

EXERCISES

A. VOCABULARY 2.

Nouns (note: nouns with t- before the case-ending are fem., others masc., except as indicated):

aššatum 'wife'.

bītum (masc.; pl. fem. bītātum) 'house, estate, household'.

 $em\bar{u}qum$ (dual $em\bar{u}q\bar{a}n$; pl. masc. $em\bar{u}q\bar{u}$ and fem. $em\bar{u}q\bar{a}tum$) 'strength, power, force, ability; armed forces; value'; also used in the dual and pl. with the same meanings.

īnum (fem.) 'eye; spring'.

išdum (dual išdān [often = sg.]; pl. išdātum) 'base, foundation, bottom; lower extremities; administration, organization (of a government)'.

libbum 'heart; mind, thought, wish; inside, center, midst'.

mutum (masc.) 'husband, man'.

nārum (fem.) 'river, canal'.

šīpātum (always pl.) 'wool'.

tuppum (masc. and fem.; pl. tuppū and tuppātum; Sum. lw.) '(clay) tablet, document, letter'.

ummum (fem.) 'mother'.

uznum (fem.) 'ear; wisdom, understanding'.

Prepositions:

ana 'to, toward, unto, for'; temporally, 'for, (with)in'.

ina 'in, into, at, among; with (things), by means of, by; from, from within (a place, with verbs of motion and of taking, seizing; see §5.6)'; temporally, 'in, on, at the time of'.

itti 'with (persons, deities), in the company of, from (a person, with verbs of taking, receiving; see §5.6)'.

Other:

ša 'the one of; of'.

- B. Divide the vocabulary words into syllables, and mark the syllable with the stress.
- C. Give the plural (nominative) of the following:

$1.\ amtum$	6. aššatum	$11.\ iltum$	16. ṣābum
$2.\ wardum$	7.mutum	12. šarratum	$17.\ b\bar{\imath}tum$
3. ummum	8. išdum	13. $em \bar{u} qum$	18. šarrum
$4.\ m\bar{a}rtum$	9. $m\bar{a}rum$	$14.~n\bar{a}rum$
5. bēlum	$10.\ ilum$	15. $tuppum$

- D. For what is the accusative case used?
- E. Write in Akkadian (remember to use the dual where appropriate):
 - 1. from the town

- 3. with the menservants of
- 2. in the center of the house
- the queen

- 4. the lord's eyes
- 5. the one of strength
- 6. among the wives of the husbands
- 7. the head of the lord
- 8. the silver and gold of the king's son
- 9. the one of the town
- 10. with eyes and ears

- 11. by the power of the gods
- 12. out of the house
- 13. (he received it) from the slave
- 14. with the king's wool
- 15. the foundation of the city
- 16. among the daughters' tablets

F. Translate the following sentences:

- Ninhursag (a goddess) šarratum ša ilātim; šarratum ša ilātim šī.
- 2. amātum ša bēlim anāku u attina.
- 3. bēlum ša ālim anāku.
- 4. amātum ina nārim; ina nārim šina.
- 5. țuppum ša mārim ša bēlim; ša mārim ša bēlim šū.
- 6. ilū ina libbim ša ālim; ina libbim ša ālim šunu.
- 7. wardū ša šarratim nīnu.
- 8. emūqū ša šarrim ina ālim.
- 9. mutum u aššatum ina bītim itti mārī u mārātim; ina bītim šunu.
- 10. šīpātum ša wardim.
- 11. emūqān ša šarrim išdān ša ālim.

G. Write in Akkadian:

- 1. You are the mother of the gods.
- 2. The gold was in the house; it was in the house.
- 3. You are the sons of the female slaves; you are the daughters of the male slaves.
- 4. The army of the king was in the river.
- 5. You are the father of the womanservant.
- 6. The principal of the silver belongs to the mother.
- 7. The goddess was in the midst of the army.
- 8. The wife's wool is in the house.

LESSON THREE

3.1 The Semantic Root

In the Semitic languages, including Akkadian (see above, page xxiii), most nouns, adjectives, and verbs consist of a sequence of consonants plus an internal vowel pattern; other modifications include affixes (prefixes, suffixes) and consonant doubling. Study the following words, which share the consonantal base k–s–r:

		VOWEL PATTERN	AFFIXES, ETC.
kaṣārum kusur	'to bind' 'bind!'	$R_1aR_2ar{a}R_3 \ R_1uR_2uR_3$	suffix -um (case-ending) kuşşurum	'well tied'	$R_1uR_2R_2uR_3$	doubling of R_2 ; suffix -um (case-ending)
makṣarum	'bundle'	$R_1R_2aR_3$	prefix ma - and suffix - um (case-ending)

These words are all clearly related in meaning; they all have to do with 'binding'. The sequence of consonants k– \mathfrak{s} –r is called the root of these words (and of others containing the same sequence and having related meanings). The consonants k, \mathfrak{s} , and r are referred to as the radicals of the root (hence R_1 , R_2 , and R_3). As a further example, note the following words, which have the root d–n–n (hence, R_2 and R_3 are the same), and have to do with 'strength':

	V	OWEL PATTERN	AFFIXES, ETC.
danānum idnin dunnum tadnintum	'to grow strong' 'it grew strong' 'strength' 'strengthening'	$R_{1}aR_{2}\bar{a}R_{3} \ R_{1}R_{2}iR_{3} \ R_{1}uR_{2}R_{3} \ R_{1}R_{2}iR_{3}$	suffix -um (case-ending) prefix i- suffix -um (case-ending) pref. ta-; suffixes -t (fem.) and -um (case-ending)

The vowel patterns and the affixes give the words their precise meanings; they also provide morphological information: e.g., the pattern $R_1aR_2\bar{a}R_3(-um)$ is the basic Infinitive of the verb (as in $ka\$\bar{a}rum$, $dan\bar{a}num$); $R_1uR_2uR_3$ is one of the patterns of the Imperative (ku\$ur).

Because the use of R_1 – R_2 – R_3 is cumbersome, Assyriologists have adopted one root as paradigmatic, namely, \boldsymbol{p} – \boldsymbol{r} – \boldsymbol{s} , which has to do with 'separating, deciding', where \boldsymbol{p} stands for R_1 , \boldsymbol{r} for R_2 , and \boldsymbol{s} for R_3 . Thus, the basic Infinitive, as in $kas\bar{a}rum$ and $dan\bar{a}num$ above, is said to be "of the pattern $par\bar{a}s$ " or to be a " $par\bar{a}s$ form" (the case-ending may be omitted in the discussion of patterns); the patterns of the other nouns given above are as follows:

WORD	PATTERN	WORD	PATTERN
kuṣṣurum	purrus	dunnum	purs
makş $arum$	mapras	tadnintum	taprist

In this grammar, we will usually follow the tradition of using p–r–s as the paradigmatic root, although there will be occasions on which R_1 – R_2 – R_3 will be more convenient.

Not all roots have three radicals; many have only two, and some have four and even five. In such cases, obviously, the paradigmatic root p–r–s is not useful. For roots with two radicals, therefore, we will use p–s or R_1 – R_2 ; e.g.,

WORD	PATTERN	WORD	PATTERN
mutum	pus or R_1uR_2	$n\bar{a}rum$	$p\bar{a}s$ or $R_1\bar{a}R_2$

(See also the next paragraph, however.) For four-radical roots, the paradigm will be either \mathbf{p} - \mathbf{r} - \mathbf{s} - \mathbf{d} (or R_1 - R_2 - R_3 - R_4) or \mathbf{p} - \mathbf{s} - \mathbf{p} - \mathbf{s} (or R_1 - R_2 - R_1 - R_2); five-radical roots are very rare.

From comparison with other Semitic languages, it is known that, very early in its history, Akkadian merged five consonants that it had inherited from Proto-Semitic; these are transcribed $^{\circ}$, h, h, $^{\circ}$, $^{\circ}$ by students of Semitic philology, although Assyriologists often refer to them as $^{\circ}1$, $^{\circ}2$, $^{\circ}3$, $^{\circ}4$, $^{\circ}5$, respectively. ($^{\circ}5$, Semitic $^{\circ}g$, merged with $^{\circ}h$ in some instances; Kogan 2001.) The phonemes $^{\circ}g$ and $^{\circ}g$ also merged with these in some instances; in such cases, they are referred to as $^{\circ}g$ and $^{\circ}g$, respectively. The loss of $^{\circ}g$ - $^{\circ}g$ - $^{\circ}g$ in most phonological positions, and of $^{\circ}g$ - $^{\circ}g$

3.2 Verb Morphology: Introductory Considerations

Akkadian verbs present to the beginning student a bewildering array of forms. There are three nominal or non-finite forms (Infinitive, Participle, Verbal Adjective). Finite forms, that is, forms that are inflected for person, gender, and number, include indicative "tenses" (Preterite, Durative, Perfect) as well as injunctive forms (Imperative, Precative). Besides sound roots, there are several weak root types, in which one or more of the radicals is subject to phonological change. Finally, most roots occur in several stems or conjugations, each with its own semantic range. Not surprisingly, then, much of the grammar presented in this text will concern verbal morphology.

Up to LESSON 23, only the basic stem or conjugation will be considered; it is called the G Stem, after German Grundstamm ('basic stem'). It has been thought best to introduce the G stem of weak root types before the other conjugations of the sound roots, since many of the most common verbs in the language have weak roots.

As will be seen from the descriptions that follow in this and subsequent lessons, the term "tense" for the Preterite, Durative, and Perfect is inadequate. None of these forms is limited to a single time value, and all involve certain aspectual notions such as (non-)duration of action and present relevance of action.

3.3 The G Infinitive: Form and Meaning

The Infinitive is a declinable noun (masc. sg.; plural forms of infinitives do not occur); in the G stem, it has the pattern $par\bar{a}s$: e.g., $šak\bar{a}num$ 'to place, install'; $mah\bar{a}rum$ 'to receive'; $šar\bar{a}qum$ 'to steal'.

Infinitives often follow prepositions (thus, in the genitive case); in such instances, the prepositions frequently have special nuances (e.g., ana 'in order to'; ina 'when, while, by'), and the Infinitive is often best translated by the English gerund:

wardum ina šarāqim ša ḫurāṣim imqut 'The slave fell (imqut) while/ when stealing the gold (lit.: in the stealing of the gold).'

šarrum ana ālim ana šakānim ša ilim ikšud 'The king arrived (ikšud) at the city to install the god (lit.: for the installing of the god).'

The use of the Infinitive will be treated in greater detail in a later lesson (§30.1).

Verbs are listed under their Infinitives in modern Akkadian dictionaries, as they were by ancient scribes in their lexical texts.

3.4 Verb Semantics: General Comments

Most verbs may be assigned to one of three semantic categories:

- (1) Active-transitive verbs: these are verbs that take a direct object, such as $\check{s}ak\bar{a}num$ 'to place', $\check{s}ar\bar{a}qum$ 'to steal', $mah\bar{a}sum$ 'to strike', $tar\bar{a}dum$ 'to send'.
- (2) Active-intransitive verbs: here belong especially verbs of motion, such as naḥāsum 'to recede', wašābum 'to sit down, dwell', maqātum 'to fall', ḥalāqum 'to escape, perish', and a few other verbs, such as balātum 'to live'.
- (3) Stative or adjectival verbs: these mean 'to be X' or 'to become X', where "X" is an adjective, as in damāqum 'to be/become good, improve', marāṣum 'to be/get sick', rapāšum 'to be/become wide', warāqum 'to be/turn yellow'.
- A few verbs belong to two of these categories: e.g., <code>kašādum</code> 'to reach (+ direct object)' and 'to arrive (intransitive)'; <code>palāhum</code> 'to fear (+ direct object)' and 'to be afraid (intransitive)'.

The significance of these semantic categories for a thorough understanding of the verbal system will become apparent over the course of the next few lessons.

3.5 The G Preterite: Form and Meaning

The base of the G Preterite is $R_1R_2VR_3$, where V is one of the short vowels. This vowel, which is called the theme vowel (or, stem vowel), is unpredictable and must be learned for each root. Prefixes and suffixes are added to the base to indicate person, gender, and number (as is traditional in Semitic grammar, verbal paradigms proceed from the third person to the first):

3cs	i-		3mp	i-	$ar{u}$
			3fp	i-	- $ar{a}$
2ms	ta-		2cp	ta-	- $ar{a}$
2fs	ta-	-ī
1cs	a-		1cp	ni-

Note that there is a common form for the third person singular, for the second person plural, as well as for both singular and plural first person forms. Below are the G Preterites of $\check{s}ak\bar{a}num$ (theme vowel u) 'to place', $\check{s}ar\bar{a}qum$ (i) 'to steal', and $\check{s}ab\bar{a}tum$ (a) 'to seize':

iškun 'she/he/it placed' išriq 'she/he/it stole' işbat 'she/he/it seized' 2ms taškun 'you (ms) placed' tašrig 'you (ms) stole'

The Preterite denotes an action seen by the speaker/writer as occurring or having occurred at a single point in time (hence "punctual"). It is therefore usually best translated as a simple past tense: aškun 'I placed'. (In temporal clauses, it may on occasion be rendered by the pluperfect: '(when/after) I had placed'.)

The pronominal subject ('I', 'you', etc.) is always included in the verb form. The independent nominative pronouns (§2.4) may be used for two reasons:

- (a) For emphasis: atta tašriq 'It was you (ms) who stole.'
- (b) When the subject involves different persons: $an\bar{a}ku\ u\ atta\ nisbat$ 'You and I (we) seized.'

Note that the independent pronouns stand at the beginning of verbal clauses (see the next section), rather than at the end as they do when subjects of verbless clauses (§2.5).

3.6 Word Order and Agreement in Verbal Clauses

In verbal clauses in prose texts, the normal order of constituents is: Subject—Direct Object—Adjunct—Verb.

"Adjuncts" are adverbs and prepositional phrases (including indirect objects). Naturally, all of these elements need not be present in any given clause. While the order of constituents may be rearranged in a variety of ways, usually to emphasize one element of the clause over the others (e.g., by placing the direct object before the subject), the verb is always the last word in its clause. Since there is no punctuation in the writing, this is an essential key in determining where one clause ends and the next begins. Occasionally, the direct object may be left unexpressed, where English would have a pronoun; thus, in certain contexts, wardum išriq may mean 'The servant stole it'. But Akkadian too normally has a pronoun here (§18.2). As in English, conjunctions always precede all other constituents in a clause, as do certain sentence-modifying adverbs and prepositional phrases (such as 'moreover', 'at that time'). Some examples of verbal sentences:

amtum kaspam iṣbat ina bītim iškun 'The woman slave seized the silver; she put (it) in the house';

hurāṣam ša šarrim tašriqā 'You (pl) stole the king's gold';

bēlum abam ša šarratim ina ālim iṣbat 'The lord seized the queen's father in the town.'

Verbs must agree with their subjects in person, gender, and number: e.g., ilātum hurāṣam ša šarrim iṣbatā 'The goddesses seized the king's gold'; wardū šīpātim ina bītim iškunū 'The menservants put the wool in the house.'

As was noted in §2.1(f), subjects that are dual in form are normally construed as feminine plural, even when the noun in the dual is masculine when singular:

 $\check{s}arr\bar{a}n\ i\check{s}kun\bar{a}$ (only rarely $\check{s}arr\bar{a}n\ i\check{s}kun\bar{u}$) 'The two kings placed'; $\check{s}arrat\bar{a}n\ i\check{s}kun\bar{a}$ 'The two queens placed'.

Compound subjects ('X and Y', 'X, Y, and Z') take plural verbs; if any of the elements is masculine, the verb is masculine plural:

mārum u mārtum imqutū 'The son and the daughter fell';
amtum wardum u mārātum imqutū 'The female slave, the male slave, and the daughters fell';

aššatum u mārātum imqutā 'The wife and the daughters fell'.

Collective nouns may be construed as singular or plural:

 $s\bar{a}bum \ \bar{a}lam \ isbat/isbat\bar{u}$ 'The troop seized the town.'

EXERCISES

A. VOCABULARY 3.

Verbs:

damāqum (Preterite idmiq) 'to become good, better, improve, prosper'.

danānum (idnin) 'to become strong'.

ḫalāqum (iḫliq) 'to disappear, go missing, get lost; to escape; to perish'.

kašādum (ikšud) 'to arrive (at a place: ana or acc.); to reach, achieve; to conquer, defeat'.

maḥāṣum (imḥaṣ) 'to strike, hit, smite, wound, kill'.

maqātum (imqut) 'to fall, fall down, collapse; to arrive (said of news, etc.), happen; to fall upon, attack (with ana, eli)'.

marāṣum (imraṣ) 'to become sick, fall ill; to be(come) painful; to become troublesome, difficult (to, for someone: eli, ana)'; with libbum as subject: 'to become annoyed' (e.g., libbum ša šarrim imraṣ 'the king became annoyed').

rapāšum (irpiš) 'to become wide, broad'.

sabātum (iṣbat) 'to seize, take hold of, arrest, capture'.

šakānum (iškun) 'to place, set, put; to establish, install, appoint, assign, impose'.

šarāqum (išriq) 'to steal'.

Nouns (reminder: nouns with t- are fem., others masc.):

awīlum 'human being, person; grown man; free man; boss'.

mātum (fem.; pl. mātātum) 'country (political unit), native land; land, open country'.

qātum (fem.) 'hand; care, charge, responsibility'; ina qātim ša 'from (a person, with verbs of receiving, taking, seizing, etc.); in the charge of, under the authority of (a person); through the agency of (a person)'; qātam ṣabātum 'to help' (e.g., qātam ša wardim aṣbat 'I helped the slave'); qātam šakānum 'to begin' (+ ana + Infin.: 'to do', as in qātam ana šarāqim ša kaspim iškunū 'they began to steal the silver'; + ana + noun: 'begin work on', as in qātam ana bītim aškun 'I began work on the house'); the plural form qātātum means 'guarantee, security, pledge'.

Preposition:

eli 'on, upon, over, above, towards, against, beyond, more than'.

- B. Divide the vocabulary words into syllables, and note the syllable that bears the stress.
- C. 1. What are the radicals (i.e., what is the root) of each of the verbs in the vocabulary?

2. Give the verb in the vocabulary to which each of the following nouns and adjectives is related (i.e., the verb with which each shares its root). Note the pattern of each (using either p-r-s or $R_1-R_2-R_3$).

Example: mithusum is related to $mah\bar{a}sum$ (root m-h-s), of the pattern pitrus (or $R_1itR_2uR_3$ [infix -t-]).

- 6. You (pl) helped the womanservant.

LESSON FOUR

4.1 Vowel Syncope

In §1.3, a light syllable was defined as one that ends in a short vowel. Akkadian phonology does not tolerate sequences of two or more light syllables in a word, except in a number of instances that are described below. When two or more light syllables would appear successively, the vowel of the last one is omitted (syncopated). As an example, consider the word napištum 'life, throat', which may be broken down into napiš- (base), -t- (fem. marker), -um (case-ending). The plural of napištum will have the elements napiš+āt+um. But a form napišātum ( indicates an unattested or impossible form) would begin with two light syllables; thus, syncope of the second vowel takes place, and the form is napšātum. Further examples appear in §4.3 below.

Exceptions to the rule of vowel syncope occur:

- (a) regularly at the end of a word, where two successive light syllables are permitted, as in iškunu '(who) placed', ina 'in';
- (b) regularly before a vowel, as in rabiam 'great (acc.)', biniā 'build (pl)!';
- (c) frequently before r, as in zikarum 'male', šikarum 'beer', labirum 'old', nakirum 'hostile'; byforms with syncope, such as nakrum, also occur;
- (d) occasionally before l, as in akalum 'food', $ubil\bar{u}$ 'they (m) brought'; byforms with syncope often occur: aklum;
- (e) when certain pronominal suffixes are added, as in tuppašunu 'their tablet' (see §11.1);
- (f) in some Sumerian loanwords, such as nuḥatimmum 'cook', gabaraḥhum 'rebellion'.

4.2 The Attributive Adjective: Declension and Agreement

Adjectives may be attributive, as in 'the mighty king', or predicative, as in 'the king is mighty'. The latter are taken up in §22.1. Attributive adjectives, like nouns, are declined; they agree with the nouns they modify in case, number, and gender. The endings are the same as those on nouns, except for the masc. pl. Thus, in the sg., the case-endings are nom. -um, gen. -im, acc. -am. The fem. sg. has -t- after the base (before the case-ending) if the base ends in one consonant, -at- if it ends in two (cf. the nouns $m\bar{a}rtum$, $\check{s}arratum$). The fem. pl. endings, as on nouns, are nom. $-\bar{a}tum$, gen.-acc. $-\bar{a}tim$. As noted above, the only distinction between the declension of attributive adjectives and that of nouns lies in the masc. pl.: whereas nouns have nom. $-\bar{u}t$, gen.-acc. $-\bar{t}t$, adjectives have nom. $-\bar{u}tum$, gen.-acc. $-\bar{u}tim$ for the masc. pl. Below are the full declensions of $t\bar{a}bum$ (base $t\bar{a}b$ -) 'pleasant' and t-annum (base t-ann-) 'strong':

	N	MASCULINE	FEMININE	MASCULINE	FEMININE
SINGULAR	nom. gen. acc.	ṭābum ṭābim ṭābam	ṭābtum ṭābtim ṭābtam	dannum dannim dannam	dannatum dannatim dannatam
PLURAL	nom.	ṭābūtum . ṭābūtim	ṭābātum tābātim	dannūtum dannūtim	dannātum dannātim

The attributive adjective follows the noun it modifies, as in šarrū dannūtum 'strong kings'; ina qātim dannatim 'with a strong arm'.

An adjective may modify more than one noun; it appears in the plural:

abum u mārum dannūtum 'the strong father and son'; ummum u mārtum dannātum 'the strong mother and daughter';

an adjective modifying a compound antecedent of mixed gender is masc. pl.:

abum u ummum dannūtum 'the strong father and mother'.

Adjectives do not have dual forms; dual nouns are modified by plural adjectives (normally feminine pl.; see §2.1(f)):

īnān ṭābātum 'pleasant eyes'.

4.3 The G Verbal Adjective

Associated with verbal roots, in all stems (see §3.2), is a form referred to as the Verbal Adjective. Most Akkadian adjectives belong to this category (for other types of adjectives, see §§6.2, 6.3, 25.3).

(a) Form

The Verbal Adjective in the sound verb has the pattern parVs, where V is one of the short vowels. For most verbs, this second vowel is i; only a few stative/adjectival verbs have a or u (see below); examples are ṣabit- 'seized'; damiq- 'good'; rapaš- 'wide'; zapur- 'malicious'. Because of the vowel syncope rule (§4.1 above), however, the distinctive second vowel of such bases disappears when case-endings are added in the masc. sg. and in all pl. forms. Thus, the vowel appears only in the fem. sg. forms.

		MASCULINE	FEMININE
SINGULAR	nom.	damqum	damiqtum
	gen.	damqim	damiqtim
	acc.	damqam	damiqtam
PLURAL	nom.	damqūtum	damqātum
	genacc.	damqūtim	damqātim

Similarly:

```
ms rapšum fs rapaštum ms zaprum fs zapurtum mp rapš\bar{u}tum fp raps\bar{u}tum mp zapr\bar{u}tum fp zapr\bar{u}tum

These adjectives, like all others, are listed in dictionaries, and in the vocabularies of this textbook, by their masc. sg. forms (e.g., damqum). As noted above, the second vowel of active roots (both transitive and intransitive) is almost invariably i; for adjective/stative roots, however, the vowel is unpredictable. For such roots, the student must be careful to learn either the base (damiq-, rapaš-) or the fem. sg. (damiqtum, rapaštum) as well; note that the vowel is not necessarily the same as the theme-vowel of the Preterite: idmiq 'became good' and damiq- 'good', but imras 'became sick' and marus 'sick', irpis 'became wide' and rapas- 'wide'.

Verbal Adjectives of adjectival verbs in which R_2 and R_3 are the same, such as $dan\bar{a}num$ 'to become strong', have pass- as their base, as in ms dannum, fs dannatum. Active verbs of this type have regular bases: thus, e.g., the Verbal Adj. of $\check{s}ak\bar{a}kum$ 'to harrow' is ms $\check{s}akkum$, fs $\check{s}akiktum$.

(b) Meaning

The Verbal Adjective describes the condition or state resulting from the action of the verb from which it is derived. The basic meaning of any such adjective is determined by the semantic nature of its root (see §3.4); in particular:

LESSON FOUR 27

- (1) Active-transitive roots have passive Verbal Adjectives, as in maḥṣum 'struck, smitten', ṣabtum 'seized, captive', šaknum 'placed, installed', šarqum 'stolen';
- (2) Active-intransitive roots have resultative Verbal Adjectives, as in halqum 'escaped, missing, lost', maqtum 'fallen, collapsed, in ruins';
- (3) Stative/adjectival roots have simple descriptive Verbal Adjectives, as in damqum 'good', dannum 'strong', marṣum 'sick', rapšum 'wide'

Although it is clear that Verbal Adjectives could be formed at will for any verbal root, semantics and the fortuitousness of discovery have meant that Verbal Adjectives are in fact not attested in texts for all roots. Further, some Verbal Adjectives that do occur are not yet attested attributively, but only in predicative use, in a construction to be treated in a later lesson (§22.1).

In the lesson vocabularies, Verbal Adjectives will usually be given in the entries of new verbs, though not in the case of all active-transitive verbs, since for those roots the form and meaning of the Verbal Adjective, if attested, are generally predictable. (Even when not specifically cited in the vocabularies, however, such forms may nevertheless appear in the exercises and readings.) Finally, it should be noted that for stative/adjectival roots, the Verbal Adjective is often of greater frequency than finite forms like the Preterite. (Rarely, finite forms are not yet attested at all; in such cases, the Adjective will be listed separately, without a corresponding Infinitive.)

4.4 The Substantivization of Adjectives

Any adjective may be used as a noun, meaning 'one (person or thing) who/that is X', where "X" is the quality described by the adjective. Adjectives used as nouns are said to be substantivized. Examples:

ṣabtum 'seized, captive (m); a captive, a prisoner';
dannūtum 'strong (pl); strong men, the strong ones';
haliqtum 'escaped, missing (f); an escaped/missing woman'.

As indicated by the example $dann\bar{u}tum$, the masc. plural of substantivized adjectives normally retains the adjectival endings $-\bar{u}tum/-\bar{u}tim$; occasionally, however, the noun pl. endings occur, as in:

nakirum 'hostile, inimical; enemy'; pl. nakirūtum when used as an attributive adjective (šarrū nakirūtum 'enemy kings'), nakirū when substantivized as 'enemies'.

The feminine singular of an adjective may be used as an abstract noun, indicating the quality described by the adjective:

damqum 'good'; damiqtum 'good (f); good(ness), favor, luck; fame';
zaprum 'malicious, false'; zapurtum 'malicious, false (f); malice, falsehood'.

Sometimes the meaning of the substantivized feminine form is more concrete:

dannum 'strong, hard (m)'; dannatum 'strong, hard (f); hard times; fortress'.

4.5 The Negative Adverb ul(a)

The predicate of a main clause is negated with an adverb that usually has the form ul; a less common byform is ula. This stands immediately before the verb in verbal clauses, before the head of the predicate in verbless clauses. Examples:

 $\underline{h}ur\bar{a}$ sam ina b $\overline{\iota}tim$ ul asbat 'I did not seize the gold from the house.' \underline{I} sme-Dagan ula sarrum sa \underline{B} abilim 'Ishme-Dagan is not king of Babylon.'

ul šarrum ša Bābilim šū 'He is not king of Babylon.'

EXERCISES

A. VOCABULARY 4.

Verbs:

balāṭum (Preterite iblut) 'to live, be alive, be healthy; to get well, recover'; the Infinitive is used as a noun, 'life'; Verbal Adj. balṭum (base baliṭ- [fem. sg. see §5.4]) 'alive, healthy, safe'.

gamārum (igmur) 'to bring to an end; to annihilate; to use up; to settle; to encompass, control; to finish (doing: ina + Infinitive); to come to an end'; Verbal Adj. gamrum (gamir-) 'finished, settled; complete, entire, full (may follow another adj.: šamnum ṭābum gamrum 'the entire (amount of) fine oil')'.

kanākum (iknuk) 'to seal; to place under seal'; Verbal Adj. kankum (kanik-) 'sealed, under seal'. LESSON FOUR 29

- maḥārum (imḥur) 'to accept, receive (from someone: itti or ina qātim ša); to approach, meet, confront'; īnam ša X maḥārum 'to please X' (e.g., īnam ša šarrim tamḥur 'you (ms) pleased the king'); Verbal Adj. maḥrum (maḥir-) 'received'.
- šalāmum (išlim) 'to become whole, sound, well, uninjured, safe; to recover; to arrive safely; to succeed, prosper; to be completed'; Verbal Adj. šalmum (šalim-) 'whole, sound, well, safe, in good condition, intact, complete, favorable'.

Nouns:

ahum 'brother'.

alpum 'ox, bull'.

etlum (pl. like an adjective: etlūtum) 'young man, youth'.

kakkum 'weapon'.

napištum (pl. napšātum) 'life, vigor, good health; person; personnel; self; throat'.

šamnum 'oil, fat'.

šikarum 'beer, intoxicating liquid'.

Adjectives:

- damqum (base damiq-; Verbal Adj. of damāqum) 'good, of good quality; beautiful; favorable; expert'; fem. damiqtum 'good(ness), favor, luck; fame'.
- dannum (dann-; Verbal Adj. of danānum) 'strong, solid; mighty, powerful; fortified; fierce, savage; severe, difficult; urgent'; substantivized fem. dannatum 'famine, hard times; fortress'.
- halqum (haliq-; Verbal Adj. of halāqum) 'escaped; missing, lost'.
- kašdum (kašid- [fem. sg. see §5.4]; Verbal Adj. of kašādum) 'successful, achieved; conquered; having arrived, available'.
- maqtum (maqit-; Verbal Adj. of maqātum) 'fallen, collapsed, in ruins'.
- marṣum (maruṣ- [fem. sg. see §5.4]; Verbal Adj. of marāṣum) 'sick, ill; diseased, painful; difficult'; substantivized fem. maruštum (pl. marsātum) 'difficulty, hardship, trouble, duress'.
- nakarum, nakirum, and nakrum (base nakar- or nakir-; Verbal Adj. of $nak\bar{a}rum$, Vocab. 21) 'hostile, inimical; foreign'; substantivized (pl. $nak(a/i)r\bar{u}$), 'enemy, foe'.
- rapšum (rapaš-; Verbal Adj. of rapāšum) 'wide, broad'; uznum rapaštum 'great intelligence, understanding'.

ṣabtum (ṣabit-; Verbal Adj. of ṣabātum) 'seized; deposited; captive, prisoner'.

šaknum (šakin- [fem. sg. see §§5.1, 5.4]; Verbal Adj. of šakānum) 'placed, lying, situated, located, present; established, appointed; endowed, provided'; substantivized, 'governor'.

šarqum (šariq-; Verbal Adj. of šarāqum) 'stolen'.

 $t\bar{a}bum$ ($t\bar{a}b$ -; Verbal Adj. of $ti\bar{a}bum$, Vocab. 9) 'pleasant, pleasing (to: eli), sweet, fine, good'.

Adverb:

ul, less often ula 'not'.

- 14. alpū ša awīlim īnam ša bēlim imhurū.
- 15. wardū marṣūtum ištu dannatim ana nārim rapaštim ihliqū.
- 16. ina kanākim ša ṭuppī ul nigmur.
- 17. qātam ana bītim maqtim aškun.

H. Write in Akkadian:

- 1. They are the youth's mother's oxen.
- 2. The king imposed (a tribute of) silver and gold on the conquered town.
- 3. The sick man put fine oil on (his) head.
- 4. The mothers of the youths reached the center of the fortified city.
- 5. You (fs) placed the entire (amount of) silver under seal.
- 6. The lords of the city approached the king of the land.
- 7. Foreign youths stole the governor's beer (and) used (it) up.
- 8. Famine fell upon the land; we became sick.

LESSON FIVE

5.1 Assimilation of n

The consonant n nearly always assimilates completely to a following consonant; the following consonant is then doubled (i.e., $nC_1 > C_1C_1$). As examples, consider the Verbal Adjectives $\check{s}aknum$ with base $\check{s}akin$ -'placed' and qatnum with base qatan-'thin, fine'. In the feminine singular of these adjectives, the final n of the base assimilates to the t of the feminine; the plural forms are not affected by this sound change, since the final n precedes a vowel in those forms:

šaknum, fem. sg. šakittum (< šakintum); mp šaknūtum; fp šaknūtum; qatnum, fem. sg. qatattum (< qatantum); mp qatnūtum; fp qatnātum.

Another set of examples of this sound change is offered by nouns of the pattern pirist, such as mihirtum 'copy' (for details on noun patterns, see §32.2); pirist nouns from roots whose third radical is n show assimilation of n before the fem. t in the sg., and syncope of the second i of the pattern (§4.1) in the pl.:

libittum (< libintum), pl. libnātum (< libinātum) 'brick'; nidittum (< nidintum), pl. nidnātum (< nidinātum) 'gift, present'.

Still another example of the assimilation of n appears in the common noun $\check{s}attum$, originally $\check{s}antum$, 'year', the pl. of which is $\check{s}an\bar{a}tum$.

The assimilation of n is also found in verbs whose first radical is n, for which see §5.3 below.

Exceptions to the assimilation of n regularly occur in Verbal Adjectives of roots whose second radical is n, such as kankum 'sealed' and enšum 'weak', and in certain loanwords from Sumerian, such as entum 'high priestess'. (There are also sporadic exceptions in forms like those cited above, such as qatantum for expected qatattum, nidintum for expected nidittum; some of these may be dialectal variations, but most probably reflect morphographemic writings, a subject to be taken up in a later lesson [§18.4].)

5.2 Weak Verbs

Weak verbs are those with roots containing one or more radicals susceptible to phonological changes under certain conditions. Such verbs will be designated by a Roman numeral, indicating the radical affected, followed by the "weak" consonant in question. For example, I-n denotes verbs with first radical n (see the next section), while II-w denotes verbs with second radical w. The consonants that give rise to weak verbs are n, or \emptyset , since "simply disappears in many environments), w, and y. In certain instances, we will refer to verbs more broadly as II-weak or III-weak; these designations indicate that the second or third radical, respectively, is ", w, or y, since these often behave similarly.

5.3 The G Infinitive, Preterite, and Verbal Adjective: Verbs I-n

In the G Preterite of verbs I-n, the first radical n is always followed by another consonant, and therefore always assimilates, as illustrated by the following paradigms of $nad\bar{a}num$ (Preterite theme vowel i) 'to give' and $naq\bar{a}rum$ (Preterite u) 'to tear down':

	$nadar{a}num$	$naqar{a}rum$
3cs	iddin	iqqur
2ms	taddin	taqqur
2fs	$taddinar{\imath}$	$taqqurar{\imath}$
1cs	addin	aqqur
3mp	$iddinar{u}$	$iqqurar{u}$
3fp	$iddinar{a}$	$iqqurar{a}$
2cp	$taddinar{a}$	$taqqurar{a}$
1cp	niddin	niqqur

The G Infinitive and Verbal Adjective of verbs I-n are regular, since the initial n is always followed by a vowel in such forms: $naq\bar{a}rum$, naqir.

5.4 Sound Changes before the Feminine Marker t

A number of consonants undergo some modification when they appear immediately before the marker t of the feminine singular. We have just seen above in §5.1 that n as third radical assimilates completely to the fem. sg. t in Verbal Adjectives and in the noun pattern pirist as in, šaknum, fem. šakittum; qatnum, fem. qatattum; nidittum (< nidintum) 'gift, present'.

The consonants d and t also assimilate completely to the t of the fem. sg.; e.g., in Verbal Adjectives; plural forms are regular: kašdum, fem. kašittum (mp $kašd\bar{u}tum$, fp $kašd\bar{u}tum$); paqdum 'entrusted', fem. paqittum (mp $paqd\bar{u}tum$, fp $paqd\bar{u}tum$); $m\bar{u}dum$ 'much', fem. $m\bar{u}ttum$ (mp $m\bar{u}d\bar{u}tum$, fp $m\bar{u}d\bar{u}tum$); baltum, fem. baltum (mp baltum);

in pirist nouns: $ki\check{s}ittum$ ($\langle *ki\check{s}idtum;$ pl. $ki\check{s}d\bar{a}tum$) 'conquest, acquisition'; piqittum ($\langle *piqidtum;$ pl. $piqd\bar{a}tum$) 'delivery; inspection'.

Exceptions to these changes are rare.

The consonants s, s, and z normally become \check{s} before the fem. sg. t:

in Verbal Adjectives; the plural forms are regular: parsum 'separated', fem. parištum (mp parsūtum, fp parsūtum); maḥṣum, fem. ma-ḥištum (mp maḥṣūtum, fp maḥṣātum); marṣum, fem. maruštum (mp marsūtum, fp marsūtum); in pirist forms: pirištum (root p-r-s) 'secret'.

As with the assimilation of n, occasional exceptions, in which s, s, and z appear before the fem. t unchanged, are attested.

5.5 Verbs With Two Accusatives

Some Akkadian verbs may govern two direct objects, both in the accusative case, where English verbs have only one, with the other object (from the Akkadian point of view) rendered by a prepositional phrase. (A rare English verb that takes two objects is 'to envy', as in 'I envy him his knack with languages'.) Two main types of verbs with double accusative may be distinguished, according to their English equivalents. In one, the first accusative (usually a person, less often a thing) is translated as a direct object and the second requires the preposition 'with', as in 'to provide/satisfy/anoint/burn/clothe/touch/punish/surround someone /something with something'. Examples are $paq\bar{a}dum$ (Pret. ipqid), which may mean 'to provide someone with something', and $pas\bar{a}sum$ (ipsus) 'to anoint someone with something':

amtam šikaram tapqid 'you (ms) provided the female slave with beer'; qaqqadam ša šarrim šamnam ipšuš \bar{u} 'they (m) anointed the king's head with oil'.

In the second type, one accusative, a thing, is rendered as a direct object and the other, a person, is translated with the preposition 'from', as in 'to receive/request/claim/take away something from someone':

awīlam eqlam abqur 'I claimed (baqārum) the field from the man'.

Usually the second object in this type is a pronoun suffixed to the verb; object suffixes are covered in §18.2, but an example may be cited here:

 $kaspam\ amhuršu$ 'I received silver from him' (- $\check{s}u$ = 'him', acc.).

Frequently, one of the objects is replaced by a prepositional phrase (as is normally the case in English):

šikaram ana amtim tapqid; qaqqadam ša šarrim ina šamnim ipšušū; eqlam itti awīlim abqur.

Since only certain verbs take two direct objects, the student should not use this double-accusative construction in the English-to-Akkadian exercises unless it is explicitly noted for the verb in question in the Vocabulary in which it is introduced.

5.6 Prepositions with Verbs

The range of meaning of certain Akkadian prepositions and prepositional phrases requires comment. In particular, it will have been noted that the preposition ina is primarily locative and instrumental in meaning ('in; with, by'), yet may in some situations mean 'from', as in amtum ina bītim iḥliq 'the slave escaped from the house'.

This phenomenon has a simple explanation: the preposition ina denotes the location of its object before the action of the verb ('escaped from within, from being in the house'; the slave was in the house before her escape). A similar explanation underlies the use of itti and ina qātim ša for 'from' with verbs of taking, receiving, and seizing:

kaspam itti awīlim amḫur 'I received the silver from the man' ('from with the man'; the silver was 'with the man' before 'I received' it); hurāṣam ina qātim ša šarrāqim niṣbat 'we seized the gold from the thief' (the gold was 'in the hand of the thief' before 'we seized').

6.1 Vowel Changes due to Consonant Loss

It was noted in §3.1 (p. 16) that Akkadian lost a number of consonants known from other Semitic languages. Five Proto-Semitic consonants, called alephs by Assyriologists, merged in Akkadian into a single consonant, ²; this Akkadian ² was in turn lost in most phonological environments. The five Proto-Semitic consonants in question are:

The consonants w and y were also lost whenever they stood immediately before another consonant; in such cases, they too may be referred to as alephs:

$$w = {}^{\circ}_{6} \qquad y = {}^{\circ}_{7}$$

The loss of ³1–7 resulted in several other phonological changes, which are described in the following paragraphs.

(a) If the consonant that dropped out stood at the beginning or end of a word, no further change occurred:

Note that w was not lost word-initially: wardum 'male slave', $was\bar{a}bum$ 'to dwell'.

(b) The loss of one of 3 _{1–7} that stood directly before or after another consonant caused the lengthening of the immediately preceding vowel (marked in transcription with a macron): e.g.,

(The Old Babylonian developments of Proto-Semitic *aw and *ay were \bar{u} and $\bar{\imath}$ respectively, as in $m\bar{u}tum < *mawtum$ 'death' and $b\bar{\imath}tum < *baytum$ 'house'.)

- (c) When any of ${}^{3}_{1-7}$ stood between two vowels, its loss left those vowels contiguous, as in $*kal\bar{a}^{3}um \rightarrow *kal\bar{a}um$; $*ibniy\bar{u} \rightarrow *ibni\bar{u}$; $*hadum \rightarrow *hadum$. In Old Babylonian, most pairs of contiguous vowels contract to one vowel, which is marked in transcription with a circumflex. Contiguous vowels contract according to the following rules:
- (1) Sequences of long or short e or i followed by long or short a remain uncontracted:

rabiam 'great (ms, acc.)'; ilqeā 'they (f) took';
```

an original long \bar{e} or $\bar{\iota}$ that remains as the first vowel in most such sequences is shortened (i.e., a long vowel does not usually occur immediately before another vowel):

k\bar{\imath}+am > kiam 'thus'; mahr\bar{\imath}+\bar{a}tum > mahri\bar{a}tum 'former (fp)'.

Note that the presence of the i or e in some examples, such as rabiam 'great (acc.)', constitutes an exception to the rule of vowel syncope, as already noted in §4.1.

(2) A long \bar{a} or \bar{e} followed by long or short i contracts to \hat{e} :

banā+im > banêm 'to build (gen.)';

šemē+im > šemêm 'to hear (gen.)';

purussā+ī > purussê 'decisions (gen.-acc.)'.

Note that only long \bar{a} and \bar{e} are affected by this rule; short a and e are affected by rule (3).

(3) In all other sequences of contiguous vowels, the vowels contract to a long vowel, marked in transcription with a circumflex, that is the quality of the original second vowel; some examples:

imla+\bar{a}>iml\hat{a} 'they (f) filled' ban\bar{a}+am>ban\hat{a}m 'to build (acc.)' rabi+im>rab\hat{i}m 'great (ms, gen.)' rabi+um>rab\hat{u}m 'great (ms, nom.)' ibni+\bar{u}>ibn\hat{u} 'they (m) built' tamla+\bar{\iota}>taml\hat{\iota} 'you (fs) filled' tamla+\bar{\iota}>tamla+\bar{\iota}>taml\hat{\iota} 'you (fs) filled' tamla+\bar{\iota}>tamla+\bar{\iota}>taml\hat{\iota} 'you (fs) filled' tamla+\bar{\iota}>tamla+\bar{\iota}>tamla+\bar{\iota}>tamla+\bar{\iota}>tamla+\bar{\iota}>tamla+\bar{\iota}>tamla+\bar{\iota}>tamla+\bar{\iota}>tamla+\bar{\iota}>tamla+\bar{\iota}>tamla+\bar{\iota}>tamla+\bar{\iota}>tamla+\bar{\iota}>tamla+\bar{\iota}>tamla+\bar{\iota}>tamla+\bar{\iota}>tamla+\bar{\iota}>tamla+\bar{\iota}>tamla+\bar{\iota}>tamla+\bar{\iota}>tamla+\bar{\iota}>tamla+\bar{\iota}>tamla+\bar{\iota}>tamla+\bar{\iota}>tamla+\bar{\iota}>tamla+\bar{\iota}>tamla+\bar{\iota}>tamla+\bar{\iota}>tam

There are some instances in which intervocalic ³ was not lost, namely, in certain forms of verbs II-weak (see §29.1) and of doubly-weak verbs (§21.3), where <sup>3</sup> is morphologically significant; in certain pronominal forms (see §6.3 below); in some Sumerian loanwords.

The features outlined in the preceding paragraphs are illustrated more fully in the following paradigms:

(1) The base of the demonstrative adjective meaning 'this, these' was originally *hanniy- (for the demonstratives in general, see §6.3 below); with the loss of the initial h and the base-final y, the declension of this word is:

SING. nom. ann\hat{u}m (hanniyum) ann\bar{t}tum (hanniytum)
gen. ann\hat{u}m (hanniyim) ann\bar{t}tum (hanniytim)
acc. anniam (hanniyam) ann\bar{t}tam (hanniytam)

PLUR. nom. ann\hat{u}tum (hanniy\bar{u}tum) g.-a. ann\hat{u}tim (hanniy\bar{u}tum) anniatim (hanniy\bar{u}tum) anniatim (hanniy\bar{u}tum)
```

(2) The noun 'decision' was originally * $puruss\bar{a}^{3}um$; its declension is:

SING. nom. purussûm (<*puruss\bar{a}^{\circ}um) gen. purussêm (<*puruss\bar{a}^{\circ}im) acc. purussâm (<*puruss\bar{a}^{\circ}am)
PLUR. nom. purussû (<*puruss\bar{a}^{\circ}\bar{u}) g.-a. purussê (<*puruss\bar{a}^{\circ}\bar{t})

 $^{\circ}_{3}$ (* $^{\dot{h}}$) and $^{\circ}_{4}$ (* c) had a further effect on the vocalism of the language before they were lost: they caused nearby short a and long \bar{a} to become, respectively, short e and long \bar{e} ; e.g.,

The standard grammars of Akkadian state that ${}^{3}_{5}$ (* \acute{g}) also caused the change of a to e; but there are few clear examples of this, and so we will refer to ${}^{3}_{3-4}$ as causing the change a > e (rather than the traditional ${}^{3}_{3-5}$).

6.2 Denominative Adjectives

The ending $-\bar{\imath}$ is added to the base of many nouns, including proper nouns, to form adjectives that denote 'pertaining to, related to X', where "X" is the base noun: e.g.,

maḥrûm (base maḥrī-) 'former, earlier, previous, first', from maḥrum 'front, front side';
elûm (base elī-) 'upper', from elum 'top, upper part';
šaplûm (base šaplī-) 'lower', from šaplum 'bottom, underside';

Denominative adjectives formed by the addition of $-\bar{\imath}$ to place names are referred to as gentilic adjectives:

Akkadûm (base Akkadī-) 'Akkadian', from Akkade 'Akkad'.

Denominative adjectives are declined like $ann\hat{u}m$ in the preceding section:

		MASCULINE	FEMININE
SING.	nom.	$mahr\hat{u}m$	$mahrar{\imath}tum$
	gen.	$mahr \hat{\imath} m$	$mahrar{\imath}tim$
	acc.	mahriam	$mahrar{\imath}tam$
PLUR.	nom.	$mahr\hat{u}tum$	$mahriar{a}tum$
	ga.	$mahr \hat{u}tim$	$mahriar{a}tim$

6.3 Demonstrative Adjectives and Pronouns

The most common near demonstrative adjective in Old Babylonian is $ann\hat{u}m$ (base anni-; for the complete declension see §6.1 above), which is best translated 'this, these'.

kaspam anniam ina qātim ša maruštim amhur 'I received this silver from the sick woman'; šīpātim ana amātim anniātim niddin 'We gave wool to these female slaves'.

annûm follows other adjectives:

šamnam tābam anniam aṣṣur 'I protected this fine oil'.

The fem. sg. annītum may also be used as a neuter demonstrative pronoun, 'this (thing, matter, etc.)'.

The most common forms for 'that, those' are the third person independent personal pronouns. In the declension of these forms, the gen. and acc. have the same form, and there is a special dative case that is used immediately after ana. Alternative forms listed below for the sing. gen.-acc. and dative reflect dialectal variation within Old Babylonian.

	MASCULINE SINGULAR	FEMININE SINGULAR
nom.	šū	šī
genacc.	šuāti, šuātu, šâti, šâtu	šuāti, šâti, šiāti
dative	šuāšim, šâšim, šâšum	šuāšim, šâšim, šiāšim
	MASCULINE PLURAL	FEMININE PLURAL
nom.	šunu	šina
genacc.	šunūti	šināti
dative	šunūšim	[šināšim unattested]

This pronoun is called the anaphoric pronoun, since it always refers to something already mentioned or known. Thus, while it may be translated 'that, those', it is sometimes better rendered 'the aforementioned' or 'said' or even 'this, these'. When used attributively, the forms follow and agree with the noun they modify:

amtum šī aššatum ša wardim halqim 'That womanservant is the wife of the missing manservant';

alpam šuātu ana eṭlim iddin 'He gave said ox to the youth';

šīpātum qatnātum ana bītātim šināti 'The fine wool is for the aforementioned estates'.

Another demonstrative is $ull\hat{u}m$ (base ulli-; declined like $ann\hat{u}m$), meaning 'that, those' and 'distant'. It occurs infrequently in OB texts.

LESSON SEVEN

7.1 The Sound Change i > e

The vowels i and $\bar{\imath}$ were apparently pronounced as e and \bar{e} , respectively, when they occurred before the consonants r and \underline{h} . This sound change is not consistently indicated in the writing system, however, so that byforms are frequently attested, as in laberum and labirum (and fem. labertum and labirtum) 'old'; meḥrum and miḥrum 'copy, reply'.

In some cases the writing system simply does not adequately distinguish the vowels i and e (see §9.2), so that it is not clear whether we should transcribe, for example, nakirum or nakerum for 'enemy'.

In this textbook, transcriptions with both i and e will appear for these forms, as they do in actual texts and in Assyriological publications.

The third person and the 1cp verbal prefixes may also be affected by this phonological process. This occurs infrequently, however, and is not detectable in the writing system in Preterite forms, where ir- and er- are written the same, as are ih- and eh-. In the form called the Durative (§12.1), however, note irakkab, less often erakkab, 'he mounts'; ihalliqā, less often ehalliqā, 'they (f) escape'.

7.2 Vowel Harmony (a > e)

In Old Babylonian, a-vowels and e-vowels are incompatible in the same word, with certain notable exceptions considered below. Whenever there is an e or \bar{e} in a word, an expected a or \bar{a} in most instances becomes e or \bar{e} as well. For example, the plural of the noun $b\bar{e}ltum$ 'lady' (the fem. of $b\bar{e}lum$) is $b\bar{e}l\bar{e}tum$ < $b\bar{e}l\bar{a}tum$;

the 2ms of the verb 'to hear', originally $*tašma^c$, becomes first $*tašme^c$ (see §6.1, end), then tašme (§6.1(b)), and finally tešme, the form usually attested in OB texts.

Many forms show a change of a (or \bar{a}) to e (or \bar{e}) even when the culprit e-vowel no longer appears because of subsequent vowel contraction;

note, for example:

telq\hat{\imath} 'you (fs) took' (<*telqe\bar{\imath}<*telqe\bar{\imath}<*telqeh\bar{\imath}<*telqeh\bar{\imath}<*telqeh\bar{\imath}>); leq\hat{\imath}m 'to take' (Infinitive; <*leq\bar{\imath}um<*leq\bar{\imath}hum<*leq\bar{\imath}hum<*leq\bar{\imath}hum>).
```

Exceptions to vowel harmony, i.e., instances in which a and \bar{a} do not become e and \bar{e} , are the following:

- (a) a in the accusative sg. ending -am, as in $b\bar{e}lam$;
- (b) \bar{a} of the dual nom. ending $-\bar{a}n$, as in $\bar{s}\bar{e}p\bar{a}n$;
- (c) $-\bar{a}$ of 3fp and 2cp verbs: $t\bar{e}pu\bar{s}a$ ($*tehpu\bar{s}a$) 'you (pl.) made';
- (d) a as a linking vowel immediately before possessive pronominal suffixes (§11.1), as in $t\hat{e}rta\check{s}u$ 'his instruction';
- (e) a and \bar{a} in pronominal suffixes (§§11.1, 18.2), as in $b\bar{e}lka$ 'your (ms) lord'; $\bar{e}zib\check{s}in\bar{a}ti$ 'I left them (f)';
- (f) a of the Ventive ending -am (§15.2): tērubam 'you (ms) came in';
- (g) \hat{e} that results from the contraction of $\bar{a}+\bar{i}$ (§6.1(c2)) does not cause a-vowels to change: $ban\hat{e}m < *ban\bar{a}im < *ban\bar{a}yim$ 'to build (Infinitive, gen.)'; note: the mark $\stackrel{\checkmark}{=}$ over a vowel indicates that the vowel may be long or short (called an "anceps vowel");
- (h) e that results from i by the phenomenon described above in §7.1 does not normally cause a-vowels to change; note, e.g., nakerum and laberum 'old'; a notable exception to the exception, however, is seḥrum 'small, young', the base of which is seḥer-, from earlier saher- < ṣaḥir- (fs seḥertum; fp ṣeḥrētum);
- (i) the change of a to e before a following e or \bar{e} does not always occur in some verb forms; thus, we find both $e\breve{s}me$ and, less often, $a\breve{s}me$ (see above) for 'I heard'.

Other phonological conditions also gave rise to e-vowels, apparently sporadically. One such condition was the presence of both a preceding 2 ₁ (the Proto-Semitic *2) and a following sonorant (l, m, n, r), as in erṣetum <arṣatum 'earth' (the second e is due to vowel harmony);

enšum < anšum 'weak';

7.3 The G Infinitive, Preterite, and Verbal Adjective: Verbs III-weak

Verbs III—weak are verbs in which the third radical was one of the consonants that dropped out of the language (see §6.1). The forms of these verbs present very little difficulty once the rules of vowel contraction and vowel harmony have been learned.

Forms that would have ended with the third radical, such as the 3cs (cf. iprus), end simply with the theme-vowel, as in ibni 'she built' (\langle *ibniy; i.e., root originally *b-n-y); tamla 'you (ms) filled' (\langle *tamla^{2}; root originally *m-l-^{2}); nilge 'we took' (\langle *nilgeh \langle *nilgeh; root originally *l-q-h).

```

Forms in which the third radical would have occurred before a consonant, such as the fem. sg. of the Verbal Adjective, have a long vowel before that consonant:

šemītum 'heard (fs, nom.)' (<*šami<sup>c</sup>tum); zakūtum 'clear (fs, nom.)' (<*zakuwtum).
```

In forms with a vocalic ending, that is, an ending that begins with a vowel, such as the 3mp (cf. $iprus-\bar{u}$) or the Infinitive ($par\bar{a}s-um$), vowel contraction takes place according to the rules outlined in §6.1(c):

ibn\hat{u} 'they (m) built' (< *ibni\bar{u} <*ibniy\bar{u}); taml\hat{a} 'you (pl) filled' (< *tamla\bar{a} <*tamla^{\bar{a}}\bar{a}); ilqe\bar{a} 'they (f) took' (< *ilqeh\bar{a} <*ilqeh\bar{a}); ban\hat{u}m 'to build' (Infinitive, nom.; < *ban\bar{a}um <*ban\bar{a}yum); zak\hat{u}m 'clear (ms, gen.)' (< *zakuim <*zakuwim).

The Infinitives of verbs III—weak, originally of the pattern $par\bar{a}s$ as in sound verbs, have bases ending in $-\bar{a}$ ($-\bar{e}$ in verbs III—e), and thus are declined like the noun $puruss\hat{u}m$ given in §6.1 (end); examples are $ban\hat{u}m$ (* $ban\bar{u}m$ (* $ban\bar{u}m$ (* $ban\bar{u}m$) 'to build' and $leq\hat{u}m$ 'to take' (* $leq\bar{e}um$ (* $laq\bar{e}um$ (* $laq\bar{e}hum$):

nom. ban\hat{u}m leq\hat{u}m gen. ban\hat{e}m leq\hat{e}m acc. ban\hat{a}m leq\bar{e}am

(b) Preterite

In general, the Preterite theme vowels of these verbs were determined by the (now lost) third radical:

roots originally III–y have the theme-vowel i, as in ibni 'he built', and may be referred to as Verbs III-i;

roots originally III–w have u, as in ihdu 'she rejoiced' ($\langle ihduw \rangle$, root originally h–d–w), and thus may be called verbs III-u; verbs originally III– $^{\circ}_{1-2}$ (i.e., III– $^{\circ}$ and III– h) have a, as in imla 'he filled' ($^{}imla^{\circ}$), and may be called verbs III–a; verbs originally III $-^3$ 3-4 (III $-^*h$; III $-^*e$) have e, as in ilqe 'she took' (< *ilqeh (*ilqeh), and may be referred to as verbs III-e.

In verbs III-e, the a in the 1cs and second person prefixes usually becomes e in accordance with the vowel harmony rule outlined in the preceding section; exceptions, with a, are common in the 1cs, rare in the second person forms.

	$ban\hat{u}m$ (III $-i$)	$had\hat{u}m$ (III– u)	$mal\hat{u}m$ (III– a)	leqûm (III–e)

2cp	$tabniar{a}$	$tahd\hat{a}$	$taml\hat{a}$	$telqear{a}$ / $talqear{a}$
1cp	nibni	nihdu	nimla	nilqe

(c) Verbal Adjective

The second vowel of the base of the Verbal Adjective, as in sound verbs, is usually i, as in bani- (<*baniy-) 'well-formed'; mali- (<*mali^{2}-) 'filled, full'. hadi- (<*hadiw-) 'happy';

```

For a few (but not most) stative verbs, the theme-vowel is not i, as in zaku- 'clear' (*zakuw-).

In verbs III–e, the original a of the first syllable usually becomes e:

leqi- 'taken' (less often laqi-; < *laqih-).

Note that, because of their respective vowel contractions, the nom. ms form of a III-weak Verbal Adjective is identical to the nom. form of the Infinitive: $ban\hat{u}m$ (Vbl. Adj. $*^baniyum$; Infinitive $^*ban\bar{a}yum$). Other forms of the declension differ for most verbs, however.

Below is the full declension of three Verbal Adj.s of roots III-weak; note the long theme-vowel in the fem. sg. ($rab\bar{\imath}tum < *rabiytum$, etc.).

LESSON SEVEN

7.4 The Coordinators -ma, u, and \bar{u} ($l\bar{u}$)

The conjunction u is an independent word that may be used to connect both noun phrases, as in $abum\ u\ ummum$ 'father and mother', and sentences.

The enclitic particle -ma is a coordinating conjunction that may be attached to the end of any finite verb form (or other predicate). Any final short vowel is lengthened when -ma is added; as a result, stress invariably falls on the syllable before -ma:

ibni 'he built', but ibnī-ma 'he built and ...';

iṣbat 'she seized', but iṣbat-ma 'she seized and ...'

taṣbatā 'you (pl) seized', but taṣbatā-ma 'you seized and ...'

Note that a word-final n normally assimilates to -ma (§5.1):

```
iddim-ma (<iddin-ma) 'she gave and ...'; aškum-ma (<aškun-ma) 'I placed and ...'
```

In a similar vein, the consonants b and, very rarely, p are also assimilated to a following -ma:

```
irkam-ma (< irkab-ma) 'he rode and ...'

These assimilations are frequently not indicated in the writing system; i.e., we find written both iddim-ma and iddin-ma, both irkam-ma and irkab-ma. See further §18.4.

Both -ma and u are used for 'and' to create compound sentences. They occur in different environments, however, and have different semantic connotations.

- (a) -ma normally connects clauses with verbs of the same mood (i.e., indicative or injunctive), whereas u has no such restriction.
- (b) Clauses connected with u bear equal semantic or thought stress, and are reversible; that is, the clauses could be reversed without altering their essential meaning or relationship to each other. When clauses are connected with -ma, the main thought stress, the emphasis, lies with the last clause. Further, clauses connected with -ma may not be reversed without changing the meaning.

(c) Clauses connected with -ma are logically related in some way. The first clause normally presents the conditions that result in the action of the second clause. The first clause may be said to be "logically subordinate" to the second; that is, the first clause, although formally a main clause, is often best thought of as an unmarked (apart from -ma) subordinate clause, subordinate to the clause following -ma. Several interpretations are often possible:

ilū šarram ul iškunū-ma mātum ihliq

'The gods did not install a king, and so (or and then) the land perished.'

'Because/When/If the gods did not install a king, the land perished.'

'The gods not having installed a king, the land perished.'

With u, no such dependent relationship is implied:

bītam işşurū u kaspam itti šarrim imhurū

'They (m) kept the house and (also) they received silver from the king.'

As the last example suggests, u as a conjunction between clauses may often be rendered 'and also, moreover, furthermore, additionally, as well'.

(d) There is no Akkadian word meaning 'but'. Rather, both u and -ma may be translated 'but' in certain instances, particularly when one of the two clauses connected by them contains a negative, as in dayyānum ana šadîm ikšud-ma ṣābam nakram ul iṭṭul 'The judge arrived at the mountain, but did not see the enemy troop.'

(e) Clauses are in rare instances connected by $-ma\ u$. Such clauses contain the same mood, are irreversible, and the emphasis or thought stress is on the first clause. $-ma\ u$ is best translated 'and also' or 'and then':

mutum ana aššatim kaspam iddim-ma u mimmê ša bītim ša abim ana aššatim ušallim 'The husband gave silver to (his) wife and also restored (ušallim) to (his) wife the property (mimmê) of (her) father's house'.

(f) The conjunction 'or' is expressed in Akkadian by \bar{u} or by \bar{u} $l\bar{u}$. The word \bar{u} is indistinguishable from u 'and' in the writing system, so that the presence of the former is frequently uncertain unless it is followed by $l\bar{u}$. There are several patterns of coordination possible with \bar{u} $(l\bar{u})$; for example, '(either) he gave or he took' may be expressed by any of the following (see also Vocab. 16 and §29.3):

 $iddin \ \bar{u} \ ilqe$ $iddin \ \bar{u} \ l\bar{u} \ ilqe$ $l\bar{u}$ iddin \bar{u} $l\bar{u}$ ilqe \bar{u} $l\bar{u}$ iddin \bar{u} $l\bar{u}$ ilqe

Clauses connected with \bar{u} ($l\bar{u}$) have the same verbal mood, and, because of the nature of the conjunction, are reversible.

7.5 Asyndeton

Clauses may also follow one another without a coordinator. When a semantic relationship exists between two clauses that are not formally connected (i.e., that are not joined by a conjunction), they are said to be asyndetically joined (or, joined with asyndeton). Essentially, each of the coordinators discussed above in §7.4 may be deleted; the use of asyndeton lends distinctiveness, emphasis, or urgency to the clauses so joined:

šarrum wardam iṭrud wardum ul ikšud 'The king sent a slave, (but) the slave did not arrive.'

EXERCISES

A. VOCABULARY 7.

Verbs:

banûm (Preterite ibni) 'to build, rebuild, construct, create'; Verbal Adj. banûm (bani-) 'well-made, well-formed; fine'.

hadûm (iḥdu) 'to rejoice, be happy (at, in something: ina or ana)';Verbal Adj. ḥadûm (ḥadi-) 'happy, joyful, rejoicing'.

leqûm (ilqe) 'to take (in one's hand), accept, receive, obtain (from: itti), take along, take away; to take (a wife), marry'.

malûm (imla) 'to become full of, fill with' (+ acc.; e.g., eqlum mê imla 'the field filled with water, became full of water'); rarely: 'to fill' (something: acc.; with something: a second acc., as in bēlum bītam šīpātim qatnātim imla 'the owner filled the house with fine wool'); Verbal Adj. malûm (mali-) 'filled, full'.

rabûm (irbi) 'to become large, great; to grow (up), increase'; Verbal Adj. rabûm (rabi-) 'big, large; great, important; mature'.

šemûm (išme) 'to hear; to listen; to listen to, obey'; Verbal Adj. šemûm (šemi-) 'heard; having heard, informed, aware; obedient'. zakûm (izku) 'to become clean, clear; to become free (of claims, obligations)'; Verbal Adj. zakûm (zaku-) 'clear; clean(ed), pure; free (of claims)'.

Nouns:

bēltum (pl. bēlētum) 'lady; mistress, (female) owner'.
eqlum (pl. eqlētum) 'plot of land, field; area, region'.
mû (always pl.; gen.-acc. mê) 'water, liquid'.
narûm (base naru-/narā-; Sum. lw.) 'stela'.
qīštum (pl. qīšātum) 'gift; fee; votive offering'.
ṣibittum (fem.) 'prison, imprisonment' (cf. ṣabātum).
ṭēmum (pl. ṭēmū and ṭēmētum) 'information, news, report; command; mind, attitude, intention, decision'; ṭēmam ṣabātum 'to take action (concerning: ana)'; ṭēmam šakānum 'to give a report, information (to someone: itti [or mahar, Vocab. 12])'.

Adjective:

ṣeḥrum (base ṣeḥer-; Verbal Adj. of ṣeḥērum, §21.2) 'small, young'; as a noun: 'child'.

Conjunction:

-ma 'and (then)' (see §7.4).

- B. Give the full Preterite of $rab\hat{u}m$, $zak\hat{u}m$, and $\check{s}em\hat{u}m$.
- C. Decline in full (sg. and pl.) the following phrases:

clear field great lady well-formed stela previous command small throne this gift joyful prince full chariot

D. Translate:

LESSON EIGHT

8.1 The G Infinitive, Preterite, and Verbal Adjective: Verbs I^{-2} (I^{-a} and I^{-e}); $al\bar{a}kum$

The verbs presented in this section are those in which the first radical was $^{\circ}$, h, h, $^{\circ}$, g, or y (i.e., $^{\circ}_{1-5}$ or $^{\circ}_{7}$; not, however, w, for which see §10.1). The Infinitives, Preterites, and Verbal Adjectives of these verbs exhibit the developments brought about by the loss of those consonants, already covered in §6.1 and §7.2. Specifically,

(a) In the Infinitive and Verbal Adjective, since the weak initial radical appeared at the beginning of the form (cf. $par\bar{a}sum$ and parsum), no lengthening of the following vowel took place:

amārum 'to see' (< *'amārum); alākum 'to go' (< *halākum); arkum 'long' (< *'arkum); arītum 'pregnant' (< *hariytum).
```

(b) In the Preterite, on the other hand, since the weak initial radical stood before another consonant (cf. iprus), the vowel of the prefix was always lengthened:

\bar{\imath}zib 'he left' (\langle *i^czib \rangle; t\bar{a}mur\bar{\imath} 'you (fs) saw' (\langle *ta^{\imath}mur\bar{\imath} \rangle.

(c) Roots in which the first radical was 3 3-4 (i.e., h, c) also exhibit the change of original a-vowels to e-vowels, with the regular exceptions of the acc. ending -am in the Infinitive and Verbal Adj., and the $-\bar{a}$ of the 3fp and 2cp in the Preterite:

epēšum 'to do' (< *ḥapāšum; acc. epēšam);</li> epšum 'done' (< *ḥapšum; acc. epšam);</li> ēpuš 'I did' (< *aḥpuš); tēpušā 'you (pl) did' (< *taḥpušā); note that forms with ā in the prefix, such as āpuš and tāpušā, do not occur.</li>

Verbs in which the first radical was y, such as $e \bar{s} \bar{e} r u m$ 'to be(come) straight' and $e \bar{s} \bar{e} r u m$ 'to draw', have merged with verbs $I - ^3 - 4$ in nearly all forms, and will accordingly be presented with the latter, usually without further comment, throughout this textbook.

(d) We may refer to verbs in which the first radical was ${}^{3}_{1-2}$ (e.g., $am\bar{a}rum$ 'to see') as verbs I–a, and to those in which the first radical was ${}^{3}_{3-4}$ or y as I–e. The few roots originally I– ${}^{3}_{5}$ either have initial h or follow the I–a (I– ${}^{3}_{1-2}$) type or, rarely, the I–e (I– ${}^{3}_{3-4}$) type.

LESSON EIGHT 55

(e) Below are presented the Preterites and Verbal Adjectives of the I–a verbs $am\bar{a}rum$ (Preterite $\bar{\imath}mur$) 'to see' and $ar\bar{a}kum$ ($\bar{\imath}rik$) 'to become long' and the I–e verbs $ep\bar{e}\check{s}um$ ($\bar{\imath}pu\check{s}$) 'to do' and $ez\bar{e}bum$ ($\bar{\imath}zib$) 'to leave':

(f) The very common verb $al\bar{a}kum$ 'to go' ($hal\bar{a}kum$) has an irregular G Preterite: the second radical l is doubled (as in verbs I-n), while the prefix-vowel remains short. The theme-vowel of the G Preterite is i:

8.2 The Genitive Chain

The construction that we have learned for expressing a genitival relationship ('X of Y') is governing noun (also called the nomen regens) + $\check{s}a$ + governed noun (genitive; also called the nomen rectum), as in bēlum ša bītim 'the owner of the house'.

There is, however, a more common construction for expressing a genitival relationship, namely, the simple juxtaposition of the governing and governed nouns (in that order); such a construction is called a genitive chain (or construct chain). When it is used, the governing noun, i.e., the first noun in the chain, normally appears without any case-ending (i.e., without -um/-im/-am, and thus the same for all cases; as will be seen below, masc. pl. and dual nouns do retain their case-endings). A word of this type is said to be in the bound form (or construct form; also referred to in some grammars as the status constructus); the regular form with a case-ending may be called the free form or unbound form (also called the status rectus). The governed noun, as in the construction with δa , is in the genitive. Some examples:

bēl bītim 'the owner of the house';
ana šarrat mātim 'for the queen of the land';
qaqqad awīlim tamḥaṣ 'you (ms) struck the man's head';
bītāt eṭlim 'the youth's houses'.

The removal of the case-ending, however, causes phonological changes to occur in many types of nouns, and these changes must be memorized for each noun type (see §8.3, below).

A genitive chain constitutes an inseparable unit; the governed noun (i.e., the genitive) must follow the governing noun immediately. Thus, an adjective modifying the governing noun follows the entire chain; the adjective must have the appropriate case-ending, even though the noun it modifies may be endingless:

mār šarrim ṣeḥram amḥaṣ 'I struck the king's young son'; itti bēlēt ālim rabiātim 'with the great ladies of the city'.

Since the genitive must follow its governing noun immediately, it is normally not possible for two or more genitive nouns to be dependent on one bound form, except when the genitives form a natural or logical group in the speaker's mind, as in

b\bar{e}l šamê u erşetim 'lord of heaven (šam\hat{u}, pl.) and earth (erşetum)'.
```

It is never possible for more than one bound form to govern a single genitive. Thus, to express, for example, 'the man's hand and foot', $\check{s}a$ must be used:

q\bar{a}tum\ u\ \check{s}\bar{e}pum\ \check{s}a\ b\bar{e}lim (not the incorrect q\bar{a}t\ u\ \check{s}\bar{e}p\ b\bar{e}lim).
```

Chains containing more than two elements may occur; all but the last element appear in the bound form; e.g., bīt mār šarrim 'the king's son's house'.

LESSON EIGHT 57

Infinitives often appear in the bound form; they may govern a following

- (a) objective genitive, i.e., a noun that would be the direct object if the verb were finite, as in
 - ana paqād ṣābim ikšud 'he arrived to inspect the troop' (lit.: 'for the inspecting of the troop'); or
- (b) subjective genitive, as in ina maqāt bītim 'while the house was collapsing' (lit.: 'in/during the collapsing of the house').

Adjectives may also appear in the bound form; the following genitive noun qualifies or limits the adjective in some way:

bēlum rapaš uznim 'an intelligent lord' (lit.: 'a lord wide of ear'; for the bound form of rapšum, see the next section).

8.3 The Bound Form of the Noun

As was noted in the preceding section, the bound form is distinguished from the free form in most instances by the absence of the case-endings -um/-im/-am. The loss of these endings often must also result in other phonological changes in the shape of the noun. This is the case particularly when the base ends in two consonants, as in libb- and kalb-; it will be recalled that syllables, and thus words, may not end in two consonants (see §1.2).

The following paragraphs present the rules for producing the bound form of all nouns and adjectives in the language; a chart summarizing the rules concludes the section.

(a) Masculine plural nouns. The bound forms are the same as the free (unbound) forms. Masc. pl. bound forms and dual bound forms (next paragraph) are the only bound forms that are always declined:

bēlū mātim 'the lords of the land';ana mārī šarrim 'for the king's sons';kalbī awīlim amḥaṣ 'I struck the man's dogs'.
```

(b) Duals. The final n of the free form is dropped in the bound form; no other changes occur. These bound forms, like those of masc. pl. nouns, are therefore declined:

īnā eṭlim ul iṭṭulā 'the youth's eyes did not see';
ana uznī marṣim 'for the sick man's ears';
qātī rubātim tamḥaṣī 'you (fs) struck the hands of the princess'.
```

- (c) All others, namely, singular nouns, feminine plural nouns, and all adjectives. The bound forms are derived by removing the case-endings -Vm. The shape of the bound form depends on two features:
 - (a) the ending of the noun or adjective base, i.e., whether the base (the form without the case-ending) ends in one consonant (e.g., $aw\bar{l}$ -), two consonants (libb-), or a vowel ($rub\bar{a}$ -);
 - (b) the number of syllables in the base, whether one or more.
- (c 1) Bases ending in a single consonant. For these the bound form is either simply the base or, for one-syllable bases, sometimes the base with a final -i (for all 3 cases; i.e., this -i is unrelated to the genitive marker).
- (c 1 i) Bases ending in a single consonant, more than one syllable. The bound form is simply the base:

awīl ālim 'the man of the city';
harrān šarrim 'the king's road';
qaqqad awīlim 'the man's head'.
```

Here belong all feminine plural forms and all plural adjectives:

nārāt mātim 'the rivers of the land';
ina eqlēt šarrim 'among the royal fields';
itti amāt bēlim 'with the master's womenservants';
dannūt ālim 'the mighty ones (m) of the city';
marṣāt bītim 'the sick women in (lit.: of) the house', and the G Infinitive (except of verbs III–weak), examples of which appear in §8.2 above.

We may also list here the masc. sg. bound forms of G Verbal Adjectives (except for verbs III–weak [§7.3] and verbs II–weak [§9.1]). Although these forms exhibit two consonants before the case-ending in the masc. sg. free form, their bases are of the form parVs; the masc. sg. bound form of these adjectives is thus simply the base (for the bound forms of the plurals of these, see immediately above; for the fem. sg. bound form, see below, c 2 v):

damiq ilī 'the good one (m) of the gods'; qatan kišādim 'one (m) with a thin neck' (lit.: 'the thin one of [i.e., with respect to] neck');
marus bītim 'the sick man in (lit.: of) the house'.
```

(c 1 ii) Bases ending in a single consonant, one syllable. The bound form in all cases is either simply the base or the base plus -i:

qāt rubêm imraş or qāti rubêm imraş 'the prince's hand hurt'; itti bēl mātim or itti bēli mātim 'with the lord of the land'.

LESSON EIGHT 59

The bound forms of abum and ahum always end in -i:

```
abi wardim imqut 'the slave's father fell'; aḥi šarrim ṣeḥram tamḥaṣ 'you (ms) struck the king's young brother'.
```

- (c 2) Bases ending in two consonants. The unacceptable cluster of consonants at the end of a form is usually resolved in one of three ways:
 - (a) addition of a final -i (e.g., $libb \rightarrow libbi$);
 - (b) insertion of a vowel between the two consonants (e.g., $kalb \rightarrow kalab$);
 - (c) simplification of a doubled consonant (e.g., $ekall \rightarrow ekal$).

In particular:

(c 2 i) Bases ending in a doubled consonant, one syllable. The bound form ends in -i:

ummi šarrim ina ekallim 'the king's mother is in the palace'; ana libbi ālim nikšud 'we arrived at the center of town'; tuppi dayyānī amhur 'I received the judges' tablet'.

A small number of nouns of this type have alternative bound forms, in which the final doubled consonant is simplified, and no -i is added; of the nouns encountered thus far in the vocabularies, only $\check{s}arrum$ and kakkum exhibit this feature:

šar mātim or šarri mātim 'the king of the land'; kak etlim or kakki etlim 'the youth's weapon'.

(c 2 ii) Bases ending in a doubled consonant, more than one syllable.

If the base ends in -tt-, the bound form ends in -tti:

sibitti ālim irpiš 'the city prison expanded'; lemutti ilim itṭul 'she saw the god's evil intention (lemuttum)'.
```

If the base ends in any doubled consonant except -tt-, the doubling is simplified in the bound form:

```
ekal šarrim 'the king's palace'; kunuk dayyānim 'the judge's seal (kunukkum)'.

(c 2 iii) Bases ending in two different consonants, one syllable, without feminine -t. These are nouns of the type pVrs, where V is any short vowel. The bound forms of these have the shape pVrVs, in which a copy of the vowel that appears between R_1 and R_2 is also inserted between R_2 and R_3 , as in kalab awīlim 'the man's dog';alap mutim 'the husband's ox';eqel bēltim 'the lady's field';išid bītim 'the base of the house';uzun rubêm 'the prince's ear'.

- (c 2 iv) Bases ending in consonant + feminine -t, one syllable. There are two unpredictable possibilities for the bound form; any given noun usually exhibits only one of these possibilities, which must therefore be learned for each such noun:
 - (a) Addition of -i to the base (cf. nouns like libbum and ṣibittum, above):

qīšti bēltim amḥur 'I received the lady's gift'; note also, e.g., têrtum 'order', bound form têrti.

(b) Insertion of a before the final -t, as in mārat šarrim 'the king's daughter'; similarly for amtum (amat); iltum (ilat); note also, e.g., šubtum 'dwelling', bound form šubat.

The inserted a becomes e in words with e or \bar{e} :

bēlet bītim 'the mistress of the estate'.

- (c 2 v) Bases ending in consonant + feminine -t, more than one syllable. As with one-syllable bases, there are two possibilities, but in this case they are predictable:
 - (a) For most words of this type, the bound form before other nouns has a final -i:

napišti mātim 'the life of the land'; narkabti šarrim 'the king's chariot'.

The fem. of Verbal Adjectives (except of verbs III–weak and II–weak) have bound forms of this type:

marušti rubātim 'the misfortune of the princess'; damiqti šarrim 'a favor (i.e., good thing) of the king'.

(b) Exceptions are fem. Participles (§20.1), with a inserted before the -t:

 $m\bar{a}hirtum$ (G Participle), bound form $m\bar{a}hirat;$

mušamhirtum (Š Participle; see §27.1), bound form mušamhirat.

The inserted a becomes e in words with e or \bar{e} :

ēpištum (Participle of epēšum 'to do'), bound form ēpišet.

Note: Bases of more than one syllable that end in two consonants, in which the second of those consonants is not the feminine -t, do not normally occur.

61

(c 3) Bases ending in a vowel. Most of these nouns and adjectives have their simple bases as bound forms: e.g.,

kussi šarrim 'the king's throne'.

There are, however, a number of additional forms to be noted:

(a) Words with bases ending in short -a or -u may have bound forms in -i; e.g., from $\delta ad\hat{u}m$ 'mountain', base δadu :

šadi ilī 'mountain of the gods'.

(b) Words with bases ending in a single consonant and a short vowel may have alternative bound forms without the final vowel:

rab beside rabi 'great one of'; šad beside šadi; note also, e.g., $n\bar{a}\check{s}i$ and $n\bar{a}\check{s}$, bound forms of $n\bar{a}\check{s}\hat{u}m$ (base $n\bar{a}\check{s}i$ -) 'bearer' (Participle of $na\check{s}\hat{u}m$ 'to bear'), and, like this word, all Participles of verbs III—weak (§20.1).

(c) Words with bases ending in long $-\bar{a}$ normally exhibit bound forms ending in $-\hat{e}$, although less commonly byforms in -i and in $-\bar{a}$ also occur (some final vowel always appears on these forms):

 $puruss\hat{e}$ (less often purussi and $puruss\bar{a}$) $b\bar{e}lim$ 'the lord's decision':

 $rub\hat{e}$ (less often rubi and $rub\bar{a}$) $m\bar{a}tim$ 'the prince of the country'.

Here belong also the G Infinitives of verbs III–weak:

banê bītim 'the building of the house'; leqê kaspim 'the taking of the silver'.

EXERCISES

A. VOCABULARY 8.

Verbs:

- $ah\bar{a}zum$ (Preterite $\bar{\imath}huz$) 'to seize, hold, take; to take (a wife), marry; to learn'.
- alākum (illik) 'to go, walk, move, act'; alākam epēšum 'to travel'; harrānam alākum 'to travel, undertake a military campaign; to do/perform corvée service'.
- amārum (īmur) 'to see, look at, observe; to find, discover, experience; to read (a tablet, etc.)'; Verbal Adj. amrum (amir-) 'seen, checked'.
- $ar\bar{a}kum$ ($\bar{i}rik$) 'to become long, last long; to be delayed'; Verbal Adj. arkum (arik-) 'long'.
- $ep\bar{e}\check{s}um$ ($\bar{\imath}pu\check{s}$) 'to do (something: acc.; to someone: acc. or ana); to act (according to: $k\bar{\imath}ma$), be active; to make, build, construct; to treat (someone: acc.; like: $k\bar{\imath}ma$; for [e.g., a wound]: acc.)';

alākam epēšum 'to travel'; kakkī epēšum 'to fight, do battle, make war'; Verbal Adj. epšum (epiš-) 'built, cultivated, worked'; substantivized fem. epištum (epišti; pl. epšētum) 'work; construction; act, activity, achievement'; epšēt qātim 'handiwork'; eqel epšētim 'a field worked/prepared (for something; lit.: a field of [plowing, etc.] activities)'.

erēbum (īrub) 'to enter, arrive, invade' (normally with ana: e.g., ana bītim ērub 'I entered the house').

ešērum (īšir) 'to become straight; to move straight toward, charge (with ana); to prosper'; Verbal Adj. irregularly išarum (base išar-) 'regular, normal; correct, fair, just; in good condition; prosperous'.

 $ez\bar{e}bum$ ($\bar{\imath}zib$) 'to leave, leave behind, abandon; to neglect; to leave (something: acc.; with someone: ana), entrust; to divorce; to make out (a legal document)'.

Nouns:

akalum, aklum (bound form akal) 'bread, food'.

awātum (awāt; pl. awâtum [awā + ātum]) 'word, message, command; matter, affair, thing'; awātam/awâtim amārum 'to investigate/look into a matter/case/situation'.

 $d\bar{\imath}num~(d\bar{\imath}n(i);$ pl. $d\bar{\imath}n\bar{a}tum)$ 'legal decision, verdict; legal case, lawsuit'.

puḥrum (puḥur; pl. puḥrātum) 'gathering, assembly, (council) meeting; totality'.

qarrādum (qarrād) 'warrior, hero'.

 $\check{s}umum$ ($\check{s}um(i)$; pl. $\check{s}um\bar{u}$ and $\check{s}um\bar{a}tum$) 'name; fame, reputation; line (of a tablet); meaning'.

 $\bar{u}mum\ (\bar{u}m(i); \text{pl. } \bar{u}m\bar{u} \text{ and } \bar{u}m\bar{a}tum)$ 'day, daytime'.

- B. Give the full Preterite, with meanings, of aḥāzum, alākum, erēbum, and ešērum.
- C. Write in Akkadian, using bound forms wherever possible:
 - 1. the warrior's lawsuit
 - 2. lives (that are) long of day
 - 3. by the activity of the assembly
- 4. the man's gift
- 5. the name of the inscribed stela
- 6. the food of the city

LESSON EIGHT 65

- 7. the prison of the palace

- 17. the hands and feet of the husband
- 18. with the governor of the land
- 19. the silver of the queen's father
- 20. the goddess of this small house

- 21. the ears of the husband's ox
- 22. with the youth's weapon
- 23. the army's beer
- 24. the good daughter of the thief
- 25. the slave's brother
- 26. the brother's slave
- 27. fine palace oil
- 28. the aforementioned palace wool
- 29. the son's chariot
- 30. the sons' many chariots
- 31. the sick (people) of the lower mountain region
- 32. the hardship of the master's womanservant
- 33. the wife's mother's tablet
- 34. on the roads of the land
- 35. handiwork of the gods
- 36. with river water
- 37. the mighty strength of the king
- 38. the youths of the army
- 39. the previous decisions of the assembly
- 40. on (ina) hearing these words

D. Give the bound form of the following words:

- 1. almattum 'widow'
- 2. ašlum 'rope'
- 3. bābum 'gate'
- 4. abullum 'city gate'
- 5. bašītum 'property'
- 6. hulqum 'missing property'
- 7. imērum 'donkey'
- 8. kisrum 'knot'
- 9. qabûm 'to speak'
- 10. mānahtum 'toil'

LESSON NINE

9.1 The G Infinitive, Preterite, and Verbal Adjective: Verbs II-weak

Verbs II—weak originally had as their second radical w, y, or one of the Proto-Semitic alephs that were lost in Akkadian (§6.1).

(a) Infinitive

The G Infinitives of II–weak roots are a result of vowel contraction:

```
Verbs II—w: kânum (<*kuānum <*kawānum) 'to become firm';

Verbs II—y: $qi\bar{a}\check{s}um$ ($\langle *qay\bar{a}\check{s}um \rangle$ 'to bestow'; Verbs II— 2 1—2: $\hat{s}\hat{a}mum$ ($\langle *\check{s}a^2\bar{a}mum \rangle$ 'to buy';

Verbs II $^{-3}$ 3-4: $n\hat{e}rum (ne^{3}\bar{e}rum nah\bar{a}rum, much less frequently)$ $n\hat{a}rum$, without a > e) 'to slay'.

Note that the Infinitives of verbs II–w and verbs II– 3 _{1–2} (and sometimes verbs II– 3 _{3–4}) have the same form, while those of verbs II–y and (usually) verbs II– 3 _{3–4} are distinct. (Roots originally II– 3 ₅ are rare.)

(b) Preterite

These have a long vowel in their bases in lieu of the weak second radical; the nature of the vowel depends on the original second radical:

Verbs II—w: \bar{u}, as in ik\bar{u}n 'he became firm' (k\hat{a}num);

Verbs II—y: \bar{\iota}, as in iq\bar{\iota}s 'he bestowed' (qi\bar{a}sum);

Verbs II—^{3}1—2: \bar{a}, as in is\bar{a}m 'he bought' (s\hat{a}mum);

Verbs II—^{3}3—4: \bar{e}, as in in\bar{e}r (less often \bar{a}, as in in\bar{a}r) 'he slew' (n\hat{e}rum).

The affixes that mark person are the same as in the sound verb, except that in roots II– 3 –4, the a of the 1cs and second person prefixes (but not $-\bar{a}$ in the 3fp and 2cp) becomes e when the base has $\bar{e}\bar{e}$ (i.e., usually $ten\bar{e}r$, less often $tan\bar{a}r$):

	II-w	II–y	$II-^{3}1-2$	II- ³ 3-4

II—w, II—y: most have the pattern $p\bar{\imath}s$ (cf. the i-vowel of paris), as in $k\bar{\imath}num$ 'true', from II—w $k\hat{\imath}num$ 'to become firm'; $m\bar{\imath}tum$ 'dead', from II—w $m\hat{\imath}tum$ 'to die'; $q\bar{\imath}\check{s}um$ 'bestowed', from II—y $qi\bar{a}\check{s}um$ 'to bestow'.

a few stative roots have the pattern $p\bar{a}s$ (cf. $rapa\check{s}$), as in $t\bar{a}bum$ 'fine', from II—y $ti\bar{a}bum$ 'to become fine'; $m\bar{a}dum$ 'much', from II—y $mi\bar{a}dum$ 'to become much'.

II—21—2: usually $p\bar{a}s$, as in $s\bar{a}mum$ 'bought', from $s\hat{a}mum$ 'to buy';

II—23—4: usually $p\bar{e}s$, as in $t\bar{e}num$ 'ground', from $t\hat{e}num$ 'to grind'.

9.2 The Writing System

Akkadian was written with a system of symbols called cuneiform signs ('cuneiform' = 'wedge-shaped'; note santakkum 'triangle, wedge'; tikip santakkim 'cuneiform sign'). These signs were most often pressed into moist clay tablets with a stylus that was tapered and cut at the end, so that it left a small triangle in the clay. (Less often, texts were written on stone, metal, and wax.) An individual sign may consist of one wedge (e.g.,)—AŠ), or a few ()—(BE;)—(BE;)—(

$$\vdash$$
 \lor \lor \lor \lor

In modern lists of cuneiform signs (see the Introduction above, pp. xxxi-xxxii), signs are arranged in the order presented above (i.e., signs beginning with the first type of wedge, \vdash , are placed before those beginning with the second type, \nvdash , and so on; within types, signs beginning with one of the wedges, such as \vdash , are listed before signs beginning with two, such as \vdash , etc.; see the Sign List, pp. 563–74).

With the exception of the few signs that represent simple vowels (e.g., §F A), the signs with which Akkadian words are written do not represent individual phonemes (sounds), but rather sequences of two or more phonemes (e.g., §F MA; §F ŠUM). Thus, an Akkadian "alphabet" does not exist.

LESSON NINE 69

An individual sign may represent several different things:

- (a) a syllable or part of a syllable in an Akkadian word;
- (b) a whole word;
- (c) a determinative (classifier) for a following or preceding word.

As an example, consider the sign \exists :

- (a) it may represent a syllable (e.g., iṣ), as in the spelling iṣ-ba-at for iṣbat 'she seized', or part of a syllable, as in the word spelled ki-iṣ-rum for kisrum 'knot';
- (b) or it may represent, by itself, the word iṣum 'wood, tree' (§13.2);
- (c) or, as a determinative, it may precede any of the many words for (types of) wood or trees, merely signifying the type of material of which the item denoted by the following word is made (§13.3).

For the time being, we will be concerned only with signs that represent syllables or parts of syllables; they are referred to as syllabograms. There are four types of syllabograms, namely, signs that represent

- (a) Simple vowels, i.e., V signs: e.g., \mathcal{T}_a , \mathcal{T}_e , etc.
- (b) A consonant followed by a vowel, i.e., CV signs: e.g., $\vdash ba$, $\circlearrowleft te$, etc. Not all of the possible combinations of a consonant plus a vowel are represented by their own unique sign. In particular, for only four of the consonants (b, m, \check{s}, t) are there separate signs for both the e and i vowels; for all others, one sign serves for both Ce and Ci (thus, e.g., ke and ki are written with the same sign \circlearrowleft). Further, one sign, \hookleftarrow , serves for both bu and pu. One sign, \hookleftarrow , is used for wa, we, wi, and wu. The IA sign, \biguplus , may be used to represent the consonant y plus any vowel. The emphatic consonants are very poorly represented: normally the sign for either the voiced or the voiceless counterpart plus a vowel is used for an emphatic plus that vowel (e.g., the sign \biguplus serves for both da and ta).
- (c) A vowel followed by a consonant, i.e., VC signs: e.g., $\vdash a\check{s}$, $\biguplus un$, etc. In this group, only l, n, and \check{s} have separate signs for both e and i vowels (thus, e.g., $\biguplus i$ is used to write both em and im). Further, none of these signs distinguishes voiced, voiceless, or emphatic consonants; thus, e.g., one sign alone, $\biguplus i$, is used for ed, et, et, id, it, and it. Finally, the consonant h preceded by any vowel is written with only one sign (i.e., $\biguplus may$ be ah, eh, ih, or uh).
- (d) A consonant plus a vowel plus a consonant, i.e., CVC signs. These are not common in OB. Usually, they represent a sequence CVm (especially at the end of spellings of nouns in the free form), although CVl, CVr, and others (e.g., mah) also occur. These are even more ambiguous than CVs and VCs in their lack of distinction of e and i, and of voiced, voiceless, and emphatic consonants.

Signs that represent more than one sequence of sounds (e.g., \bowtie for da and ta) are said to be polyphonous. Many signs represent several sequences that are not phonologically related; e.g., the sign \vdash may represent both $a\check{s}$ and rum; the sign \Lsh may represent ud, ut, and ut, but also tam (and, in later dialects, also par, pir, lah, lih, $hi\check{s}$). These possibilities are referred to as the values of the sign in question. In this grammar, values of signs are written in lower case italics; the most common value will also appear in small capital letters to refer generally to a sign, without reference to any particular value of the sign: e.g., UD refers to the sign $\rlap{\sc R}$, which has the values ud, ut, ut, and tam (the value written in small capitals may also be called the name of the sign: $\rlap{\sc R}$ is "the UD-sign").

Not infrequently, there are several signs with the same phonological value, i.e., that are pronounced the same; e.g., the signs , , , and may all be pronounced "sa." To distinguish these signs when they are transliterated into Roman characters, diacritical marks and subscript numbers are used, usually according to the frequency of their occurrence in the later literary dialect called Standard Babylonian:

the most common sign for a certain pronunciation receives no mark; the second most frequent has an acute accent (´) on the vowel; the third has a grave accent (`) on the vowel; thereafter, subscript numbers are used.

The four signs written above, then, are transliterated, respectively, sa (called "sa-one"), $s\acute{a}$ ("sa-two"), $s\grave{a}$ ("sa-three"), sa_4 ("sa-four"). These signs are said to be homophonous. Often two or more homophonous signs interchange freely in the writing of a particular sound sequence, such as \Box ur and \Box ur, both of which are common in OB for |ur|. In a small number of cases, homophones have separate spheres of use; for example, ∂ \Box u is used with rare exception in OB to write the conjunctions u 'and' and u 'or' but is not often used otherwise, whereas \Box u is the sign used to write most other instances of |u|, as in u-zu-un for uzun 'ear of ...'.

No single dialect of Akkadian, and no single area in which Akkadian was written, used all of the signs that are known. Thus, for example, in Standard Babylonian and other dialects, there is an individual sign explicitly for the sound sequence /qi/. In Old Babylonian, however, to write /qi/, the scribes used the same sign that they used to write /ki/. Since the later dialect has a separate QI sign, the KI sign with the value /qi/ is transliterated qi. It is essential to remember the diacritical mark when transliterating a sign, since, for example, qi is as different in shape from qi as it is from ba.

Akkadian scribes always "spelled" words following the syllabification of the language. Thus, for example, the word $i\check{s}arum$ may be written $i\check{s}a-rum$ or $i\check{s}a-ru-um$ (see below), but never  $i\check{s}-ar-um$ ( indicates an impossible form). It is a general rule of cuneiform orthography that the sequence (C)VC-V(C) never occurs within a word (except to indicate the presence of the consonant $\check{\ }$ after another consonant; see below, §21.4). When a syllable both begins and ends with a consonant, it may be written with a CVC sign, if there is one in use, as in $i\check{\ }$ sar- $i\check{\ }$ such syllables are written with two signs, a $i\check{\ }$ sign followed by a $i\check{\ }$ $i\check{\ }$ sign containing the appropriate consonants and vowel, as in $i\check{\ }$ sar- $i\check{\ }$ such sylve, or $i\check{\ }$ sar- $i\check{\ }$ such sylve, or $i\check{\ }$ sar- $i\check{\ }$ sar- $i\check{\ }$ such sylve, or $i\check{\ }$ sar- $i\check$

Long vowels transcribed with a macron are usually written no differently than short vowels; i.e., they are not normally marked as long in the script; e.g.,

ṣa-bu-um for ṣābum;a-ma-tum for amātum;hu-ra-sú-um for hurāsum;i-nu-um for īnum.
```

Occasionally, however, in the middle of a word an extra vowel-sign may be written; e.g., the word $k\bar{\imath}n$ will usually be written ki-in, but occasionally a scribe will write ki-i-in instead. There is no difference in the pronunciation of these two writings. Extra vowel signs do not usually occur for these long vowels at the beginning or end of a word; exceptions are some monosyllabic forms; e.g.,

ar{a}l 'town of ...' (bound form) may be written a\text{-}al; \Sar{u} 'he, that', \Sar{t} 'she, that', and kar{t} 'how' are usually written \S u\text{-}\acute{u}, \S i\text{-}i, and ki\text{-}i (to avoid confusion with pronominal suffixes; see §§11.1, 18.2); lar{a} 'not' is written la or la\text{-}a; lar{u} 'indeed' is written lu or lu\text{-}\acute{u}.

Short vowels are almost never written with an extra vowel-sign; again, exceptions are monosyllabic forms such as the negative adverb ul, which is normally written \acute{u} -ul in OB.

Long vowels transcribed with a circumflex, at the end of a word, will almost invariably be written with an extra vowel sign; e.g.,

im-la-a for iml\hat{a}.
```

When not at the end of a word, these ultraheavy vowels may or may not be written with an extra vowel-sign; e.g.,

either ra-bi-im or ra-bi-i-im for rabîm; either ib-nu-ma or ib-nu-im for ibn\hat{u}-ma.
```

When two vowels occur in sequence, the second is written with a V sign if it constitutes a complete syllable, as in ra-bi-a-tum for rabiātum 'great (fp)'; iš-me-a-ma for išmeā-ma 'they (f) heard and ...'.

```

If the second of two vowels in sequence begins a syllable that ends in a consonant, the syllable may simply be indicated by a VC sign; more often, however, an extra V sign occurs to introduce the second vowel:

ra-bi-a-am, less often ra-bi-am, for rabiam 'great (ms, acc.)'.

Note that writings like -a-am in the last example do not necessarily indicate long vowels.

Double consonants may or may not be indicated in the script. There is no rule; only the whim of the scribe prevails. Thus, for example, the word ikaššassi may be written any of the following ways:

i-ka-ša-si, i-ka-aš-ša-si, i-ka-aš-ša-as-si.

A consonant written double in the script always indicates that a double consonant is to be transcribed and pronounced.

The sound sequence /ayyV/, where V is any vowel, is often indicated by the double writing of the A sign, as in da-a-a-nu-um for $dayy\bar{a}num$ 'judge'.

Akkadian is written from left to right. There is no special word divider, and, often, not even any extra space between words. Words may not be divided at the end of a line, and prepositions rarely appear at the end of a line.

A sign-by-sign rendering of a cuneiform word or text is called a transliteration. Signs in the same word are connected by hyphens:

qá-ra-dum na-ra-am i-pu-uš.
```

A word or text put in the form that represents our closest approximation to the actual pronunciation, with all long vowels properly marked, and all doubled consonants indicated, is a normalization or transcription; e.g., for the above transliteration, the normalization would be:

qarrādum narâm īpuš 'the warrior made a stela'.

Notice that in a transliteration, vowel length (macrons and circumflexes) is not indicated, while in a normalization, the diacritics (acute, grave, subscripts) that distinguish homophonous signs are not written.

The cuneiform writing system, which the Akkadians borrowed from the Sumerians, underwent a significant evolution during its long period of use. The KA sign, for example, was originally a picture of a LESSON NINE 73 head with the mouth area hatched (KA means 'mouth' in Sumerian): ②; this was current about 3000 BCE. Over time, the pictograms began to be drawn with a wedge-shaped stylus; about 2500 BCE, KA appeared as ②. Different styles of writing also emerged, which depended on the material being inscribed: a formal, lapidary style for important inscriptions on stone; a cursive style for texts on clay tablets. The difference between the two may be compared to the modern difference between typeset and handwritten forms. In the OB period, the lapidary KA was ③, its cursive counterpart ⑤ or ⑥ (cursive forms of signs may vary considerably from one scribe to another, and even within individual texts). The evolution of the shapes of the signs continued throughout the time cuneiform was written. In the first millennium BCE, a relatively simple style, that of the scribes of the courts of the Neo-Assyrian kings, was used to copy the great epics and myths written in the literary Standard Babylonian dialect. In Neo-Assyrian script, KA appears as ⑤.

In the subsequent lessons of this textbook, cuneiform signs will be presented in three varieties: OB lapidary, OB cursive (often two or three examples), and Neo-Assyrian. The OB lapidary is a beautiful script in which is written the famous "Code of Hammurapi," laws of which will be introduced beginning in Lesson 17; the majority of OB texts, however, such as the letters, contracts, and omens that will also be read in subsequent lessons, are written in cursive signs, and it is these that the student should learn both to recognize and to draw. The Neo-Assyrian forms of the signs are included because modern sign lists are arranged according to those forms and because some students may wish to learn from the start the signs in which the great literary texts of the later Standard Babylonian dialect are written. The student will learn approximately 150 signs during the course of this grammar; they are presented about ten at a time in the following lessons. Pages 563–74 present a list of all the signs encountered in this text, in the order in which they appear in the standard sign lists; an alphabetical index of the sign values follows the Sign List (pp. 575-76).

There are a number of conventions used by Assyriologists in transliterating texts:

Square brackets, [], indicate that the text is broken at the point in question, a common occurrence in clay tablets. When the identity of the missing signs can be determined with relative certainty, usually based on parallel or similar texts, the signs are written inside the square brackets; e.g., the transliteration a-na e-ka-al-l[im i-r]u-ub 'he entered the palace'

indicates that the first five signs and the last sign are present, the beginning of the sign lim and the end of the sign ru are visible, while the sign i is missing entirely. Half brackets, $\lceil \quad \rceil$, are sometimes used to indicate partially damaged signs; e.g., a- $\lceil na \ e$ - $ka \rceil$ -al-lim indicates that the NA, E, and KA signs are all partly damaged.

Angle brackets, $\langle \cdot \cdot \rangle$, enclose scribal omissions: e.g., a-na e-ka-al-lim i- $\langle ru \rangle$ -ub indicates that, although the text is not broken, the expected sign ru has been erroneously omitted by the scribe.

Either double angle brackets, « », or braces, { }, enclose scribal plusses; thus, a-na e-ka-al-lim i-ru-«ru»-ub (or i-ru- $\{ru\}$ -ub) indicates that the scribe mistakenly repeated ru.

An x is used to indicate a sign whose reading is unclear; in a-na x x i-ru-ub 'he entered ...' the transliteration indicates that there are two signs between a-na and i-ru-ub, but that the reading of neither is clear. A question mark may be used to indicate that a possible reading is uncertain, as in a-na bi(?)-tim(?) (or bi?-tim?) i-ru-ub.

An exclamation point indicates a scribal error that the modern scholar has changed to the correct reading; the incorrect sign should follow in parentheses: e.g., a-na!(UD) e-ka-al-lim i-ru-ub signifies that the scribe mistakenly wrote UD ($\stackrel{\frown}{\bowtie}$) for the expected NA ($\stackrel{\frown}{\bowtie}$). An exclamation point in parentheses, or a raised exclamation point (l), means sic!, i.e., that the modern reader believes a form to be incorrect, but has left it stand in transliteration: e.g., a-na e-ka-al-lum(!) (or e-ka-al-lum!) i-ru-ub, where the scribe has written the nominative for 'palace' instead of the expected genitive.

A. VOCABULARY 9.

Verbs:

 $ag\bar{a}rum$ (Preterite $\bar{\imath}gur$) 'to hire, rent'; Verbal Adj. agrum (agir-) 'hired, rented', as noun (pl. $agr\bar{u}$), 'hireling'.

enēšum (īniš) 'to be(come) weak, impoverished'; Verbal Adj. enšum (eniš-) 'weak, powerless'.

kânum (ikūn) 'to be(come) true, just, honest, correct; to be(come) firm, fixed, secure; to endure, last'; Verbal Adj. kīnum (kīn-; fem. kīttum; fp kīnātum) 'true, just; honest, loyal; normal, regular, correct; proper, legitimate; firm, fixed'; substantivized fem. kīttum (bound form kītti) 'truth, justice; honesty, loyalty; normal situation, correctness' [given as kittum in the dictionaries].

LESSON NINE 75

miādum (imīd) 'to increase, be(come) much, abundant, numerous, plentiful'; Verbal Adj. mādum see Vocab. 5.

 $n\hat{e}rum/n\hat{a}rum$ ($in\bar{e}r/in\bar{a}r$) 'to slay, kill; to strike, destroy, defeat'.

qiāšum (iqīš) 'to give, bestow, grant'; Verbal Adj. qīšum (qīš-) 'bestowed, granted' (substantivized fem. qīštum 'gift', Vocab. 7).

 $\hat{s}\hat{a}mum$ ($i\hat{s}\bar{a}m$) 'to buy, purchase (from someone: itti or ina $q\bar{a}t$)'; Verbal Adj. $\hat{s}\bar{a}mum$ ($\hat{s}\bar{a}m$ -) 'purchased, bought'.

šatûm (išti) 'to drink'.

 $t\hat{a}rum~(it\bar{u}r)$ 'to return (intrans.), go/come back, turn back; to turn into, become (+ ana)'.

țiābum (ițīb) 'to become pleasant, pleasing (to: eli), sweet, good; to become satisfied'; Verbal Adj. ṭābum see Vocab. 4.

Nouns:

kīttum see above under kânum.

kunukkum (kunuk; pl. kunukkū and kunukkātum) 'seal, cylinder seal; seal impression; sealed tablet, document'.

ummānum (fem.; ummān) 'army, gang, crowd'.

10.1 The G Infinitive, Preterite, and Verbal Adjective: Verbs I-w

(a) The Infinitives of verbs with first radical \boldsymbol{w} present no difficulties; some examples:

war\bar{a}qum 'to be/turn yellow'; wat\bar{a}rum 'to be surpassing'; wal\bar{a}dum 'to bear'; was\bar{a}bum 'to add to, enlarge'; war\bar{a}dum 'to descend'; was\bar{a}bum 'to sit, dwell'.

- (b) There are two Preterite conjugations of verbs I–w in the G stem, one for stative/adjectival verbs (as in the first row of examples), one for active verbs (either transitive or intransitive, as in the second and third rows of examples above; see §3.4).
- (i) The finite G forms of stative verbs I–w are conjugated as in verbs I–e (i.e., verbs I–j3–4 and I–y; see §8.1). The theme-vowel is invariably i. Thus, for the G Preterite of $wat\bar{a}rum$ 'to be surpassing' we find:

3cs	$ar{\imath}tir$	3mp	$ar{\imath}tirar{u}$
		3fp	$ar{\imath}tirar{a}$
2ms	$tar{e}tir$	2cp	$tar{e}tirar{a}$
2fs	$tar{e}tirar{\imath}$
1cs	$ar{e}tir$	1cp	$n\bar{\imath}tir$

(ii) Active verbs I–w also all have i as their theme-vowel in the G Preterite. The prefix of these verbs, however, always contains \boldsymbol{u} rather than the usual i or a. Here is the G Preterite of $waš\bar{a}bum$ 'to sit, dwell':

3cs	$u\check{s}ib$	3mp	$u\check{s}bar{u}$
		3fp	$u\check{s}bar{a}$
2ms	$tu\check{s}ib$	2cp	tu š $bar{a}$
2fs	$tu\check{s}bar{\imath}$
1cs	$u\check{s}ib$	1cp	$nu\check{s}ib$

Note that the 3cs and the 1cs forms are the same. Note also that when a vocalic ending (i.e., an ending beginning with a vowel) is added, the theme-vowel i is lost through syncope (§4.1).

(c) Verbal Adjectives of roots I–w are unremarkable:

warqum (waruq-) 'yellow, green';
watrum (watar-) 'additional, excessive';
waldum (walid-) 'born';
wašbum (wašib-) 'seated; in residence'.

10.2 The Verb babālum

The forms of the very common verb w–b–l 'to carry' require comment. The expected Infinitive $wab\bar{a}lum$ and Verbal Adj. wablum are normally replaced in OB texts by $bab\bar{a}lum$ and bablum (babil-), respectively, with assimilation of the first radical to the second. The Preterite of this verb is essentially regular, but the third radical l occasionally prevents the syncope of the theme-vowel when a vocalic ending is added (§4.1(d)), so that byforms are attested:

3cs	ubil	3mp	$ubl\bar{u}$ or $ubil\bar{u}$
		3fp	$ubl\bar{a}$ or $ubil\bar{a}$
2ms	tubil	2cp	$tubl\bar{a}$ or $tubil\bar{a}$
2fs	$tubl\bar{\imath}$ or $tubil\bar{\imath}$
1cs	ubil	1cp	nubil

10.3 Pronominal Suffixes on Prepositions

The pronominal objects of a few Akkadian prepositions take the form of suffixes attached directly to the preposition. The suffixes have the following forms:

1cs	-ya	1cp	-ni
2ms	-ka	2mp	-kunu
2fs	-ki	2fp	-kina
3ms	-šu	3mp	-šunu
3fs	-ša	3fp	-šina

Two prepositions that take pronominal suffixes have been encountered thus far, eli and itti; in both, the final vowel is lengthened:

1cs	elīya 'on me'	ittīya 'with me'
2ms	elīka 'on you (ms)'	ittīka 'with you (ms)'
2fs	elīki 'on you (fs)'	ittīki 'with you (fs)'
3ms	elīšu 'on him'	ittīšu 'with him'
3fs	elīša 'on her'	ittīša 'with her'

1cp elīni 'on us' ittīni 'with us'
2mp elīkunu 'on you (mp)' ittīkunu 'with you (mp)'
2fp elīkina 'on you (fp)' ittīkina 'with you (fp)' 3mp elīšunu 'on them (m)' ittīšunu 'with them (m)' 3fp elīšina 'on them (f)' ittīšina 'with them (f)'

Note that the vowel a in the pronominal suffixes is not affected by the incompatibility of e and a (§7.2(e)) when attached to $el\bar{\iota}$ -.

Most other prepositions are followed by a genitive (or dative, after ana) form of the pronoun. The third person forms are the same as those of the anaphoric pronoun, presented in §6.3; e.g., kīma šuāti 'like him'; ana šināšim 'for them (f)'.

The forms of the other persons will be given in a later lesson (§25.2).

10.4 Double-Duty Objects

As in English, a word that is the direct object of two verbs need not be repeated in the second clause; this is especially true if the second verb may then follow the first immediately (usually, but not necessarily, with the conjunction -ma):

wardam šuāti iṣbatū-ma imhaṣū 'they seized and struck that slave'.

The verbs may, however, also be separated by a short phrase:

 $b\bar{\imath}tam~a\bar{\imath}am$ -ma~ana~agrim~addin 'I purchased and gave the hireling a house'.

In both examples, the deleted object may also be resumed by a pronominal object suffix, as in English ('they seized that slave and struck him'; 'I purchased a house and gave it to the hireling'). Object suffixes are presented in a later lesson (§18.2).

EXERCISES

A. Vocabulary 10.

Verbs:

 $ak\bar{a}lum$ (Preterite $\bar{\imath}kul$) 'to eat, consume; to use, have the use of (a field, etc.); to take for oneself'.

 $bab\bar{a}lum$ (from $wab\bar{a}lum$; Preterite ubil [pl. $ubl\bar{u}$ or $ubil\bar{u}$]) 'to bear,

- carry, transport, convey'; Verbal Adj. bablum (babil-) 'carried, transported' (rare).
- edēšum (īdiš) 'to be/become new'; Verbal Adj. eššum (< *edšum [an irregular assimilation]; fem. eššetum, rarely edištum) 'new, fresh'.
- labārum (ilbir) 'to become old, last, endure'; Verbal Adj. labirum (labir-) 'old, ancient, remote (in time); original, traditional'.
- mâtum (imūt) 'to die'; Verbal Adj. mītum (mīt-; fem. mīttum) 'dead'.
- $\check{s}i\bar{a}bum~(i\check{s}\bar{\imath}b)$ 'to become/grow old, gray'; Verbal Adj. $\check{s}\bar{\imath}bum~(\check{s}\bar{\imath}b-)$ 'gray, gray-haired, old'; as noun (bound form $\check{s}\bar{\imath}b(i)$; pl. $\check{s}\bar{\imath}b\bar{u}$ and $\check{s}\bar{\imath}b\bar{u}tum$) 'old man, elder; witness'.
- wašābum (ušib) 'to sit down; to sit, be sitting, seated; to stay, remain (somewhere), reside, dwell'; Verbal Adj. wašbum (wašib-) 'seated; resident, in residence'.
- watārum (ītir) 'to be/become exceeding, surpassing; to exceed, surpass'; Verbal Adj. watrum (watar-) 'additional, in excess, superfluous; foremost, pre-eminent, excellent'; substantivized fem. watartum (bound form watarti) 'excess, surplus, extra'.

Nouns:

 $kar\bar{a}num$ (bound form $kar\bar{a}n$) 'grapes; grapevine; vineyard; wine'. $ni\bar{s}\bar{u}$ (always masc. pl. in form, but takes fem. pl. verbs and adjectives) 'people'.

šattum (bound form šatti; pl. šanātum) 'year'.

Adjective:

lemnum (lemun-; fem. lemuttum; fp lemnētum; Verbal Adj. of a rare verb lemēnum [cf. §21.2]) 'evil, bad, malevolent'; substantivized fem. lemuttum (bound form lemutti) 'evil, wickedness; evil intentions; misfortune, danger'.

LESSON ELEVEN

11.1 The Noun with Possessive Pronominal Suffixes

In the last lesson it was seen that the pronominal objects of some prepositions take the form of suffixes (§10.3). The same set of suffixes, with an additional form for the 1cs, is also attached to nouns to indicate possession, as in

m\bar{a}r\bar{u}ki\;ward\bar{\imath}ya\;imhaṣ\bar{u} 'your (fs) sons hit my slaves'; b\bar{e}l\check{s}unu\;hur\bar{a}ṣam\;ana\;qarr\bar{a}d\bar{\imath}\check{s}u\;iddin 'their (m) lord gave gold to his warriors'.
```

Nouns with suffixes may be modified by adjectives; this includes the demonstrative adjectives, which in English must be rendered, e.g., 'this x of (yours, hers, etc.)'; e.g.,

ilatni dannatum 'our mighty goddess';tēmki annûm 'this report of yours (fs)';ana wardīya šunūti 'for those servants of mine'.
```

Nouns with suffixes may also be modified by another noun, but δa must be used to express the genitive relationship:

eli kussīka ša hurāṣim 'on your throne of gold'.

As already noted, the forms of the possessive suffixes are the same as those learned in the last lesson, except that the 1cs suffix has two forms, the distribution of which is discussed at the end of this section:

1cs	-ī, -ya	1cp	-ni
2ms	-ka	2mp	-kunu
2fs	-ki	2fp	-kina
3ms	-šu	3mp	-šunu
3fs	-ša	3fp	-šina

Again, a in these suffixes does not become e when they are attached to words with e (§7.2(e)):

bēlkina 'your (fp) lord'; bēlētūya 'my ladies'; ţēmša 'her report'.

In general, as indicated by forms like $b\bar{e}lni$ 'our lord' and $t\bar{e}m\bar{s}a$ 'her report', the possessive suffixes are added to the bound form of the noun. In some types of bases, however, the bound form undergoes certain modifications before suffixes; the various noun types will therefore be covered in detail in the following paragraphs. (The form of the noun with pronominal suffixes is referred to in some Akkadian grammars as the status pronominalis.)

(a) Plural Forms

Masculine Plural Nouns. Suffixes are attached directly (remember that the bound form and the free form are identical in masculine plural nouns):

mārūki 'your (fs) sons';
kunukkūša 'her seals';
ilūšunu 'their (m) gods';
mutīšina āmur 'I saw their husbands'.
```

Feminine Plural Nouns. The unbound form, minus its mimation and with its case-vowel lengthened, serves as the presuffixal base:

q\bar{\imath}\bar{s}\bar{a}t\bar{u}\bar{s}u 'his gifts'; k\bar{\imath}ma\ nap\bar{s}\bar{a}t\bar{\imath}kina 'like your (fp) lives'; ep\bar{s}\bar{e}t\bar{u}\bar{s}a 'her deeds'; ina\ puhr\bar{a}t\bar{\imath}kunu 'in your(mp) assemblies'; narkab\bar{a}t\bar{u}ka 'your (ms) aw\hat{a}t\bar{\imath}ni\ i\bar{s}m\hat{u} 'they (m) heard our words'. chariots';

(Note: Some Assyriologists consider the vowel before the suffixes on feminine plurals to be short: $q\bar{\imath}\bar{s}\bar{a}tu\bar{s}u$, $nap\bar{s}\bar{a}tikina$, etc.)

Plural Adjectives. These take suffixes only when substantivized (§4.4); they behave like fem. pl. nouns, i.e., the long case-vowel of masc. pl. nouns is added to the bound form before the suffixes:

rabûtūni 'our nobles';ina mītūtīšunu 'among their (m) dead';šarqātūšu 'his stolenwatrātīšu ašām 'I bought his extras' (referring, e.g., to narkabātum 'chariots').
```

(Note: Again, some Assyriologists consider the vowel before the suffixes on these forms to be short: $rab\hat{u}tuni$, $m\bar{t}t\bar{u}ti\check{s}unu$, etc.)

(b) Dual Forms

The suffixes are added directly to the bound form of the dual (i.e., to the case-vowel after the final -n of the free form has been dropped):

\bar{\imath}n\bar{a}ki 'your (fs) eyes'; ina~q\bar{a}t\bar{\imath}sina 'in their (f) hands'; em\bar{u}q\bar{a}su 'his strength'; i\bar{s}d\bar{\imath}su~abni 'I built its (m) foundation'.
```

(c) Singular Forms

Most singular nouns have at least two forms before the possessive suffixes, depending on case: for the majority of nouns, the genitive is distinguished from a common nominative–accusative form; a few nouns distinguish all three cases before suffixes.

Genitive. The genitive of all sg. nouns before the suffixes is the free form without mimation and with the case-vowel lengthened to $-\bar{\iota}$ -:

ina kašādīki 'on your (fs) arrival';
ana amtīša 'for her womanservant';
šar mātīšunu 'the king of their (m) land'.
```

Thus, in many instances, the gen. sg. with a suffix is identical in form to the gen.—acc. pl. with a suffix; only context can resolve the ambiguity:

```
eli mārīka 'against your son/sons';kīma dayyānīni 'like our judge/judges'.

(Note: Here too, some Assyriologists believe that the sg. genitive case-vowel remains short before suffixes: ina kašādiki, ana amtika, šar mātišunu, etc. In this view, the sg. and pl. forms are therefore not identical.)

Nominative and Accusative. A review of §8.3 will show that, apart from some nouns with bases ending in a vowel, the singular bound form ends either in a consonant or in i. For most nouns, the bound form serves as a common nominative—accusative pre-suffixal base, albeit with an important modification when the bound form ends in -i.

(i) Bound form ending in a consonant. Suffixes are normally added directly to the bound form without any further change; it bears repeating that the following forms are both nominative and accusative:

kalabša 'her dog'; išidka 'your (ms) foundation'; eqelšina 'their (f) field'; puḥuršunu 'their (m) assembly'; šarratni 'our queen'; šikarka 'your (ms) beer'; māratni 'our daughter'; ilatki 'your (fs) goddess'; alākšu 'his going'; epēška 'your (ms) doing'; nakeršu 'his enemy'; ṣabitkunu 'your (mp) prisoner (m)'.
```

It will be recalled that n assimilates to a following consonant (§5.1). This applies to n before pronominal suffixes as well, although often forms are written as though the n did not assimilate (a morphographemic writing; see §18.4):

uzu\check{s}\check{s}a 'her ear', written \acute{u}-zu-(u\check{s})-\check{s}a or \acute{u}-zu-un-\check{s}a; nad\bar{a}\check{s}\check{s}ina 'their (f) giving', written na-da-(a\check{s})-\check{s}i-na or na-da-an-\check{s}i-na.
```

Another important sound change involving the pronominal suffixes occurs whenever a third-person suffix follows directly a base ending in a dental (d, t, t) or a sibilant (s, s, δ, z) : the two sounds change to ss. Some examples:

qaqqassa\ (\ *qaqqadsa)\ 'her\ head'; parar assu\ (\ *parar assu)\ 'his\ deciding'; bar belessunu\ (\ *bar beletsunu)\ 'their\ (m)\ lady'; purar assa\ (\ *hurar assa)\ 'her\ gold'; balar assina\ (\ *balar assina)\ 'their\ (f)\ life'; epar essu\ (\ *epar essu)\ 'his\ doing'; ahar assa\ (\ *ahar assa\ (\ *ahar assa)\ 'her\ grasping'.
```

Two noun types with bound forms ending in a consonant are exceptions to the general rule, having instead presuffixal forms in -a- like the nouns in (ii) below. One type consists of nouns the bases of which have more than one syllable and end in a doubled consonant, such as <code>ekallum</code> 'palace' and <code>kunukkum</code> 'seal'; while in the bound form of these the doubled consonant is simplified, before suffixes the doubling is retained:

ekal šarrim 'the king's palace', but ekallašu 'his palace'; kunuk aššatim 'the wife's seal', but kunukkaša 'her seal'.

The second type are feminine Participles (§20.1):

free form $p\bar{a}ristum$, bound form $p\bar{a}risat$, but before suffixes $p\bar{a}rista$.

(ii) Bound form ending in -i. The final -i is replaced by an unaccented short -a- before the suffixes, as in these nom. and acc. forms:

    tuppaša 'her tablet'; libbaki 'your (fs) heart';
    maruštašu 'his difficulty'; ummani 'our mother';
    qīštaka 'your (ms) gift'; sibittašu 'its (m) prison'.
```

When the suffixes of the second and third person pl. are added, vowel syncope does not take place, even though the resulting form contains three short syllables in succession (see §4.1(e)):

šarrašunu 'their (m) king'; napištakina'your (fp) life';
```

This presuffixal -a- does not undergo vowel harmony (§7.2(d)):

epištaša 'her deed'; lemuttaka 'your (ms) wickedness'.
```

A number of noun types constitute exceptions to this pattern:

The nouns abum 'father' and ahum 'brother' exhibit a full triptotic declension before pronominal suffixes, with long case-vowels:

nom. ab\bar{u}\check{s}u ah\bar{u}ki gen. ab\bar{i}\check{s}u ah\bar{i}ki acc. ab\bar{a}\check{s}u ah\bar{a}ki

Nouns with one-syllable bases ending in a single consonant, such as ilum 'god' and $b\bar{e}lum$ 'lord', have two possible bound forms, with and without a final -i: il or ili, $b\bar{e}l$ or $b\bar{e}li$. They likewise exhibit two sets of forms with suffixes, one set like those of the nouns in (i) above, the other (which is the less common) like those of abum and ahum:

nom. il\bar{s}a or il\bar{u}\bar{s}a b\bar{e}lni or b\bar{e}l\bar{u}ni gen. il\bar{i}sa b\bar{e}l\bar{i}ni acc. il\bar{s}a or il\bar{a}sa b\bar{e}lni or b\bar{e}l\bar{a}ni

Note that nom. forms like $il\bar{u}\check{s}a$ and $b\bar{e}l\bar{u}ni$ (as well as the gen. forms $il\bar{i}\check{s}a$ and $b\bar{e}l\bar{i}ni$; see above) may be sg. or pl.: 'her god/gods', 'our lord/lords'. (Note: Again, some Assyriologists consider the case-vowel, when it is present before suffixes in these examples, to be short. In this view, the sg. and pl. forms are therefore not identical.)

Nouns and adjectives with bases ending in -i, such as $kuss\hat{u}m$ 'throne' and $rab\hat{u}m$ 'great', usually have presuffixal forms in $-\bar{\imath}$ for all three cases:

nom.-gen.-acc. kussīka 'your (ms) throne', rabīšu 'his great one (m)'.

Rarely, these words exhibit a three-case declension before suffixes like those in the following paragraph.

(iii) Bound form ending in a vowel other than -i. The pronominal suffixes are added to the base plus the appropriate case-ending (with the normal rules of vowel contraction), e.g.:

	$\check{s}ad\hat{u}m\ (\check{s}adu ext{-})$	$rub\hat{u}m~(rubar{a} ext{-})$	$ban\hat{u}m~(banar{a} ext{-})$	$leq\hat{u}m~(leqar{e} ext{-})$
nom.	šadûšu	rubûni	banûšunu	leqûša
gen.	šadîšu	rubêni	banêšunu	leqêša
acc.	$\check{s}ad\hat{a}\check{s}u$	$rub \hat{a}ni$	banâšunu	leqēaša
	'his mountain'	'our prince'	'their (m) building'	'her taking'

(d) First Person Singular Suffix

As was noted at the beginning of this section, the 1cs suffix has two forms, the distribution of which depends on the number and case of the noun or adjective to which it is attached. The forms are:

(i) $-\bar{\imath}$, attached directly to the base (the free form without its case-ending), on all singular nouns and adjectives in the nom. and acc.:

m\bar{a}rt\bar{\iota} 'my daughter';aw\bar{a}t\bar{\iota} 'my word';ab\bar{\iota} 'my father';a\underline{h}\bar{\iota} 'my brother';ep\bar{e}s\bar{\iota} 'my doing';libb\bar{\iota} 'my heart'.
```

Note that some forms may be identical with the gen.-acc. pl.:

il\bar{\iota} 'my god' (nom. or acc.) or 'gods' (gen.-acc.).
```

When the base ends in a vowel, normal vowel contraction takes place:

kuss\hat{i} 'my throne';rab\hat{i} 'my great one (m)';šad\hat{i} 'my mountain';rub\hat{e} 'my prince';ban\hat{e} 'my building'leq\hat{e} 'my taking'.
```

(ii) -ya, otherwise, including after the case-vowel of sg. nouns and adjectives in the gen. (as before the other suffixes, the short case-vowels of the sg., the fem. pl., and pl. adjectives are lengthened):

ana mārtīya 'to my daughter';
                                      k\bar{\imath}ma~aw\bar{a}t\bar{\imath}ya 'like my word';
itti abīya 'with my father';
                                      ina libbīya 'in my heart';
eli kussīya 'on my throne';
                                      ina šemêya 'in my hearing';
īnāya 'my eyes' (nom.);
                                      īnīya 'my eyes' (gen.-acc.);
m\bar{a}r\bar{u}ya 'my sons' (nom.);
                                      mārīya 'my sons' (gen.-acc.);
mārātūya 'my daughters' (nom.); mārātīya 'my daughters' (gen.-acc.); rab\hat{u}t\bar{u}ya 'my nobles (i.e., great rab\hat{u}t\bar{t}ya 'my nobles (i.e., great ones)' ones)' (nom.);
                                          (gen.-acc.);
epšētūya 'my deeds' (nom.);
                                      epšētīya 'my deeds' (gen.-acc.).
```

The form -ya is usually written with the IA sign:

```
ki-ma a-wa-ti-ia; i-na še-me-(e)-ia; i-na-ia; etc.
```

After $-\bar{u}$ - (i.e., after nominative plural nouns and adjectives), however, -ya is more often written with the A sign, although writings with IA are also common (especially in texts from the northern OB area):

ma-ru-a; ep-še-tu-a; etc.; less often ma-ru-ia; ep-še-tu-ia; etc.

11.2 Apposition

When two or more substantives or phrases in a clause refer to the same thing, they are said to be in apposition. In Akkadian, words in apposition are in the same case: e.g., ana šēpī šarrim bēlīya amqut 'At the feet of the king, my lord, I fell'; awīlam šuāti abāka iṣbatū 'They seized that man, your father'; Enlil bēlum rabûm nakram ina mātim iṭrud '(The god) Enlil, the great lord, drove the enemy from the land'.

Sometimes the order of appositional elements differs from the usual English order, especially when an independent personal pronoun or a pronominal suffix is involved:

bēlī atta nakrī ilī tenēr 'You, my lord, slew the enemies of the gods'; dayyānum ahī aššatam īhuz 'My brother the judge got married'.

11.3 The Quantifier kalûm

The word $kal\hat{u}m$ 'entirety, whole', which always occurs in the singular, is the most common means of expressing 'all (of)' and 'every' in Old Babylonian. It may be used in the bound form (kala, rarely kali or kal) before another noun; e.g., kala ilī 'all the gods'; kala mātim 'the whole/entire land, all the land'.

Much more commonly, however, $kal\hat{u}m$ occurs after the noun it modifies; in these instances, it is in apposition to the previous noun (hence, in the same case), and has a third person pronominal suffix, the gender and number of which correspond to those of the antecedent noun:

 $\check{s}arr\bar{u}$ $kal\hat{u}\check{s}unu$ ina $m\bar{a}t\bar{a}t\bar{i}\check{s}unu$ $u\check{s}b\bar{u}$ 'All the kings (lit.: the kings, all of them) remained in their lands' (note that the verb is m. pl., agreeing with the antecedent noun rather than with the sg. $kal\hat{u}\check{s}unu$);

māt nakrīya kalâša akšud 'I conquered all of my enemy's land';
mê ana amātīšu kalîšina niddin 'We gave water to all his womenservants'.

kalûm may also be used without an expressed antecedent:

ana kalîšunu 'for all of them (m)'.

LESSON TWELVE

12.1 The G Durative: Sound Verbs; Verbs III– weak

(a) Sound Verbs

Study the following paradigms:

	$\check{s}akar{a}num$	arrange abar atum	$\check{s}arar{a}qum$	$maqar{a}tum$
3cs	išakkan	iṣabbat	išarriq	imaqqut
2ms	tašakkan	taṣabbat	tašarriq	tamaqqut
2fs	tašakkanī	taṣabbatī	tašarriqī	tamaqqutī
1cs	ašakkan	aṣabbat	ašarriq	amaqqut
3mp	išakkanū	iṣabbatā	išarriqū	imaqqutū
3fp	išakkanā	iṣabbatā	išarriqā	imaqqutā
2cp	tašakkanā	taṣabbatā	tašarriqā	tamaqqutā
1cp	nišakkan	niṣabbat	nišarriq	nimaqqut

The prefixes and suffixes that mark person, gender, and number are the same as those of the G Preterite.

The base of the G Durative for sound verbs is $R_1aR_2R_2VR_3$ (i.e., parrVs). The second radical in all Duratives (except verbs II–weak; see §14.1) is always doubled (even though the doubling may not be indicated in the script; see above, p. 72). In sound verbs (and in verbs I–n and verbs III–weak, except III–e), the vowel between the first and second radicals is a > e in verbs III–e). Between the second and third radicals there is a theme-vowel. Sound verbs with i as the theme-vowel in the Preterite also have i in the Durative; verbs with a in the Preterite have a likewise in the Durative. Verbs with a in the Preterite, however, have either a or a as the theme-vowel in the Durative, and this must be learned for each such verb. The majority of verbs with a in the Preterite have a in the Durative. The Durative forms of the sound verbs encountered thus far in the vocabularies are presented in the following chart:

Durative	Preterite	Durative Forms of Sound Verbs
a	a	imahhas, imarras, irakkab, isabbat
i	i	idammiq, idannin, iḥalliq, ilabbir, ipaqqid, iqattin, irappiš, išallim, išarriq
и	u	iballut, imaqqut, ipaḥḥur
a	u	igammar, ikannak, ikaṣṣar, ikaššad, imaḥḫar, iparras, ipaššaš, išakkan, išaṭṭar, iṭarrad

It follows from the foregoing discussion that sound verbs occur in the G in four vowel classes. Thus, mahasum, marasum, rakabum, and sabatum are referred to as a-class verbs (or as a-a verbs, listing the theme-vowel of both the Durative and the Preterite); damaqum, dananum, saraqum, etc., are i-class verbs (or i-i verbs); balatum, maqatum, and paharum are u-class verbs (or u-u verbs). The other verbs encountered thus far, such as gamarum, kanakum, sakanum, are referred to as a-u verbs (i.e., with the vowel of the Durative before that of the Preterite; in the CAD, the forms are cited in full, but in the opposite order, as in gamarum: igmur-igammar; other terms for this type are Ablaut and vowel-change verbs). Beginning with the vocabulary of this lesson, verbs will be listed only by the Infinitive, followed by the vowel-class in parentheses. Thus, the entry "sahapum (a-u)" indicates that the Durative is isahhap, the Preterite ishup; the entry "kanasum (u)" indicates that the Durative is ikannus, the Preterite iknus.

(b) Verbs I-n

These verbs offer no difficulties in the Durative, since the n is always followed by the vowel a. They occur in the same vowel classes as the sound verb, except that no I–n verbs of the a-class are attested:

i: inaddin.inakkis

u: inassuk

a-u: inaqqar, inassah, inaṣṣar, inaṭṭal

(c) Verbs III-weak

As in the Preterite, the base of these verbs ends in the theme-vowel. For all verbs III–weak, the theme-vowel of the G Durative is the same as that of the G Preterite. In verbs III–e (thus, e-class), both the a between R_1 and R_2 and the a of the prefixes of the second person forms and the 1cs form usually, but not invariably, become e; in the second person and 1cs forms, either both of these a-vowels change, or neither does, so that, for example, both teleqqe and talaqqe occur for the 2ms, but taleqqe* and telaqqe* do not.

	$ban\hat{u}m$	$\dot{h}ad\hat{u}m$	$mal\hat{u}m$	$leq\hat{u}m$
3cs	ibanni	iḥaddu	imalla	ileqqe / ilaqqe
2ms	tabanni	taḥaddu	tamalla	teleqqe / talaqqe
2fs	tabannî	taḥaddî	tamallî	teleqqî / talaqqî
1cs	abanni	aḥaddu	amalla	eleqqe / alaqqe
3mp	ibannû	iḥaddû	imallû	ileqqû ilaqqû
3fp	ibanniā	iḥaddâ	imallâ	ileqqeā ilaqqeā
2cp	tabanniā	taḥaddâ	tamallâ	teleqqeā talaqqeā
1cp	nibanni	niḥaddu	nimalla	nileqqe nilaqqe

The 3cs Duratives of the other III–weak verbs so far presented are:

irabbi (rabûm), irašši (rašûm), išatti (šatûm), išemme/išamme (šemûm), iţeḥḥe/iṭaḥḥe (ṭeḥûm), izakku (zakûm).

12.2 The Meaning of the Durative

The Durative describes action that takes place over a period of time (duration; thus, non-punctual or imperfective), or action that has not yet taken place. Thus, it may be translated by a wide range of tenses and nuances. The various types of action that the Durative denotes may be categorized roughly as follows:

- (a) Simple future:
 - warassa ana kaspim inaddin 'she will sell her slave'.
- (b) Present tense:
 - tuppašu ikannak 'he is sealing his tablet'.
- (c) Durative/Circumstantial:
 - inaddin 'he was giving, he is giving, he will be giving'.
 - Note that the tense may only be determined from the context.

Circumstantial clauses may be expressed by a verb in the Durative followed by -ma and a subsequent verb (which may also be a Durative) that establishes the tense:

sikaram išattī-ma bītum imqut 'he was drinking beer, and the house collapsed', or 'as he was drinking beer, the house collapsed', or 'he was drinking beer when the house collapsed';

bītī tanaṣṣar-ma ana nārim arakkab 'while you (ms) guard my house, I will ride to the river'.

(d) Habitual (or customary):

inaddin 'he used to give (or, would give), he gives, he will give (customarily, or as a habit)'.

Again, the tense must be gained from the context.

(e) Modal, including potential action and probable action:

inaddin 'he may/might/could/can/should/would give'.

For the most part, which of these English translation values best reflects a Durative verb in any given clause must be determined on the basis of the surrounding context.

The Durative, like the Preterite, is negated with ul(a) in main clauses:

bītam eššam ul nibanni 'we will not build a new house'; ilam ina šamnim ula tapaššašā 'you (pl) do not anoint the god with oil'.

In most Assyriological works, the form called the Durative in this textbook is referred to as the Present or Present-Future.

12.3 Prepositional Phrases

Very frequently, the prepositions ana and ina occur with the bound form of a noun in a prepositional phrase. While these expressions may be translated literally, a more idiomatic rendering is often preferable. The following list presents some of the most common prepositional phrases that occur in OB texts, arranged alphabetically by noun:

(a) birītum 'interval, intervening space':

ina birīt 'between, among'; before a suffix, a byform bīrī- is used;
e.g., ina birīt etlūtim 'among the young men';
ina bīrīšunu 'among them (m)'.
```

(b) libbum 'heart, center, midst':

ana libbi 'to the center of, into':

iṣam ana libbi ālim ubilū 'they (m) carried the wood into the town'.

ina libbi 'in the midst of, inside, within, among, out of, from':

šarrum ina libbi ālim ušib 'the king remained within the city'; ina libbi 3 ūmī ikaššad 'it will arrive within 3 days'; ina libbīkunu 'among you (mp)'.

(c) mahrum 'front (part)':

ana mahar, with suffixes ana mahrī-, 'to, toward, before':

tēmī ana maḥar bēlīya ašpur 'I sent (ašpur) my report to my lord'; ṣuḥāram šuāti ana maḥrīya taṭrudī 'you (fs) sent that servant to me'.

In southern OB texts and OB texts from Mari (§29.4), $ana\ mahar$ is usually replaced by $ana\ s\bar{e}r$ (see below, h).

ina mahar, with suffixes ina $mahr\bar{\imath}$ -, 'in front of, in the presence of, with (a person), (from) before, away from'; it is very common for ina to be omitted in this phrase, so that we usually find mahar + noun, $mahr\bar{\imath}$ - + suffix:

(ina) maḥar bēlīya aḥdu 'I rejoiced in my lord's presence'; tuppātim (ina) maḥrīni telqe 'you (ms) took the tablets away from us'; ana 10 ūmī maḥrīkunu anāku 'I will be with you (mp) in ten days'.

(d) muḥhum 'skull, top (part)':

ana muhhi 'toward, into the care of' is rare in OB.

ina muḥḥi 'on, upon, over, to the debit of' (essentially a synonym of eli):

 $m\hat{u}$ ina muhhi $kis\bar{a}d$ $n\bar{a}rim$ $illik\bar{u}$ 'water flowed over the river bank'; kaspum $s\bar{u}$ ina $muhh\bar{i}ka$ 'you owe that silver' (lit.: 'that silver is upon you/to your debit').

(e) pānum 'front (part)':

ana $p\bar{a}n(i)$ 'at the disposal of, for the benefit of, for, on account of; opposite; before the arrival of, (rarely) toward':

wardī ana pāni aḫīya aškun 'I placed servants at my brother's disposal':

ana $\bar{a}lim$ ana $p\bar{a}n$ $suh\bar{a}rtim$ allik 'I came to town for the servant' (ana $p\bar{a}n\bar{\imath}sa$ 'for her').

ina $p\bar{a}n(i)$ (in southern OB) 'in view of, in the presence of, in front of, (temporally) just before':

ina $p\bar{a}ni$ $s\bar{a}b$ nakrim 'in the presence of the enemy force'; ina $p\bar{a}n\bar{i}su$ 'in front of it (m)'.

(f) pûm 'mouth; utterance; opening':

ana $p\bar{\imath}$ and $\check{s}a$ $p\bar{\imath}$ may both mean 'according to, in accordance with':

ana pī tuppi bēlīni nīpuš 'we acted according to our lord's tablet'.

(g) qātum 'hand; power, authority; care, charge, responsibility':

ina $q\bar{a}t(i)$ 'in the possession of, from (the possession of, with verbs of taking); in the care/custody of, in the jurisdiction of, by/under the authority of, through the agency of (a person)':

kaspam šuāti ina qātīka tanaṣṣar 'you (ms) will keep that silver in your custody';

 $ina~q\bar{a}ti~ekallim~s\bar{u}$ 'it (m) is the responsibility of the palace'.

ana $q\bar{a}t(i)$ 'into the possession, custody of' is rare in OB.

Note also $\delta a \ q\bar{a}t(i)$, which has the same meanings as $ina \ q\bar{a}t(i)$:

awīlum šū ul ša qātīya 'that man is not under my jurisdiction'; kaspum ša qāt dayyānim īter 'the silver (that is) in the judge's possession increased'.

(h) sērum 'back, back country':

ana $s\bar{e}r$ (rarely, with assimilation, $as-s\bar{e}r$) 'to, toward, against, in addition to, on account of' (replaces ana mahar in southern and Mari OB texts):

ana ṣēr abīya allik 'I went to my father'.

ina ṣēr 'upon, on top of' occurs only in poetry in OB.

12.4 Compound Noun Phrases

The noun phrase $m\bar{a}r(i)$ siprim 'messenger' means literally 'son of a message', with $m\bar{a}r(i)$ a bound form governing the genitive noun siprim 'message'. Normally the plural of this expression, 'messengers', is made as one would expect, namely, with the pluralization of the governing first word: $m\bar{a}r\bar{u}$ siprim (gen.–acc. $m\bar{a}r\bar{i}$ siprim). Occasionally, however, the phrase is construed as a morphological unit, and the marker of plurality appears at the end, after the second element; the marker is always the gen.–acc., regardless of the case of the expression:

 $m\bar{a}r$ $\check{s}ipr\bar{\iota}$ ana $\bar{a}lim$ $ik\check{s}ud\bar{\iota}$ 'the messengers arrived in the town'. Other examples:

bēl hubullīšu aššassu ul iṣabbatū 'his creditors may not seize his wife' (hubullum 'debt');

iṣam ana šikir maqqarī īmurū 'they (m) found wood for chisel handles' (šikrum 'handle'; maqqarum 'chisel').

Note that examples with pronominal suffixes may be ambiguous:

mār šiprīšu ul āmur 'I did not see his messenger/messengers'.

EXERCISES

A. VOCABULARY 12.

Verbs:

hepûm (e) 'to smash, destroy, wreck; to break, invalidate (a tablet, document); to split, divide'; Verbal Adj. hepûm (hepi-) 'smashed, broken, split'.

kanāšum (u) 'to bow down, submit'; Verbal Adj. kanšum (kaniš-) 'submissive, subjected'.

 $paš\bar{a}hum$ (a; less often also i) 'to refresh oneself; to calm down, become appeased, content'.

 $sah\bar{a}pum~(a-u)$ 'to cover, spread over, overwhelm'.

Nouns:

birītum (bound form birīt) 'interval, intervening space'; ina birīt (before suffix ina bīrī-) 'between, among'.

maḥrum (maḥar) 'front (part, side)'; (ina) maḥar (prep.; with suff. (ina) maḥrī-) 'in front of, in the presence of, with (a person), (from) before, away from' (note maḥar X šakānum 'to inform X', as in awâtīšu maḥrīni iškun 'he informed us of his affairs'); ana maḥar (with suff. ana maḥrī- [northern OB; for southern and Mari, see ṣērum]) 'to, toward, into the presence of, before (a person)' (cf. maḥārum, maḥrûm).

muḥḥum (muḥḥi) 'skull, top (part, side)'; ina muḥḥi 'on, onto, upon, on top of, over; to the debit of'.

 $p\bar{a}num~(p\bar{a}n(i);~pl.~p\bar{a}n\bar{u})$ 'front (side, part)'; pl. $p\bar{a}n\bar{u}$ (occasionally also sg.) 'face'; $ana~p\bar{a}n(i)$ 'at the disposal of, for the benefit of, for, on account of; opposite; before the arrival of, (rarely) toward'; $ina~p\bar{a}n(i)$ 'in the presence of, in front of, before; in view of, because of; just before (temporal)'; $p\bar{a}nam~ras\hat{u}m$ 'to become clear, plain'; $p\bar{a}n(i)/p\bar{a}n\bar{\imath}~X~sab\bar{a}tum$ 'to lead X' (e.g., $p\bar{a}n~s\bar{a}b\bar{\imath}ya~asbat$ 'I led my army'); $p\bar{a}nam/p\bar{a}n\bar{\imath}~sak\bar{a}num$ 'to proceed; to intend, decide (to do: ana + Infin.: $p\bar{a}n\bar{\imath}su~ana~ep\bar{e}s~b\bar{\imath}tim~iskum$ 'he intended to build a house')'; $p\bar{a}n\bar{\imath}~X~bab\bar{a}lum$ 'to favor X, forgive X' (e.g., $\check{s}arrum\ p\bar{a}n\bar{i}ya\ ul\ ubil$ 'the king did not favor/forgive me').

 $p\hat{u}m$ (gen. $p\hat{i}m$, acc. piam and $p\hat{a}m$; bound form $p\bar{\imath}$; with suff. $p\bar{\imath}$ - in all cases; pl. $p\hat{a}tum$) 'mouth; word(s); utterance, speech, command; opening'; $piam\ ep\bar{e}šum$ to work/open one's mouth'; $piam\ šak\bar{a}num$ 'to issue commands'; $ana\ p\bar{\imath}$ and $ša\ p\bar{\imath}$ 'according to, in accordance with'; $ana\ p\hat{\imath}m$ 'obediently'; $ina\ p\hat{\imath}m$ can mean 'orally'.

šiprum (šipir; pl. šiprū and šiprātum, šiprētum [with an irregular shift of ā to ē]) 'sending, mission; message; work, labor, task; activity, action'; mār šiprim (with suff. mār šiprīšu, etc.; pl. mārū šiprim or mār šiprī) 'messenger'; šipram epēšum 'to do (assigned) work; to work (something: acc.; e.g., eqlam šipram īpuš 'he worked [i.e., plowed] the field')'.

LESSON THIRTEEN

13.1 The G Durative: Verbs I-2 (I-a and I-e); alākum

If the first consonant of these verbs, the aleph, were a regular consonant, the G Durative would have the following shape, e.g., from $am\bar{a}rum$ (an a-u verb):  $i^{3}ammar$ (cf. $i\check{s}akkan$). A consistently applied rule with verbs I- 3 , however, is that, if the aleph would appear between two vowels, both the aleph and the following vowel are lost. Thus, the G Durative 3cs of $am\bar{a}rum$ is immar; the Durative 3cs of $ar\bar{a}kum$, an i-class verb, is irrik.

As expected, in verbs in which the first radical was 3 3–4 or y (i.e., verbs I–e), all a-vowels, except those in endings, become e. The vowel class of $ep\bar{e}\check{s}um$ is e-u (originally a-u) or, in late OB texts, also u; $ez\bar{e}bum$ is an i-class verb, and $er\bar{e}bum$ is u-class.

	$amar{a}rum$	$arar{a}kum$	$epar{e}\check{s}um$	ezēbum	erēbum
3cs	immar	irrik	ippeš/ippuš	izzib	irrub
2ms	tammar	tarrik	teppeš/teppuš	tezzib	terrub
2fs	tammarī	tarrikī	teppešī/teppušī	tezzibī	terrubī
1cs	ammar	arrik	eppeš/eppuš	ezzib	errub
3mp	immarū	irrikū	ippešū/ippušū	izzibū	irrubū
3fp	immarā	irrikā	ippešā/ippušā	izzibā	irrubā
2cp	tammarā	tarrikā	teppešā/teppušā	tezzibā	terrubā
1cp	nimmar	nirrik	nippeš/nippuš	nizzib	nirrub

The vowel classes of the verbs I⁻² introduced thus far are:

- a-u agārum, ahāzum, akālum, amārum;
- e-u epēšum;
- i arākum, edēšum, enēšum, ešērum, ezēbum;
- u $er\bar{e}bum$ (also $ep\bar{e}\check{s}um$ occasionally in late texts).

The irregular verb $al\bar{a}kum$ is considered below.

The Durative forms of verbs I⁻³ that begin with a vowel (i.e., the 1cs and the third person forms) are written in two different fashions in OB. The 3cs form immar, for example, may be written i-ma-ar (i.e., with the doubling not indicated) or i-im-ma-ar (with both doubling and an extra initial vowel sign).

Similarly, 1cs eppeš appears as

e-pé-eš or e-ep-pé-eš.
```

Expected writings of the type im-ma-ar and ep-pé-eš are not normally found. In verbs with the same theme vowel in both the Preterite and the Durative, the shorter writing of the Durative of these forms will be identical to the writing of the Preterite: e.g., a-ri-ik for 1cs Durative arrik or Preterite \bar{a}rik; i-ni-i\check{s} for 3cs Durative inni\check{s} or Preterite \bar{i}ni\check{s}; e-ru-ub for 1cs Durative errub or Preterite \bar{e}rub.

```

Such ambiguity is also present with writings of the other persons of verbs I⁻³ in which the theme vowels of the Durative and Preterite are the same, whenever the doubling of the Durative is not indicated:

te-zi-bi for 2fs Durative tezzibī or Preterite tēzibī; ni-ši-ir for 1cp Durative niššir or Preterite nīšir.

The tense intended to be read in these cases can only be determined from the surrounding context.

alākum. The G Durative resembles that of other verbs I–a; the theme-vowel is a, so that $al\bar{a}kum$ is an a–i verb (a rare vowel class):

3cs	illak	3mp	$illakar{u}$
		3fp	$illakar{a}$
2ms	tallak	2cp	$tallakar{a}$
2fp	$tallakar{\iota}$
1cs	allak	1cp	nillak

As with other verbs I–a, the Durative forms beginning with a vowel are normally written, e.g., either i-la-ak or i-il-la-ak, but not il-la-ak. (Preterite forms, on the contrary, are normally written, e.g., il-li-ik, occasionally i-li-ik, but not i-il-li-ik.)

13.2 Logograms

Logograms are signs that represent whole words rather than syllables or part-syllables. In transliterations of Akkadian texts, they are given in Roman (non-italicized) capital letters, according to their Sumerian, rather than their Akkadian pronunciation: e.g.,

```
NUN (= rubûm) 'prince';

i.e., the sign rm represents the Sumerian word nun 'prince', which is equivalent to Akkadian $rub\hat{u}m$. Logograms do not differ in their physical shape from syllabograms; in other words, there is nothing special about the shape or appearance of a given sign to distinguish it as a logogram rather than a syllabogram. In fact, many signs are used with both functions: e.g., has a syllabic value en and a logographic value EN (= $b\bar{e}lum$) 'lord'. The logographic transliteration is often different from the syllabic one, however:

is syllabic bu, pu, and also logographic GÍD (= arkum) 'long'.

Further, as is the case with syllabic values for many signs, not a few signs have more than one logographic value: e.g.,

 $\not R$ an, and also AN (= $\check{s}am\hat{u}$) 'sky' and DINGIR (= ilum) 'god'.

In rare instances, a single logographic value (i.e., one Sumerian word) is equivalent to more than one Akkadian word:

★ KUR for both mātum 'country' and šadûm 'mountain'.

Many signs with logographic values have no syllabic values in OB; e.g.,

LÚ (= awīlum) 'person'.

The values of many logograms are polysyllabic; in this textbook, all homophonic multi-syllable values are indicated with subscript numbers (i.e., even the second and third such values), as are the fourth and higher numbers of monosyllabic values, rather than with a diacritic accent over the vowel of one of the syllables: e.g., CEME2, rather than GÉME. Some sign-lists do use the accent marks, in a somewhat confusing fashion, for the second through fifth signs with the same value: e.g., ÚMUN for UMUN2, ÙMUN for UMUN3, UMÚN for UMUN4, UMÙN for UMUN5.

In some instances, a combination of signs is used to represent an Akkadian word logographically. Such combinations are called compound logograms; in transliteration, the individual components that represent a single Akkadian word are separated by a period:

神足 DUMU.MUNUS (= mārtum) 'daughter' consists of 神 DUMU (= mārum) 'son' and 足 MUNUS (= sinništum) 'woman';

É.GAL (= ekallum) 'palace' consists of É (= $b\bar{\imath}tum$) 'house' and FGAL (= $rab\hat{\imath}m$) 'large'.

Not infrequently, the connection between the meaning of the compound logogram and the meanings of the constituent signs is not apparent:

A.ŠÀ (= eqlum) 'field' is made up of $A = m\hat{u}$ 'water' and A ŠÀ (= libbum) 'heart'.

The sign KM MES, which means 'they are' in Sumerian, may be written after logograms to express plurality: e.g.,

FIM DINGIR.MEŠ GAL.MEŠ (= $il\bar{u}$ $rab\hat{u}tum$) 'great gods'; FIM A.ŠÀ.MEŠ (= $eql\bar{e}tum$) 'fields'.

Also common as a mark of plurality after logograms is FHI.A (formerly also transliterated HÁ); unlike MEŠ, HI.A does not appear with logograms denoting human beings (or gods):

 $\not\vdash \downarrow GUD (= alpum)$ 'ox', pl. $\not\vdash \downarrow \downarrow \downarrow \uparrow \uparrow GUD. HI. A (= alp \bar{u})$ 'oxen'.

Some Assyriologists prefer to indicate these plural markers in transliteration as determinatives (e.g., $A.\check{S}A^{me$}$; $GUD^{hi.a}$); see §13.3, below. Still another means of expressing plurality is the repetition of a logogram; usually, this denotes totality: e.g., ) 其条条 EN KUR.KUR (= bēl mātātim) 'master of (all) the lands'.

To clarify the intended value or meaning of a logogram, especially of one with more than one possible reading in Akkadian, a logogram is occasionally followed by one or more syllabograms, which give the pronunciation of the last part of the word; syllabograms used in this way are called phonetic complements:

AN-ú for šamû 'sky', but 条饵 DINGIR-lum for ilum 'god'.

Similarly, the sign \times KUR, as noted above, represents both $m\bar{a}tum$ and $\check{s}ad\hat{u}m$; to indicate which Akkadian word is intended, a phonetic complement may be added: e.g.,

主点 公分 i-na KUR-tim (= ina mātim) 'in the country', but 时间 外上 i-na KUR-i-im (= ina šadîm) 'in the mountain'.

In other instances, a phonetic complement may simply clarify the case of the noun represented by a logogram:

所知 A.ŠÀ-um or 所知 A.ŠÀ-lum for nom. eqlum 'field' (the writings A.ŠÀ-um and A.ŠÀ-lum both indicate the appropriate case-ending; the second also reflects the last consonant of the base).

Possessive pronominal suffixes are nearly always indicated by syllabograms:

 $\mathbf{H} \mathbf{H} \mathbf{E} \cdot s \mathbf{u} = b \mathbf{\bar{l}} s s \mathbf{u}$ 'his house';

無下紙 种鲜 É.MEŠ DUMU-ia (= bītāt mārīya) 'my son's houses'.

The 1cs allomorph $-\bar{\imath}$ is usually indicated after a logogram not by the sign I, but rather by a Ci sign, in which C is the final consonant of the stem of the Akkadian word: e.g., 斯光 LUGAL-ri for šarrī 'my king'; 注解 EN-lí for bēlī 'my lord'.

The frequency of logograms depends to a great extent on the genre of the text in question. In OB, letters (§24.5), omen texts (§22.3), the laws of Hammurapi (§17.4), and literary texts (§33.3, §35.4) have relatively few logograms, and those are normally used only for nouns and adjectives (and even then, only for a few frequently occurring words). In legal contracts (introduced later in this lesson, §13.5), logograms are of greater frequency, essentially because of the more formulaic nature of such documents; economic texts are still more formulaic, and are often written entirely with logograms. Nevertheless, the fact that a logogram existed for a given Akkadian word did not necessarily mean that it would always or even commonly be used; the scribe always had the option of "spelling" the word syllabically.

A transliteration of a series of signs in which logograms appear may be given in several ways. As noted above, logograms are normally given in Roman capitals. (In another convention, they are given in letter-spaced lower case Roman letters, e.g., dumulugal, rather than DUMU LUGAL for $m\bar{a}r$ šarrim 'son of the king'.) A normalization of the logogram may accompany the logographic value, however. In such cases, the logographic writing is given in parentheses after the normalization; phonetic complements are written either on the line, separated from the logographic transliteration by a hyphen, or above the line, immediately after the logogram. The following will serve to illustrate these points:

好節 阳道 屈原 连郊体

DUMU LUGAL a-na É.GAL-lim i-ru-ub or $m\bar{a}r({\rm DUMU})$ š $arrim({\rm LUGAL})$ a-na $ekallim(\acute{\rm E.GAL}$ -lim or $\acute{\rm E.GAL}$ lim) i-ru-ub.

In the exercises that involve transliteration in this textbook, the first method will be used for logograms that the student has learned (i.e., no normalization will be given); for logograms that have not been encountered, the second method will be employed.

In the normalization of a transliteration that includes logograms (including the normalization and translation exercises accompanying each lesson), the grammatically correct Akkadian form must be supplied for each logogram. The sentence of the foregoing paragraph, then, must be normalized

 $m\bar{a}r$ šarrim ana ekallim $\bar{i}rub$ 'the king's son entered the palace'.

Another example:

DINGIR.MEŠ GAL.MEŠ KUR- $tam\ i$ -na $q\acute{a}$ -at DUMU- $ka\ i$ š-ku-nu, i.e, $il\bar{u}\ rab\hat{u}tum\ m\bar{a}tam\ ina\ q\bar{a}t\ m\bar{a}r\bar{i}ka\ i$ š $kun\bar{u}$ 'the great gods placed the land in your son's hand'.

Assyriologists use two additional symbols, + and x, to indicate individual components that constitute a single logographic value. The plus-sign, +, indicates that the constituents appear one after the other, as in 均用并 ZABAR (ud+ka+bar) siparrum 'bronze'.

(The + sign is also used to indicate ligatures of syllabograms: e.g., i+na indicates that the two signs are written together as if they are a single sign.) The multiplication sign, x, indicates that the second sign is written inside the first, as in EME (ka x me) lišānum 'tongue, language'.

13.3 Determinatives

Some signs, again physically indistinguishable from syllable signs, are used as graphic indicators of the class of objects to which the item denoted by a given noun belongs; they are called determinatives. Determinatives may be used to denote the material out of which an object is made or that a given noun denotes a proper name, a female, a city, a country, a river, a kind of animal (e.g., a fish, a bird), a part of the body, a profession, a month name, etc.

Most determinatives stand before the nouns they classify, although a few follow their nouns. They are represented in transliteration according to their Sumerian pronunciation (as with logograms), with lower case Roman letters (usually in smaller type), written as superscripts, i.e., above the line. All determinatives also occur as logograms, but not all logograms occur as determinatives; in fact, the number of determinatives is quite small, about two dozen. (A list of the most common determinatives is given on page 537.) Again, some signs may be used to write either a syllable (or part-syllable), a logogram, or a determinative: e.g.,

 $H = \text{syllabogram } is/s/z, es/s/z, \text{ but also} \\ \text{logogram GIŠ } (= isum) \text{ 'wood', and} \\ \text{determinative } g^{iš} \text{ before words for objects made of wood, as in} \\ H H g^{iš}M \acute{\text{A}} \text{ or in } g^{iš}e-le-ep-pu-um, \text{ both for } eleppum \text{ 'boat'}.$

Other signs are used only as logograms or determinatives: e.g.,

Some names of cities are both preceded by $ightharpoonup uru (URU = \bar{a}lum 'city') and followed by <math> ightharpoonup ki (KI = erṣetum 'land, district'): e.g.,$

洋环环转耳 urubar-sí-paki, i.e., Barsippa '(the city of) Borsippa'.

Note that determinatives are optional; they are very frequent with certain words and names, but they are not a necessary part of the writing of any word.

Exceptions to the practice of transliterating determinatives with their Sumerian value are the following frequently occurring determinatives:

- K d (for dingir), before divine names, as in 长河 dEN.LÍL (Enlil or Ellil) 'Enlil' (an important god);
- 序 f or mí, before women's names: 定不压锅 fši-ib-tu (Šibtu) 'Shibtu'.

Since determinatives are graphic devices only, without phonological value (i.e., they were not pronounced), they need not be indicated in normalization. As an illustration, consider the following sentence:

13.4 Personal Names

Akkadian personal names (PNs) have several forms.

- (a) Single nouns or adjectives: e.g., Ahum 'Brother'.
- (b) Genitive chains, in which the second element is normally a divine name, such as $Aw\bar{\imath}l\text{-}Marduk$ 'Man-of-Marduk'; $Warad\text{-}S\hat{\imath}n$ 'Slave-of-Sin'; note also $Warad\text{-}il\bar{\imath}\check{s}u$ 'Slave-of-his-god'; Warassa 'Herslave'.
- (c) Sentences, which also usually have a divine name or ilum as one of the elements. The sentences may be
 - (1) Verbless: e.g., Sîn- $\check{s}ar$ - $il\bar{\imath}$ 'Sîn-is-king-of-the-gods'; Marduk- $ab\bar{u}\check{s}u$ 'Marduk-is-his-father'; Itti-Sîn- $d\bar{\imath}n\bar{\imath}$ 'My-judgment-is-with-Sîn'; $\check{S}ama\check{s}$ -rabi 'Šamaš-is-great' (for the predicate adjective rabi, see §22.1).
 - (2) Verbal; the verb is usually Preterite or an injunctive form called the Precative (preformative li for 'may/let ...'; see §16.2): Iddin-Sîn 'Sîn-has-given(-a-son)'; Aḥam-arši 'I-acquired-a-brother'; Šamaš- liwwer 'May-Šamaš-shine' (nawārum 'to shine').

(d) Abbreviations of longer constructions, often with hypocoristic endings such as -(i)ya, -(y)atum.

Usually, PNs, even those ending in -um, are indeclinable: e.g., ana Ahum 'for Ahum' (vs. ana ahim 'for the brother'); there are many exceptions, however.

Not all names in OB texts are Akkadian. Most non-Akkadian names are either Sumerian (e.g., d NANNA-IBILA-MA.AN.SUM = Nanna-ibila-mansum 'Nanna-has-given-me-an-heir') or Amorite (e.g., $\underline{H}ammurapi$, better ${}^{c}ammu-r\bar{a}pi^{3}$ 'The-(divine) kinsman-is-a-healer'). Less often, Hurrian, Elamite, and other names also occur.

13.5 Old Babylonian Contracts

With this lesson begins the presentation in the exercises of actual Old Babylonian texts in transliteration. The first type of text to be presented is the contract. The thousands of OB contracts record a wide range of legal transactions and other activities, including, inter alia: marriage, divorce, and adoption; manumission of slaves; loans of silver, grain, and other commodities; guarantees of surety; purchases of houses, fields, animals, children, and slaves; exchanges of property; rentals, leases, and hires; and proceedings of and decisions of lawsuits.

The main topic of a contract — the person being adopted, the house being sold, etc. — is usually the first item mentioned, even though this frequently results in a reversal of the normal word order, when the topic is the direct object of the verb. Further, in purchases and similar transactions, the original owners, from whom the item is purchased, may precede the buyers. Thus, the first sentence in a contract may have the order Object – itti X – Subject – Verb:

eqlam itti PN1 PN2 išām 'PN2 bought a field from PN1'.

A contract normally concludes with a list of witnesses of the transaction. These are listed after the logogram IGI for maḥar 'before, in the presence of' (§12.3(c)). Following the witnesses there is often a date, in which a year-name is written in Sumerian (e.g., 'Year Ḥammurapi became king'); in some instances the month and day are also given. The Old Babylonian and other systems of recording dates are discussed below in Appendix A (pp. 577–78).

Many contracts were enclosed in clay envelopes, on which much or all of the text may be repeated, sometimes verbatim, sometimes with minor discrepancies. The existence of such envelopes frequently allows the complete reading of otherwise broken texts.

Contracts present a number of difficulties to the beginning student. Chief among these is that many formulaic terms are written in Sumerian; some of these will be introduced gradually in the next several lessons, while those that have not been introduced will be given in normalized Akkadian form when they occur in the contracts in the exercises. Another difficulty is the frequent presence of numbers and of units of measurement that are best presented only in a later lesson (see §23.2). When such numbers and units occur in our texts, we will usually either omit them altogether or replace them with an "x", as in

in other instances, numbers, which are invariably written with logograms (i.e., '1', '2', rather than 'one', 'two', etc.), will appear as such in our transliterations, and the student should refrain from normalizing them until they have been formally introduced in lesson 23.

EXERCISES

A. VOCABULARY 13.

Verbs:

ragāmum (u and a–u; i.e., Durative iraggum or iraggam) 'to shout; to call, summon, demand; to complain (against), sue (someone: ana; for/concerning: ana or aššum)'; rugummûm (base rugummā-) 'lawsuit; penalty, fine awarded/assessed in a lawsuit'.

 $tam\hat{u}m$ (a) 'to swear, take an oath (by someone: acc. or ina)'. $z\hat{a}zum$ (Preterite $iz\bar{u}z$) 'to divide, separate' (intrans.); 'to divide, divide into shares (trans.), distribute (to/among: ana); to share, take a share (of: ina)'; Verbal Adj. zīzum 'divided; sharing'.

Nouns:

 $b\bar{a}btum$ (bound form $b\bar{a}bti$; pl. $b\bar{a}b\bar{a}tum$) 'city quarter, neighborhood, district; goods/merchandise outstanding; loss, deficit'.

 $eb\bar{u}rum~(eb\bar{u}r)$ 'harvest(-time); crop; summer'.

 $n\bar{\imath}\check{s}um$ ($n\bar{\imath}\check{s}(i)$; log. MU) 'life'; $n\bar{\imath}\check{s}$ X $tam\hat{u}m$ 'to swear by (the life of) X' (e.g., $n\bar{\imath}\check{s}$ $\check{s}arrim$ nitma 'we swore by the life of the king').

šamšum (šamaš; log. UTU) 'sun'; see also Šamaš, below.

tappûm (base tappā-; Sum. lw.) 'business associate, partner'; tappûtum (tappût) 'partnership, association; position of helper, partner'; tappût X alākum 'to assist X, lend X a hand, come to the aid of X' (e.g., tappût aḥīya illikū 'they assisted my brother'; tappûssu allik 'I assisted him'); tappûtam epēšum 'to do/enter into business together'.

ûm (gen. îm or êm, acc. âm; bound form ê; with suff. nom. û-, gen. î/ê-, acc. â-; with 1cs suff., nom.-acc. ê, gen. êya; always written with log. ŠE, e.g., acc. ŠE-am or ŠE-a-am for âm; also written either ŠE.UM or ŠE.IM, regardless of case) 'barley, grain'. NOTE: the logogram ŠE is read as the Akkadian word šeum (bound form šê; a Sum. lw.) in both dictionaries and all text publications through 1989, when the reading ûm was proposed (Cavigneaux 1989); many scholars still read ŠE as šeum, which may in fact be the more common word for 'grain' in Akkadian (Weeden 2009).

Preposition:

adi 'up to, as far as, until'.

Proper Names:

Sîn (Sum. lw.; log. written ^dEN.ZU, read ^dZUEN) 'Sin', the moon god. Šamaš (log. ^dUTU) 'Shamash', the sun god; cf. šamšum above.

Idiom:

ahum aḥam 'one (subject) ... the other (object)' (e.g., ahum aham immar 'one sees the other'; aḥum ana aḥim 'one (subject) ... to the other' (e.g., aḥum ana aḥim ul iraggam 'one will not lay claim against the other').

LESSON FOURTEEN

14.1 The G Durative: Verbs II-weak

Consider the G Durative paradigms of the four types of verbs II—weak presented in §9.1:

	II-w	II–y	$II-^{3}1-2$	II— ³ 3–4
	$k \hat{a} n u m$	$qiar{a}\check{s}um$	šâmum	nêrum / nârum
3cs	ikân	iqīaš	išâm	inêr/inâr
2ms	takân	taqīaš	tašâm	tenêr/tanâr
2fs	takunnī	taqiššī	tašammī	tenerrī/tanarrī
1cs	akân	aqīaš	ašâm	enêr/anâr
3mp	ikunnū	iqiššū	išammū	inerrū/inarrū
3fp	ikunnā	iqiššā	išammā	inerrā/inarrā
2cp	takunnā	taqiššā	tašammā	tenerrā/tanarrā
1cp	nikân	niqīaš	nišâm	ninêr/ninâr

The form of the base of the G Durative for these verbs depends on whether there is a vocalic ending (2fs; second and third persons plural). When there is no vocalic ending, the forms are those resulting from vowel and consonant reduction:

ik\hat{a}n < ik\bar{u}an < *ikawwan \text{ (with } *aw > \bar{u} \text{ as elsewhere in Akkadian);} \\ iq\bar{\imath}a\check{s} < *iqayya\check{s} \text{ (with } *ay > \bar{\imath} \text{ as elsewhere; } \bar{\imath}a \text{ does not contract in OB} \\ \text{[see §6.1(c,1), p. 39]; note that the $-\bar{\imath}$- is marked long as in the Preterite $iq\bar{\imath}s$, whereas in the Infinitive $qi\bar{a}\check{s}um$ the $-i$- is marked short and the $-\bar{a}$- long);}

inêr < ineer* < inehher* < inahhar* (forms with a, inâr, are uncommon).

In verbs II– 3 , the forms without endings are distinguished from the corresponding Preterite forms in normalization by means of the circumflex vs. the macron, as in Durative $i\check{s}\hat{a}m$, $in\hat{e}r$ vs. Preterite $i\check{s}\bar{a}m$, $in\bar{e}r$. In the writing, however, the Durative and Preterite are generally identical, both written i- $\check{s}a$ -am and i-ne-er, respectively (the Durative occasionally appears as i- $\check{s}a$ -am, i-ne-e-er).

When a vocalic ending does follow, the base of each type has a short vowel, the short version of the long vowel of the Preterite, and a doubled final radical. Note that if the doubling is not explicitly indicated in the script, such forms will be distinguishable from the corresponding Preterites only by context: e.g., i-qi- $\check{s}u$ may be Preterite $iq\bar{\imath}\check{s}\bar{u}$ or Durative $iqi\check{s}\check{s}\bar{u}$.

In terms of vowel classes,

verbs II-w, such as ik\hat{a}n-ik\bar{u}n, may be called a-u (also, Verbs II-u); II-y, iq\bar{\iota}a\check{s}-iq\bar{\iota}\check{s} a-i (also, Verbs II-i); II-^3-1-2 i\check{s}\hat{a}m-i\check{s}\bar{a}m a (also, Verbs II-a); II-^3-3-4 in\hat{e}r-in\bar{e}r e (also, Verbs II-e).

14.2 Interrogative Words

Each of the following is declinable for case.

(a) The personal interrogative pronoun is mannum (gen. mannim, acc. mannam) 'who?' There is no special feminine form or plural:

mannum ana bītim īrub 'Who entered the house?'
mannam tāmurā 'Whom did you (pl) see?'
ana mannim kaspam tanaddinī 'To whom will you (fs) give the silver?'
mār mannim atta 'Whose son are you?'

Note that the interrogative normally stands as close as possible to the beginning of the sentence.

(b) The impersonal interrogative pronoun 'what?' occurs in two forms, $m\bar{\imath}num$ (base $m\bar{\imath}n$ -; gen. $m\bar{\imath}nim$, acc. $m\bar{\imath}nam$) and $min\hat{\imath}m$ (base mina-; gen. $min\hat{\imath}m$, acc. $min\hat{\imath}m$). Again, no feminine or plural forms occur, and the form stands at or near the beginning of the sentence:

mīnum ina eqlim 'What is in the field?' minâm tēpuš 'What did you (ms) do?'
```

Note the common phrase ana mīnim, often contracted to am-mīnim 'why?' (literally: 'for what?'):

```
am-mīnim ana ālīšu tallikī? 'Why did you (fs) go to his town?'
```

(c) The interrogative adjective ayyum 'which?' agrees with the noun it modifies in case, number, and gender. The base of this form is ayy- (thus, sg. gen. ayyim, acc. ayyam; mp ayyūtum; fp ayyūtum), but the fem. sg. is irregularly ayyītum. When used attributively, ayyum may precede or follow its noun:

ana ayyim şuḥārim âm tapqid 'To which servant did you (ms) supply grain?'

ilū ayyūtum ištu šamê ikšudū 'Which gods arrived from the sky?'
narkabti šarrim ayyītam irakkab 'Which royal chariot will he ride?'

(In predicate use, which is rare, ayyum stands first:

ayyūtum ana bēlīya 'Which are my lord's?')

(d) In sentences in which an interrogative word, such as the three discussed in the previous paragraphs, occurs, the negative adverb ul is replaced by another adverb, $l\bar{a}$ (written la-a or simply la):

am- $m\bar{\imath}nim$ $m\bar{a}rkunu$ ana $mahr\bar{\imath}su$ $l\bar{a}$ $tatrud\bar{a}$ 'Why did you (mp) not send your son to him?'

14.3 Indefinite Pronouns and Indefinite Adjective

In general, these are formed by reduplication of the bases of the interrogative words discussed in the preceding section, or by adding the particle -ma to their bases.

(a) The personal indefinite pronoun is mamman (< *manman), occasionally shortened to mamma 'anyone, someone', with a negative 'no one'; the form is indeclinable:

mamman ul illik 'No one went'; mamma ul āmur 'I did not see anyone/I saw no one'; šamnam ana mamman addin 'I gave oil to someone'.

mamman may also be used in apposition after a noun; in such cases, it should be translated 'any', with a negative 'not any, no':

ḫurāṣam ana ṣuḥārtim mamman ul niddin 'We did not give the gold to any female servant'.

(The phrase mamman ša, i.e., the indefinite pronoun followed by the determinative-relative pronoun, means 'anyone who, whoever'; see §19.3(b), end.)

(b) From $m\bar{\imath}num$ is formed the impersonal indefinite pronoun mimma 'anything, something, all' and, with a negative, 'nothing'; like mamman, mimma is indeclinable:

mimma ul nīmur 'We did not see anything/We saw nothing'; mimma ana šarrim anaddin 'I will give something to the king'.

mimma may occur in apposition before or after a noun, as in eqlam mimma (or mimma eqlam) ula imaḥḥar 'she may not receive any field', or as a bound form before a genitive, as in mimma eqlim 'all (i.e., anything of) the field'.

In apposition, mimma occurs in the common expression mimma šumšu 'anything at all, everything' (literally, 'whatever its name'). Finally, mimma may be used adverbially, with a negative, meaning '(not) at all, (not) in any way, in (no) way':

mimma ul nihdu 'We did not rejoice at all'.

(The phrase mimma ša means 'anything that, whatever'; see §19.3(b), end.)

(c) The adjectival ayyumma 'whichever, any, some' is based on ayyum and is declined like the latter with -ma attached:

ana ālim ayyimma 'toward some/any town';
amtam ayyītamma ša qātīya aṭarrad 'I will send whichever slave (f) is at my disposal'.

ayyumma may also occur independently, meaning 'someone':

ayyumma imât 'Someone will die'.

14.4 The Abstract Suffix -ūt

The suffix $-\bar{u}t$ may be added to the base of many nouns and adjectives to form abstract nouns. It corresponds to the English endings '-ness, -ship, -hood, -ity, -ery'. Although the ending $-\bar{u}t$ is formally identical to the masc. pl. ending of adjectives, nouns formed with it are grammatically feminine singular:

bēlūtam rabītam teppeš 'you (ms) exercise great lordship';

The bound form corresponds to other polysyllabic nouns ending in a single consonant:

 $b\bar{e}l\bar{u}t\ ilim\ ann \hat{i}m$ 'the lordship of this god'; $b\bar{e}l\bar{u}ssu$ 'his lordship'.

The feminine marker -(a)t is normally dropped when $-\bar{u}t$ is added:

aššūtum 'wifehood'; sinnišūtum 'womanhood'.

For reference, the most common nouns ending in $-\bar{u}t$ that are derived from the vocabulary to this point are listed here:

 abbūtum (with -bb-) 'father's legal status; fatherly attitude';

 aḫḫūtum (with -ḫḫ-) 'brotherhood, brotherliness; status of brother';

 aššūtum 'marriage; status of wife';

 awīlūtum 'humanity, human species, people; someone, anyone; soldier, worker, status of awīlum';

 $b\bar{e}l\bar{u}tum$ 'lordship, dominion, rule; position of owner'; $b\bar{e}l\bar{u}tam~ep\bar{e}\check{s}um$ 'to exercise lordship';

dannūtum 'strength, power, violence' (late, also 'fortress'); ilūtum 'divinity, divine nature, divine power';

mārūtum 'sonship; status of son (natural or adopted)';
mutūtum 'position of a husband';
nišūtum 'family, relatives';
qarrādūtum 'ability in battle, heroism' (rare in OB);
rabûtum 'greatness';
rēšūtum 'slavery; service';
rubûtum 'principality; dominion';
šarrūtum 'kingship; dominion; majesty'; šarrūtam epēšum 'to exercise kingship';
šībūtum '(old) age; testimony; witness';
tappûtum 'partnership, association; position of helper, partner' (see Vocab. 13);
wardūtum 'slavery; position of slave'.

14.5 Verbal Hendiadys

Verbal hendiadys is the use of two verbs, co-ordinated either with -ma or asyndetically (i.e., without a conjunction), in which the first verb qualifies or restricts the meaning of the second. A literal translation of such a contruction may be quite awkward, and it is often preferable to render the first verb adverbially in English. Perhaps the most common verb to appear in this type of construction is $t\hat{a}rum$ 'to return'; in hendiadys, $t\hat{a}rum$ also means 'to do (something) again', in which 'something' is conveyed by the second verb: e.g.,

 $at\bar{u}r$ -ma wardam ana $b\bar{e}l\bar{\iota}ya$ aṭrud 'I sent the slave to my lord again'; $dayy\bar{a}num$ $s\bar{u}$ ul $it\hat{a}r$ -ma itti $dayy\bar{a}n\bar{\iota}$ ina $d\bar{\iota}nim$ ul ussab 'that judge will no longer sit in judgment with the judges' ($ussab = was\bar{a}bum$ G Durative, §15.1).

Note also gamārum, which may mean 'to do something completely', and kanākum 'to give/take/send something under seal':

eqlam anniam šipram igammar-ma ippeš 'he will work this field completely';

kaspam ana bēlīya aknuk-ma addin 'I gave the silver to my lord under seal'.

Also frequent in hendiadys is the verb sadārum 'to occur/do regularly':

isaddar-ma kaspam ana bēlīšu inaddin 'he will regularly give silver to his lord'.

From the examples given above it may be seen that complements (objects, prepositional phrases) may appear either before both verbs or between them. The subject normally precedes both verbs, as in the second example above ($dayy\bar{a}num\ \check{s}\bar{u}$...), but occasionally follows the first, as in ul iturrū-ma mārūšu ul iraggamū 'his sons will not contest again'.

itûm (base itā-; bound form itê and itā; log. ÚS.SA.DU) 'border, neighbor, neighboring field, plot'; the bound form itā is used as a preposition (also with log. ÚS.SA.DU), 'bordering on, beside'.

kirûm (base kiri-; pl. kirû and kiriātum; Sum. lw.) 'garden, orchard'.
mārūtum (mārūt) 'sonship; status of son (natural or adopted)'; ana mārūtim leqûm 'to adopt'.

šērtum (šēret) 'penalty, punishment'; šērtam emēdum 'to impose a penalty, punishment' (on someone: acc.).

 $wark\bar{\imath}tum$ ($wark\bar{\imath}t$; pl. $warki\bar{a}tum$ often = sg.) 'future, later time, time afterward'; $ina\ wark\bar{\imath}tim/warki\bar{a}tim$ 'in (the) future, later on, afterward'; $ana/ina\ wark\bar{\imath}t/warki\bar{a}t\ \bar{u}mim/\bar{u}m\bar{\imath}$ 'in future'.

Pronouns:

ayyum (fem. irregularly ayyītum) 'which?'.

ayyumma (fem. ayyītumma) 'whichever, any, some'.

mamman (occasionally also mamma) 'anyone, someone', with a negative 'no one'.

mannum 'who?'.

mimma 'anything, something, all', with a negative 'nothing'; mimma šumšu 'anything at all, everything'.

mīnum (base mīn-) and minûm (mina-) 'what?'; ana mīnim and am-mīnim 'why?'.

Preposition:

aššum (with suff. aššumīya, aššumīka, etc.) 'concerning, because of, on account of, for the sake of'.

LESSON FIFTEEN

15.1 The G Durative: Verbs I-w

As in the Preterite (§10.1(b)), stative/adjectival verbs must be distinguished from active verbs.

(a) Stative verbs are all i-class, and, as in the Preterite, the Durative resembles that of verbs I–e (for which see §13.1); e.g., for $wat\bar{a}rum$:

3cs	ittir	3mp	$ittirar{u}$
		3fp	$ittirar{a}$
2ms	tettir	2cp	$tettirar{a}$
2fs	$tettirar{\iota}$	_
1cs	ettir	1cp	nittir

(b) Active verbs I–w are all a–i verbs (except those that are also III–weak; see §21.3(g)). The prefix always contains a short u (cf. the Preterite), the only vestige of the initial w of the root; the second radical is doubled, as usual in Durative forms; e.g., for $waš\bar{a}bum$:

3cs	ušš ab	3mp	u šš $abar{u}$
		3fp	ušša $bar{a}$
2ms	tušš ab	2cp	tu šš $abar{a}$
2fs	tu šš $abar{\imath}$
1cs	ušš ab	1cp	$nu\check{s}\check{s}ab$

Note that, as in the Preterite, the 3cs and 1cs forms are identical. Durative forms beginning with a vowel occur in three variant spellings, the expected writing $u\check{s}-\check{s}a-ab$, but also $\acute{u}-\check{s}a-ab$ (without the doubling indicated) and $\acute{u}-u\check{s}-\check{s}a-ab$ (with both doubling indicated and an extra initial vowel-sign; cf. writings of the Durative of verbs $I-^{\circ}$ of the type i-ha-az and i-ih-ha-az).

The Durative of $bab\bar{a}lum$ 'to carry' is regular, e.g., $3cs/1cs\ ubbal$, $2ms\ tubbal$, $3fp\ ubbal\bar{a}$, etc.

15.2 The Ventive

The Ventive is a morpheme that may be added to any finite verb. It has three allomorphs, which occur as follows:

    -am on the 3cs, 2ms, 1cs, and 1cp: e.g., imqut 'she fell', with Ventive imqutam;
        takaššad 'you (ms) will arrive', with Ventive takaššadam;
        allik 'I went', with Ventive allikam;
        nibni 'we built', with Ventive nibniam;
-m on the 2fs:
        tallakī 'you (fs) will go', with Ventive tallakīm;
        telqî 'you (fs) took', with Ventive telqîm;
-nim on the 3mp, 3fp, and 2cp:
        ibannû 'they (m) will build', with Ventive ibannûnim;
        illikā 'they (f) went', with Ventive illikānim;
        telqeā 'you (pl) took', with Ventive telqeānim.
```

The ending -am is subject to the regular rules of vowel contraction (§6.1) when it occurs with verbs III–weak:

abanni 'I will build', with Ventive abanniam; imla 'it became full', with Ventive imlâm; niḥaddu 'we rejoice', with Ventive niḥaddâm; tešme 'you (ms) heard', with Ventive tešmeam.

Note that forms that already have endings, such as $ibn\hat{u}$ 'they (m) built' and $tahd\hat{u}$ 'you (fs) rejoiced', take the Ventive with no further alteration: $ibn\hat{u}nim$; $tahd\hat{u}m$.

Further, the addition of -am affects the Preterite forms of active verbs I—w and the Durative forms of verbs II—weak in the same way as the addition of $-\bar{u}$, $-\bar{a}$, $-\bar{\imath}$:

ušib 'he sat', with Ventive ušbam;nubil 'we carried', with Ventive nubilam or nublam;atâr 'I will return', with Ventive aturram;tenêr 'you (ms) will slay', with Ventive tenerram.
```

Note in the last example and in others given above that the a of -am does not become e when there is an e-vowel elsewhere in the word; another example:

```
eppeš 'I will do', with Ventive eppešam.

The Ventive is essentially a directional element that denotes motion or activity in the direction of, or to a point near, the speaker (or a person being addressed, when the speaker places herself in the location of the person addressed; see further below). The Ventive appears most commonly on verbs of motion. Akkadian verbs of motion do not convey a lexical distinction between motion away from the speaker and motion to the speaker, English 'go' vs. 'come'. Thus, for example, ana bītim erēbum means 'to enter a house'; the absence or presence of the Ventive morpheme specifies whether the speaker is outside or inside the house:

ana bītim īrub 'he went into the house' vs. ana bītim īrubam 'he came into the house' (both may also be translated 'he entered the house').

Further examples:

ana dannatim atâr 'I will go back to the fortress' (speaker not in fortress)

vs. ana dannatim aturram 'I will come back to the fortress' (speaker in fortress)

(both may also be translated 'I will return to the fortress').

ištu ālim turdā 'you (pl) went down from the town' (speaker in the town) (warādum 'to descend')

vs. ištu ālim turdānim 'you (pl) came down from the town' (speaker below the town)

(both may also be translated 'you descended from the town').

ana bābti aḥīni nillik 'we went to our brother's district' vs. ana bābti ahīni nillikam 'we came to our brother's district'.

The Ventive often occurs when the second person is involved, i.e., when a person is being addressed, because the speaker may place himself in the location of the latter; contrast ana āl bēlīya akaššad 'I will arrive at my lord's city' when speaking/writing to a third party, but ana āl bēlīya akaššadam (same translation) when speaking/writing to the lord himself. Similarly,

 $ward\bar{u}ya\ kasp\bar{\imath}\ ana\ B\bar{a}bilim\ ubl\bar{u}$ 'my slaves carried my silver to Babylon', whereas $ubl\bar{u}nim$ (i.e., with the Ventive) in the same sentence would imply that either the person speaking/writing or the person being addressed was in Babylon:

wardūya kaspī ana Bābilim ublūnim 'my slaves brought my silver (here/there) to Babylon'.

Connected with the use of the Ventive to indicate motion in the direction of the speaker/writer is its use as the 1cs dative suffix:

taddinam 'you (ms) gave to me'; iṭarradūnim 'they (m) will send (here) to me'; tēpušīm 'you (fs) acted for me'.

For dative pronominal suffixes for the other persons, see §18.2.

When two verbs are connected with the enclitic conjunction -ma, and the second verb has the Ventive, the first will also often have it, with no change of nuance perceptible to the modern reader: e.g., ṭuppašu iknukam-ma ina qāt ṣuḥārīšu išpuram 'He sealed his tablet and sent (it) here with his servant' (šapārum 'to send').

Not infrequently, the particular lexical or contextual nuance of a given occurrence of the Ventive is difficult to ascertain; this is especially true in poetry.

15.3 Indefinite or Unspecified Subject

To express an indefinite or unspecified subject (i.e., English 'one', or the indefinite 'they' or 'people'; French on; German man), Akkadian uses the 3mp form of the verb. As an example, consider $d\bar{\imath}nam\;iprus\bar{u}$ lit. 'they decided the case';

if the context does not include anyone to whom 'they' obviously refers, the clause may be rendered

'one decided the case'.

In more idiomatic English, such expressions are normally passivized:

'the case was decided'.

Another example:

(If a man stole silver,) $q\bar{a}ssu\ inakkis\bar{u}$ 'his hand will be cut off' (lit. 'they will cut off his hand').

15.4 Direct Speech

Since the writing system does not involve the use of any punctuation marks, the presence of quoted speech can be a difficult feature in Akkadian texts. Sometimes there is no overt indication of a direct quotation at all, and its presence must be inferred from surrounding context. More often, however, some signal of the presence of direct speech does appear. Sometimes a verb of speaking, telling, writing, approaching, informing, or the like occurs after a quotation:

DUMU a-na a-bi-šu \acute{u} -ul a-bi at-ta i- $q\acute{a}$ -bi-ma a-bu-um DUMU-šu a-na KUG.BABBAR i-na-di-in = $m\bar{a}$ rum ana $ab\bar{i}$ šu "ul $ab\bar{i}$ atta" iq $abb\bar{i}$ -ma abum $m\bar{a}$ ršu ana kaspim inaddin 'If the son says to his father, "You are not my father," the father may sell his son.'

In some instances, especially in letters (§24.5), direct quotations are introduced with a formula like the following:

PN $kiam\ iqbiam\ umma\ \check{s}\bar{u}$ -ma lit. 'PN spoke thus to me, he (said) as follows', kiam tašpurānim umma attunū-ma lit. 'you (pl) wrote to me thus, you (said) as follows', in which there appear the adverbs kiam 'thus, in this manner' and umma 'as follows', the latter of which is used only to introduce direct speech; the formula is completed with the particle -ma, which is attached to a noun or pronoun referring to the speaker/writer, and which should not be translated. Not infrequently, a quote is introduced simply by umma followed by the person being quoted, in the nominative, plus -ma:

umma awīlum-ma 'the man (said) as follows'; umma Sîn-nāṣir-ma 'Sîn-nāṣir (said) as follows'.

Occasionally, the quote is followed by an inclusio, such as kiam iqbiam 'thus he said to me'; kiam tašpurīm 'thus you (fs) wrote to me'.

Sometimes direct speech is indicated by another means, namely, the addition of the particle -mi to a word at or near the beginning of each clause of the quotation (sometimes to more than one, or even to every, word in a clause). Like the particle -ma (§7.4), -mi causes an immediately preceding short vowel to become long. An example:

awīlum-mi ulā-mi imhuranni ""the man did not approach me" (-anni on the verb = "me").

warādum (urrad - urid) 'to descend, go/come down'.
waṣābum (uṣṣab - uṣib) 'to add (to), increase, enlarge; to pay as interest' (cf. ṣibtum below).

Nouns:

abullum (fem.; bound form abul; suff. abulla-; pl. abullātum; log. ABUL [formerly read KÁ.GAL]) 'city gate, entrance gate'.

eleppum (fem.; elep; suff. eleppa-; pl. eleppētum; log. ^(giš)MÁ) 'ship, boat'.

erṣetum (erṣet; pl. erṣētum; log. KI) 'the earth; land, district, area; ground, earth; the nether world'.

ṣibtum (ṣibat; pl. ṣibātum; log. MÁŠ) 'interest' (cf. waṣābum above).

Adjectives:

 $el\hat{u}m$ (base $el\bar{\imath}$ -; fem. $el\bar{\imath}tum$) 'upper'. $p\bar{a}n\hat{u}m$ (base $p\bar{a}n\bar{\imath}$ -; fem. $p\bar{a}n\bar{\imath}tum$) 'earlier, former, previous; earliest, first' (cf. $p\bar{a}num$).

Adverbs:

kiam 'thus, in this manner'.umma 'as follows' (introducing direct quotations).

Particle:

-mi indicates that the clause of the word to which it is suffixed is part of a direct quotation.

Divine Name:

 $\it Enlil$ (or $\it Ellil$; log. den. Líl) 'Enlil', one of the heads of the Mesopotamian pantheon.

LESSON SIXTEEN

16.1 The G Imperative

The Imperative is the form used for commands; it occurs only in the second person. With some modifications in the various weak root types (and in the derived stems), the form of the Imperative is essentially the Preterite without a prefix. Thus, the theme vowel of the Imperative is always that of the Preterite. The usual second person endings, $-\bar{\imath}$ for the fem. sg., $-\bar{a}$ for the common pl., also occur on the Imperative.

(a) Sound Verbs. Without its prefix, the base of the Preterite of sound verbs begins with two consonants. Since that situation is not tolerated in Akkadian, a vowel is inserted between the first two radicals; for all but a very few roots (listed below), the vowel inserted is the same as the Preterite theme-vowel. Because of the vowel syncope rule (§4.1), when the fem. sg. ending $-\bar{\imath}$, the pl. ending $-\bar{a}$, and the Ventive ending -am are added, the theme-vowel between R_2 and R_3 drops out. In the following paradigm, forms with the Ventive are given in parentheses.

As the forms given here indicate, the fs and cp undergo no further changes when the Ventive is added, and this is true for all verb types. Hence, for the weak root types presented in the following paragraphs, only the ms will be presented with its corresponding Ventive form (in parentheses); for the Ventive on the fs, add -m, on the cp, add -nim, as with the Preterite and Durative.

The only sound verbs in which the vowel inserted between R_1 and R_2 differs from the theme-vowel are five a-class verbs:

lamādum 'to learn';rakābum 'to ride, mount';palāhum 'to fear, worship';takālum 'to trust'.pašāhum 'to refresh oneself';
```

In these verbs the vowel inserted between R_1 and R_2 is i: e.g., ms rikab (with Ventive rikbam), fs $rikb\bar{\imath}$, cp $rikb\bar{\imath}$.

(b) Verbs III–Weak. These offer few difficulties; the usual rules of vowel contraction are applied.

	banûm (i)	$had\hat{u}m(u)$	malûm (a)	šemûm (e) ms	$bini\ (biniam)$	${\it hudu}\;({\it hudâm})$	$mila\ (mil\hat{a}m)$	šeme (šemeam)
fs	binî	hudî	$mil\hat{\imath}$	šemî
ср	$biniar{a}$	hudâ	$mil\hat{a}$	$\check{s}emear{a}$

Notes: All verbs III–a, like the five exceptional sound verbs of the a-class listed above, have i between R_1 and R_2 . Verbs III–e also occur with i between R_1 and R_2 : $šime\ (šimeam)$, $šim\hat{\imath}$, $šime\bar{a}$. With the addition of -ma, the final vowel of the ms forms is lengthened: $bin\bar{\imath}-ma$, $hud\bar{\imath}-ma$, $mil\bar{\imath}-ma$, $šem\bar{e}-ma$ / $šim\bar{e}-ma$.

(c) Verbs I–n. The initial radical n does not appear in the G Imperatives of these verbs; forms begin with the copy of the theme-vowel (i.e., from $naq\bar{a}rum$, we find uqur < *nuqur, from $nad\bar{a}num$ we find idin < *nidin). Exceptions to the loss of the n are verbs that are also II—weak, such as $n\hat{e}rum$ (see e, below).

	$naqar{a}rum\;(a–u)$	$nadar{a}num~(i)$
ms	$uqur\left(uqram ight)$	$idin\ (idnam)$
fs	$uqrar{\imath}$	$idnar{\imath}$
ср	$uqrar{a}$	$idnar{a}$

(d) Verbs I–². The Imperatives of all verbs I–a begin with a short a, regardless of the theme-vowel; this applies to $al\bar{a}kum$ as well. Verbs I–e, as expected, begin with e rather than a.

(e) Verbs II–weak. The Imperative of these verbs is in all instances simply the prefixless base of the Preterite, with no further modifications.

	târum (a–u)	qiāšum (a–i)	šâmum (a)	nêrum (e) ms	$t\bar{u}r\ (t\bar{u}ram)$	$q\bar{\imath}\check{s}\ (q\bar{\imath}\check{s}am)$	$\check{s}\bar{a}m\;(\check{s}\bar{a}mam)$	$nar{e}r~(nar{e}ram)$
fs	$tar{u}rar{\imath}$	$qar{\imath}\check{s}ar{\imath}$	$\check{s}\bar{a}mar{\imath}$	$nar{e}rar{\imath}$
ср	$tar{u}rar{a}$	$qar{\imath}\check{s}ar{a}$	$\check{s}ar{a}mar{a}$	$nar{e}rar{a}$

(f) Verbs I-w. For adjectival verbs I–w, such as $wat\bar{a}rum$, no Imperatives are attested.

For active verbs I–w, as for verbs II–weak, above, the Imperative is the prefixless base of the Preterite. The Imperative of $bab\bar{a}lum$ is formed like those of other verbs I–w.

	wašābum (a–i)	$babar{a}lum~(a\!-\!i)$
ms	$\check{s}ib~(\check{s}ibam)$	$bil\ (bilam)$
fs	$\check{s}ibar{\imath}$	$bilar{\imath}$
ср	$\check{s}ibar{a}$	$bilar{a}$

For $was\bar{a}bum$ there also exists an alternate Imperative, with prefix t-: $ti\bar{s}ab$ ($ti\bar{s}bam$), fs * $ti\bar{s}b\bar{a}$ (thus far unattested), cp $ti\bar{s}b\bar{a}$ or $ta\bar{s}b\bar{a}$.

(g) Syntax of the Imperative. Like all other verbs, the Imperative stands at the end of its clause:

ina ālim šibī 'stay (fs) in the town';

aklam mādam u šikaram ṭābam ana ummānātīkunu idnā 'give (mp) much food and good beer to your troops';

šamnam leqeam-ma ana maḥrīya bilam 'obtain (ms) the oil and bring (it) to me'.

The Imperative is never used with a negative adverb. To express a negative command, i.e., to negate the Imperative, the Prohibitive is used (below, §16.3(a)).

16.2 The Precative

The Precative expresses either a wish or an indirect command (see further below); it occurs in the third and first persons (sg. and pl.), but not in the second person. Thus, with the Imperative, it forms a suppletive injunctive (command) paradigm.

The forms of the Precative, like those of the Imperative, are based on the Preterite. Third person forms and the 1cs form are marked by a prefix beginning with l- that replaces the prefix of the Preterite; the 1cp is marked by a preposed particle. As the examples will illustrate, the following rules apply to all the verbs in the language, including verbs I–w (also the derived stems, such as the D and Š, in which the prefix of the Preterite is u-; §§24.2, 27.1, etc.):

all 3rd person forms: the prefix li- replaces the i- or u- of the Preterite: $li\check{s}hun$ 'let him/her place'; $li\check{s}b\bar{a}$ 'let them (f) dwell';

1cs, the prefix lu-replaces the a- or u- of the Preterite: luškun 'let me place'; lušib 'let me dwell';

1cp: the Preterite is preceded by an unattached short i: i niškun 'let us place'; i nušib 'let us dwell'.

In verbs I⁻³ and stative verbs I–w, in which the prefix vowel of the Preterite is long (because of the loss of the initial consonant), the vowel of the prefix in the Precative is likewise long: e.g., 1cs $l\bar{u}huz$ 'let me seize'; $l\bar{u}pu\check{s}$ 'let me do'; 3cs $l\bar{\iota}kul$ 'let her/him eat'; 3mp $l\bar{\iota}ter\bar{u}$ 'let them (m) increase'.

For reference, the G Precative of one of each verb type is given below.

	Sound	III–weak	I-n	I– a	I– e	II–weak	I–w (active)
	šakānum	banûm	$nad\bar{a}num$	$a h \bar{a} z u m$	epēšum	$t \hat{a} r u m$	$waar{s}ar{a}bum$
3cs	liš kun	libni	liddin	$l ar{\imath} h u z$	$l ar{\imath} p u \check{s}$	$litar{u}r$	$li\check{s}ib$
1cs	luš kun	lubni	luddin	$lar{u}huz$	$lar{u}pu\check{s}$	$lutar{u}r$	$lu\check{s}ib$
3mp	li š $kunar{u}$	$libn\hat{u}$	$liddinar{u}$	$l ar{\imath} h u z ar{u}$	$lar\iota pu\check sar u$	$litar{u}rar{u}$	$li\check{s}bar{u}$
3fp	li š $kunar{a}$	$libniar{a}$	$liddinar{a}$	$l ar{\imath} h u z ar{a}$	$lar{\imath}puar{s}ar{a}$	$litar{u}rar{a}$	$li\check{s}bar{a}$
1cp	i niškun	$i\ nibni$	$i\ niddin$	i nīḫuz	i nīpuš	$i\ nitar{u}r$	i nušib

The Ventive morpheme may be added to any Precative: e.g.,

As stated above, the Precative expresses:

(a) a wish:

lillik 'may he go, would that he would go';
lukšud 'may I arrive, I would/I'd like to arrive, I wish to arrive';
i nīmur 'may we see, we would/we'd like to see';
```

(b) an indirect command:

```
lillik 'let him go, he should/ought to/must go';lukšud 'let me arrive, I should/ought to/must arrive';i nīmur 'let us see, let's see, we should/ought to/must see'.

Which of these nuances is intended for any given form must be determined from the context. The 1cs Precative is particularly common in questions: e.g.,

am-mīnim ana bīt abīya lullik 'Why should I go to my father's house?'
```

mīnam lūpuš 'What should I do/am I to do?'

The Precative also figures in the protases of unmarked conditional sentences (i.e., 'let/should x happen' = 'if x happens'; see $\S17.3$), as in kaspum līter limṭī-ma ul atâr-ma ul araggam 'whether the silver increases or decreases, I will not contest again' (lit., 'let the silver increase, let it decrease, and ...'; maṭûm 'to decrease').

The Precative does not occur with a negative adverb; rather, a negative wish or indirect command is expressed with either the Vetitive or the Prohibitive (see the next section).

16.3 Negative Commands and Wishes

It was pointed out in the two foregoing sections that neither the Imperative nor the Precative may be used with a negative; instead, there are two distinct forms used to express negative commands and wishes: the Prohibitive and the Vetitive.

(a) The Prohibitive for all verbs consists of the negative adverb $l\bar{a}$ followed immediately by the Durative. It is used to express negative commands and prohibitions. Some examples:

l\bar{a} ta\check{s}appar 'do not send, you may not send (ms)'; l\bar{a} u\check{s}\check{s}ab\bar{u} 'they (m) may not/shall not stay'; l\bar{a} terrub\bar{\imath} 'do not enter, you may not enter (fs)'.

It is important to note the very distinct meanings of ul and $l\bar{a}$ with the Durative in main clauses:

ul taturram 'you (ms) do/will not come back, are/were not coming back';

but $l\bar{a}$ taturram 'do not come back, you may not come back (ms)'.

(b) The Vetitive is formed by prefixing ayy- or \bar{e} - to the Preterite; the former occurs before vowels, the latter before consonants: e.g., for $\check{s}ak\bar{a}num$:

3cs	ayy-iškun	3mp	ayy-iškunū
		3fp	ayy-iškunā
2ms	$ar{e}$ - t aš k u n	2cp	$ar{e}$ -taš $kunar{a}$
2fs	$ar{e}$ - ta š $kunar{\imath}$
1cs	ayy-aškun	1cp	ē-niškun

The allomorph ayy- may be indicated in the script by a-, a-a-, or a-IA; e.g., ayy- $i\check{s}kun$ may be written in any of the following ways:

a-iš-ku-un, a-a-iš-ku-un, a-ii(IA)-iš-ku-un.

The Vetitive expresses a negative wish; it is therefore less forceful than the Prohibitive. Some examples:

 \bar{e} - $tamhur\bar{a}$ 'may you (pl) not receive, you should not receive'; ayy- $it\bar{u}r\bar{u}nim$ 'may they (m) not come back, they should not come back'; ayy- $am\bar{u}t$ 'may I not die, I do not wish to die'; \bar{e} - $n\bar{t}mur$ 'may we not see, we do not wish to see'.

The Vetitive is found rather infrequently, and is occasionally replaced by the Prohibitive.

16.4 The Use of Injunctive Forms to Express Purpose

In a sequence of two or more clauses in which the first verb is an injunctive form, i.e., an Imperative, a Precative, a Prohibitive, or a Vetitive, and the following verb or verbs are also injunctive forms, and the verbs are connected either by -ma or, less often, asyndetically (§§7.4–7.5), the second and following clauses are often to be translated as purpose clauses (i.e., 'so that', 'in order that', 'that'). Some examples:

kaspam šuāti piqdam-ma ekallam lūpul-ma bītī lā iṣabbatū 'Provide (ms) me with the aforementioned silver, (so) that I may pay the palace, and/(so) that my estate not be seized';

bēlī âm ana wardīšu liddim-ma līkulū 'May my lord give grain to his menservants, (so) that they may eat';

mārī ṭurdam ittīšu ludbub 'Send my son here, that I may speak with him' (dabābum [u] 'to speak');

 $mimma\ l\bar{a}\ takall\hat{a}$ -ma $b\bar{\imath}tni\ i\ nibni$ 'Do not withhold (pl) anything, so that we may build our house' $(kal\hat{u}m\ [a]$ 'to withhold').

Especially common in letters is the imperative of $\check{saparum}$ followed by a precative, with the meaning 'give order that ... may happen':

šupur wardī šunūti ana ekallim liṭrudūnim 'Give (ms) order that those servants be sent here to the palace'.

Even the sequence {Precative(\pm -ma)+Imperative} may connote purpose:

warkatam liprusū-ma ṭēmam ṣabat 'They (m) should investigate the case so that you (ms) may take action' (warkatum see Vocabulary of this lesson).

When a verb in the second or following clause is the Prohibitive or the Vetitive, a translation involving 'lest' is often appropriate:

mê idnam-ma lā amât 'Give (ms) me water, lest I die';
ana mātim šuāti lā tallak-ma nakrum napištaka lā inakkis 'Do not go (ms) to that land, lest the enemy kill you' (lit., 'cut off your life').

EXERCISES

A. VOCABULARY 16.

Verbs:

- etēqum (i) 'to pass along, pass by, advance, elapse; to pass through, across; to exceed, transgress; to avoid'.
- palāḥum (a; Impv. irregular: pilaḥ) 'to fear, be afraid (of: acc.); to worship, respect, revere'; Verbal Adj. palḥum (paliḥ-) 'feared, fearsome; timid, reverential'.
- petûm (e) 'to open' (transitive); Verbal Adj. petûm (peti-; fem. petītum) 'open'.
- $red\hat{u}m$ (e) 'to escort, conduct, lead, guide; to drive (animals, ships, wagons), follow; to lay claim to; to move along'.
- šaqālum (a-u) 'to weigh out (silver, etc.), pay'; Verbal Adj. šaqlum (šaqil-) 'weighed (out)'.
- takālum (a; Impv. irregular: tikal) 'to trust (someone/something: + ana)'; Verbal Adj. taklum (takil-) 'trustworthy, true, reliable'.
- tebûm (e) 'to arise, rise up, stand up; to occur, happen, appear on the scene; to set out'; Verbal Adj. tebûm (tebi-; fem. tebītum) 'standing, erect; under way; rebellious'.

Nouns:

- $ilkum\ (ilik;\ pl.\ ilk\bar{u}\ and\ ilk\bar{a}tum)$ 'work or service performed, usually on a field or garden, for the state (king) by someone holding the land in tenure from the state; part of the yield of the land, i.e., payment; the land itself; the holder of the land'; $ilkam\ al\bar{a}kum$ 'to perform such service, work such land' (cf. $al\bar{a}kum$).
- $\check{s}arr\bar{u}tum$ ($\check{s}arr\bar{u}t$; log. LUGAL(-ru)- [e.g., LUGAL(-ru)- $tam = \check{s}arr\bar{u}tam$]) 'kingship; dominion; majesty'; $\check{s}arr\bar{u}tam$ $ep\bar{e}\check{s}um$ 'to exercise kingship, rule as king'.
- têrtum (têrti; with suf. têrta-; pl. têrētum) 'direction, instruction, order, command, commission; extispicy (examination of entrails), extispicy omen, oracle, omen report/diagnosis'; têrtam/têrētim epēšum 'to perform extispicy'.
- warkatum (warkat; pl. warkātum) 'rear, back (part, side; of a building, person, animal); estate, inheritance; circumstances (of a legal case)'; warkatam parāsum 'to investigate the circumstances of a case'.

Adjective:

šanûm (šani-; fem. šanītum) 'second; other, another; different' (see also §23.3(c)); as noun: 'another person, someone else'.

Conjunctions:

- \bar{u} , $l\bar{u}$, \bar{u} $l\bar{u}$ (\bar{u} written u, like u 'and') 'or, either ... or' (see §7.4(f)):
- (a) to connect nouns and noun phrases: $hur\bar{a}$ $\sin \bar{u} kaspum$, $hur\bar{a}$ $\sin \bar{u} l\bar{u} kaspum$ both for 'gold or silver'; $l\bar{u} hur\bar{a}$ $\sin l\bar{u} kaspum$ (\bar{u}) $l\bar{u}$ š \bar{i} p \bar{a} tum 'gold, silver, or wool';
- (b) to connect clauses: $\check{s}ib\ \bar{u}\ alik$, $\check{s}ib\ \bar{u}\ l\bar{u}\ alik$, $(\bar{u})\ l\bar{u}\ \check{s}ib\ \bar{u}\ l\bar{u}\ alik$ all for '(either) stay or go'.

Divine Name:

Marduk (log. dAMAR.UTU) 'Marduk', chief god of Babylon.

Logogram:

ŠU.BA.TI or ŠU.BA.AN.TI = ilqe; the plural $ilq\hat{u}$ may be written the same way or as ŠU.BA.TI.(M)EŠ or ŠU.BA.AN.TI.(M)EŠ.

LESSON SEVENTEEN

17.1 The G Perfect: Sound Verbs; Verbs I–n; Verbs III–weak

The Perfect is a finite form of the verb, inflected with the same affixes for person, gender, and number as the Preterite and the Durative.

(a) Sound Verbs. The base of the G Perfect is $R_1taR_2VR_3$ (i.e., ptarVs). The predominant feature of the Perfect is an infixed -ta- immediately after the first consonant. The vowel between R_2 and R_3 is the theme-vowel of the Durative. When a vocalic suffix (pl - \bar{u} , - \bar{a} , 2fs - $\bar{\iota}$, the Ventive -am, Subordination marker -u [§19.2]) is added, the theme-vowel between R_2 and R_3 drops out in accordance with §4.1

	$\check{s}ak\bar{a}num~(a–u)$	$\check{s}arar{a}qum~(i)$	$maq\bar{a}tum\;(u)$
3cs	iš t a k a n	iš t a r i q	imtaqut
2ms	$ta\check{s}takan$	$ta \check{s} tariq$	tamtaqut
2fs	ta š $taknar{\imath}$	ta š $tarqar{\imath}$	$tamtaqtar{\iota}$
1cs	$a\check{s}takan$	$a\check{s}tariq$	amtaqut
3mp	i š $taknar{u}$	i š t a r q $ar{u}$	$imtaqtar{u}$
3fp	$i\check{s}taknar{a}$	$i\check{s}tarqar{a}$	$imtaqtar{a}$
2cp	ta š $taknar{a}$	ta š $tarqar{a}$	$tamtaqtar{a}$
1cp	$ni\check{s}takan$	$ni\check{s}tariq$	nimtaqut

3cs forms with the Ventive: ištaknam, ištarqam, imtaqtam.

When the first radical of the root is d, t, s, s, or z (but not s), the infixed -t- of the Perfect is assimilated completely to that consonant throughout the paradigm. Consider the following 3cs forms:

iddamiq (damāqum);iṣṣabat (ṣabātum);iṭṭarad (ṭarādum);izzaku (zakûm);issaḥap (saḥāpum);but ištakan (šakānum).

The writing of certain forms from these roots (and also from roots with first radical t, such as $tak\bar{a}lum$) may ambiguously represent either Perfects or Duratives, if no doubling is indicated in the script; e.g., i-ṭa-ra-ad may be Durative iṭarrad or Perfect iṭṭarad; ta-ṣa-bat may be Durative taṣabbat or Perfect taṣṣabat.

Only Perfect forms exhibit vowel syncope, however:

i-ta-ra-du may only be Durative itarrad \bar{u} , while i-ta-ar-du may only be Perfect ittard \bar{u} ;

ta-sa-ba-ti may only be Durative tas $abbat\bar{\iota}$, while ta-sa-ab-ti may only be Perfect tas $sabt\bar{\iota}$.

In forms with first radical g, the infixed -t- of the Perfect usually becomes -d-:

3cs igdamar; 2fs $tagdamr\bar{\imath}$; etc.

(b) Verbs I–*n. The initial radical n assimilates to the infixed -t-:

	$naqar{a}rum\;(a-u)$	$nadar{a}num$ (i)
3cs	ittaqar	ittadin
2ms	tattaqar	tattadin
2fs	$tattaqrar{\imath}$	$tattadnar{\imath}$
1cs	attaqar	attadin
3mp	$ittaqrar{u}$	$ittadnar{u}$
3fp	$ittaqrar{a}$	$ittadnar{a}$
2cp	$tattaqrar{a}$	$tattadnar{a}$
1cp	nittaqar	nittadin

3cs forms with the Ventive: ittagram, ittadnam.

(c) Verbs III–weak. Again, these resemble sound verbs, but without a final radical. With the addition of endings, the theme-vowel is subject to the normal rules of vowel contraction (rather than syncope, as in sound verbs). In verbs III–e, both the -a- after the infixed -t- and the -a- of the prefixes become e:

	$ban\hat{u}m$ (i)	$had\hat{u}m\left(u\right)$	$mal\hat{u}m$ (a)	leqûm (e)
3cs	ibtani	iḫtadu	imtala	ilteqe
2ms	tabtani	taḫtadu	tamtala	telteqe
2fs	tabtanî	taḫtadî	tamtalî	telteqî
1cs	abtani	ahtadu	amtala	elteqe
3mp	ibtanû	iḥtadû	imtalû	ilteqû
3fp	ibtaniā	iḥtadâ	imtalâ	ilteqeā
2cp	tabtaniā	taḥtadâ	tamtalâ	telteqeā
1cp	nibtani	niḥtadu	nimtala	nilteqe

3cs forms with the Ventive: ibtaniam, iḥtadâm, imtalâm, ilteqeam.

17.2 The Meaning of the Perfect

As a tense, the Perfect often corresponds roughly to the English present perfect, as in aštakan 'I have placed'.

As with the Durative, however, a discussion of the use or meaning of the Perfect cannot be confined to tense alone; other important nuances are also involved. Further, the Perfect has slightly different uses in different genres of texts. In general, it may be said that, in main clauses, the Perfect denotes the central event in a sequence of events, the event on which the action in subsequent clauses is based.

Old Babylonian laws, exemplified by the "Laws of Hammurapi" (see below, §17.4), usually consist of two sets of clauses, of which the first set, called the protasis, presents the circumstances of a given case, most often with verbs in the Preterite and/or Perfect. The protasis almost always begins with šumma 'if', and is thus a conditional clause (see the next section). If the protasis consists of one clause, the verb may be either Preterite or Perfect: e.g., šumma awīlum makkūr ilim ... išriq 'If a man stole property (makkūrum) belonging to (lit.: of) a god ...' (Law §6);

but šumma awīlum mār awīlim ṣeḥram ištariq 'If a man kidnapped (lit.: stole) the young son of a(nother) man ...' (Law §14).

If, however, the protasis consists of a sequence of more than one clause, most often only the verb of the last clause (sometimes of the last two) is Perfect, while the verb(s) of the foregoing clause(s) is (are) Preterite. The last verb is Perfect because it indicates the critical event, the event upon which the judgment in the second set of clauses (the apodosis) is based: e.g., šumma awīlum alpam īgur-ma ilum imhassū(imhaṣ-šu)-ma imtūt 'If a man rented an ox and a god struck it (-šu), and it has died (imtūt, Perfect of mâtum), (the man who rented the ox will swear an oath and be set free)'.

The Perfect does not normally occur in relative clauses (see §19.3).

In OB letters (see §24.5), the Perfect again has a focusing nuance; it indicates the crucial event, the main point, of the letter. Because of this assertive or emphatic nuance, it does not often occur in questions, in relative clauses (similarly in the Laws), or after a negative (unlike the Laws). Further, as the central statement of the letter, the Perfect is not usually followed by -ma. Instead, the next main clause verb (if there is one), is almost always an injunctive form (i.e., Imperative, Prohibitive, Vetitive). These points are illustrated by the following sequence of clauses:

Ţēm šiprātim ... ul tašpuram. Nabi-Sîn ana Bābilim īliam-ma ṭēmka ... ul tašpuram. Inanna Nabi-Sîn ana maḥrīka aṭṭardam: ittīšu ana eqlim rid-ma ... ina tuppīka ... šupram.

'You (ms) have not sent me a report of the work ... Nabi-Sîn has come up (īliam, a Preterite) to Babylon, but you have (still) not sent me your ... report. I have now (inanna) sent Nabi-Sîn to you: go down to the field with him, and ... (another Imperative) ... write me ... in your tablet.' (Altbabylonische Briefe 1 102:5–16)

In this text, the Perfect attardam presents the main point of the letter, the sending of Nabi-Sîn to the addressee. The clause with attardam begins with the adverb inanna 'now'; this adverb, or another, anumma 'now, herewith, hereby', or both (inanna anumma), often (but not necessarily) accompany the Perfect, to emphasize the immediacy, the current relevance, of the event. This use of the Perfect, in which the verb may denote the actual performance of the action it describes, is variously termed by grammarians the "announcement Perfect" or "epistolary Perfect." (Some scholars prefer, in such cases, to translate the Perfect into English by the present rather than by the present perfect; in the example above: 'I now send Nabi-Sîn ...'.)

In letters, since the Perfect does not normally occur after a negative, but is replaced by the Preterite, the latter is often to be translated by the English present perfect in such cases:

amatka haliqtam ul nīmur 'we have not seen/did not see your (ms) escaped womanservant'.

The choice of the English tense, of course, will depend on the context.

The Perfect is uncommon in OB contracts. A majority of the few attested main clause examples occur in direct quotes. As in other genres, the Perfect in contracts may be said to convey the central point of a section of text, but unlike the case with letters, it is not necessarily followed by an injunctive form:

inanna umma šū-ma x âm ana PN ... amtadad âm ul anaddinakkum 'Now (inanna) thus he (said): "I have paid x grain to PN ...; I will not give grain to you (-akkum)" (Schorr, VAB 5 273:37–39).

In subordinate clauses (especially temporal clauses), the Perfect usually emphasizes the anteriority of the action to that of the main clause; thus, it acts like the future perfect in English. See further §26.2.

17.3 Conditional Sentences

A conditional sentence consists of two parts, a protasis ('if ...') and an apodosis ('then ...'), each of which consists of one or more verbal or verbless clauses. A conditional sentence may be unmarked (i.e., have no explicit word for 'if') or, more commonly, marked with šumma 'if'.

(a) Unmarked conditions consist simply of two or more clauses connected with -ma (see §7.4(c)). In many OB examples, the tense in both the protasis and the apodosis is the Durative: e.g., kasapka ana Bābilim ul tubbalam-ma âm ul anaddin 'Should you (ms) not/If you do not bring your silver to Babylon, I would/will not give (you) grain'; nakrum ana mātīni irrum-ma alpīni iṣabbat-ma napištašu ninakkis 'Should/If the enemy enter(s) our land and (try/tries to) seize our oxen, we will kill him (cut off his life)'.

In other examples, the protasis has instead the Preterite, as in mamman ul taškum-ma šīpātim išarriqū 'Should you not appoint someone, the wool will be stolen', or the Precative (see §16.2, end), which often has concessive force ('though, even if'):

mārī šanûtim liršû-ma PN aḥūšunu rabûm 'Even if they (the adoptive parents) acquire other children, PN will be their older brother'.

(b) More frequent are conditional sentences in which the protasis begins with \S{umma} 'if'. In such sentences, there is no conjunction between the protasis and the apodosis, and no word for 'then'. The negative adverb in protases beginning with \S{umma} is $l\bar{a}$ (in apodoses, it is ul, unless a negative command is called for).

The apodosis in most OB examples normally either contains a form indicating present or future time (i.e., Durative, Imperative, Precative, Prohibitive, or Vetitive) or is a verbless clause (including the Predicative construction, for which see §22.1).

In the protasis, on the other hand, the action is normally represented as having already taken place. (Thus, a conditional sentence with šumma is literally of the form: 'Given that/If a person did/has done X, one will do/does Y'.) Like the apodosis, the protasis may involve a verbless clause or clauses; in verbal clauses, the tense may be Preterite, Perfect, or Durative. For the distinction between the Preterite and the Perfect, see the preceding section. The Durative in a protasis expresses either habitual activity, as in šumma eqlam ikkal 'if he uses the field (generally)', or intent, wish, or obligation, as in šumma kaspam inaddin 'if he wishes/intends to give the silver'.

The following additional examples will further illustrate the conditional sentence:

šumma kaspum ina qātīka alkam-ma idnam 'If the silver is in your possession, come and give (it) to me';

šumma awīlum kaspam išriq/ištariq qāssu inakkisū 'If a man stole silver, his hand will be cut off';

šumma awīlum alpam iggar idūšu x ûm 'If a man wishes to hire an ox, its hiring-fee (idum) is x grain'.

17.4 The "Laws of Hammurapi"

Hammurapi, the sixth and most illustrious of a line of Amorite kings in Babylon, ruled ca. 1792-1750 BCE. Near the end of his reign, after he had conquered most of Mesopotamia, he ordered that a collection of laws be inscribed and set up in a public place. The most important monument on which these laws are preserved is a large (2.25 m. high) stela of polished black diorite, which was placed on display in the temple of Shamash (the sun god) in the city of Sippar. When the neighboring Elamites invaded Babylonia in the mid-twelfth century BCE, they removed the stela to their capital in Susa. In the late nineteenth century CE, Susa was excavated by a French expedition, which discovered the monument and removed it to the Louvre in their capital. The inscription on the stela is the longest OB document extant. It consists of three parts: a prologue, in poetic style (see §30.2), describing the gods' naming Hammurapi "to proclaim equity in the land, to destroy the wicked and the evil, that the strong not oppress the weak"; a collection of 282 laws, dealing with many aspects of society (see below); a long epilogue, also in poetic language, which includes curses and blessings upon those who would destroy the stela or refurbish it properly.

The laws are case-laws, typical not only of Mesopotamia but of many ancient Near Eastern cultures. (In Mesopotamia, the format has antecedents in earlier Sumerian laws.) Each law presents a legal situation in the form of a conditional sentence: 'If such and such (has) occurred, this and that will/should be done'. Not infrequently, the situation presented in one law is an elaboration or variation of that given in the previous law: e.g., Law §3 deals with perjury in a capital case, Law §4 with perjury in a case involving commodities. The laws appear to be arranged by topics, but the precise topics or categories that governed the arrangement remain debated by scholars. To give the reader some idea of the contents, a broad overview of the topics covered may be presented. (Note: the numbering of the laws or paragraphs, although it follows the text of the stela, is modern.)

§§1–5	Trials (perjury; corrupt judges).
§§6–14	Theft, robbery of property (including slaves; kidnapping).
§§15–65 (and fragments)	Land and land tenure.
(fragments and) §§100–126	Commerce (merchants; financial transactions; debt; safe keeping).
§§127–194	The family (women; marriage; concubines; inheritance; adoption).
§§195–214	Assault.
§§215–277	Professional fees and responsibilities; rates of hire.
§§278–282	Slaves.

Since shortly after its discovery, the collection of laws inscribed on Hammurapi's stela has been referred to as the "Code of Hammurapi." Although they do not strictly constitute a code, but rather merely a collection, we will follow the custom of referring to the laws by the abbreviation CH.

Duplicates of some of the laws, and laws that are missing where the stela was damaged in antiquity, are preserved on numerous fragmentary clay tablets. Fragments of at least one other diorite stela were also found at Susa, and it has often been suggested that copies of the stela were set up in other cities. It should also be noted that other collections of laws have been found in Mesopotamian sites; some of these collections, both in Sumerian and in Akkadian, predate that of Hammurapi.

A few laws from CH will be given in the exercises to each of the subsequent lessons, most in transliteration but a few in the lapidary cuneiform of the stela. Most of the laws will be given unchanged from the original. Thus, they will not be presented in the order in which they occur on the stela; rather, the student will read laws for which sufficient grammar and vocabulary have been covered to allow a minimum of notes and glosses.

A recent presentation and discussion of CH may be found in Roth 1995: 71–142.

EXERCISES

A. VOCABULARY 17.

Verbs:

kalûm (a) 'to detain, delay, keep in custody; to prevent, hinder (someone, something: acc.; from doing: ana or ina + Infin.); to refrain (from doing: ana + Infin.); to withhold, hold back (something: acc.; from someone: ana/dat. or ina)'.

paṭārum (a-u) trans.: 'to loosen, untie, remove, strip; to free, ransom, redeem; to end'; intrans.: 'to break camp; to withdraw, go away, disperse, desert, avoid'.

Note also iddâk (N stem of dâkum [see §32.1], Durative 3cs) 'he/ she will be executed'.

Nouns:

ahm b (bound form ah [usually written a-ah] or ahi; pl. rare) 'arm; side, flank; bank (of a river, canal), shore, edge; half, first half'; note also the relative adjective ahm (base $ah\bar{\imath}$ -; fem. $ah\bar{\imath}tum$) 'strange, foreign; hostile; unusual, additional'.

lētum (lēt(i); pl. rare) 'cheek; side, vicinity, nearby region'.

mišlum (mišil; log. MAŠ) 'half; middle'.

rittum (ritti; suff. ritta-; dual rittān) 'hand; possibility'.

simdatum (simdat; pl. simdātum) 'royal decree; (specific) royal regulation' (also simdat šarrim).

 $\check{s}\bar{\imath}mum$ ($\check{s}\bar{\imath}m(i)$; pl. $\check{s}\bar{\imath}m\bar{u}$ and $\check{s}\bar{\imath}m\bar{a}tum$; log. ŠÁM) 'purchase; price; article purchased' (cf. $\check{s}\hat{a}mum$).

Adverbs:

anumma 'now, hereby, herewith'.

inanna 'now'; (ina) kīma inanna 'right now'.

Preposition:

warki (with suf. warkīšu, etc.) locally 'behind, in back of'; temporally: 'after, after the departure of, after the death of'.

Conjunction:

šumma 'if'.

LESSON EIGHTEEN

18.1 The G Perfect: Verbs I-2 (I-a and I-e); alākum

Since the initial radical stood before another consonant (the infixed -t-), its loss resulted in the lengthening of the vowel of the prefix, as in the Preterite.

18.2 Object Pronominal Suffixes on the Verb

Just as genitive personal pronouns occur as suffixes attached to nouns and prepositions, so object pronouns are suffixed to finite verb forms. There are two sets of these: accusative suffixes, which denote the direct object of the verb; dative suffixes, which denote the indirect object.

	Accusative	Dative
1cs	-anni/-nni/-ninni	-am / -m / -nim
2ms	-ka	-kum
2fs	-ki	-kim
3ms	-šu	-šum
3fs	-ši	-šim
1cp	- $niar{a}ti$	- $niar{a}\check{s}im$
2mp	-kunūti	$-kunar{u}\check{s}im$
2fp	$-kinar{a}ti$	- $kinar{a}$ š im
3mp	-šunūti	-šunūšim
3fp	- $\check{s}inar{a}ti$	- $\dot{s}inar{a}\dot{s}im$

For the accusative suffixes, note the following particulars:

1cs: the form of this suffix is the Ventive morpheme plus -ni, with the -m of the Ventive assimilated to the -n- of the suffix: e.g., iṣbatanni 'she seized me'; taṣbatīnni 'you (fs) seized me'; iṣbatūninni 'they (m) seized me'; taṣbatāninni 'you (pl) seized me';

3fs: the form is $-\dot{s}i$, as opposed to the genitive $-\dot{s}a$ on nouns;

1cp: $-\bar{a}ti$ is added to the genitive -ni: $ina\ b\bar{t}t\bar{t}ni\ \bar{t}mur\bar{u}ni\bar{a}ti$ 'they (m) saw us in our house';

2,3 p: the suffixes are those of the set attached to nouns, with the addition of -ti and the lengthening of the preceding vowel: ina bītīšunu nīmuršunūti 'we saw them (m) in their house'.

The dative forms all end in m (a feature that is undoubtedly related to the Ventive morpheme):

1cs: for the 1cs dative, the Ventive form alone is used; see §15.2;

the other singular forms simply add -m to the accusative forms, with the notable exception, however, of the 2ms:

2ms: -kum (not -kam);

the plural forms end in $-\sin m$ in place of the $-\sin m$ of the accusative forms.

When any of the suffixes, except the 1cs forms, is added directly to a form of a III-weak verb ending in a short vowel, that vowel is lengthened:

 $ikl\bar{a}\check{s}u$ 'she detained him'; $nileqq\bar{e}\check{s}un\bar{u}ti$ 'we will take them (m)'; $qib\bar{i}\check{s}im$ 'speak (ms) to her'; $lu\underline{h}d\bar{u}\check{s}im$ 'let me rejoice for her'.

As is true of the genitive suffixes on nouns, α -vowels in the object suffixes are not subject to the vowel-harmony rule (i.e., do not change to e; see §7.2(e)):

eštemēka 'I have heard you (ms)'; eppeškināšim 'I will act for you (fp)'.

aḫḫassi 'I will marry her';nimḫassunūti 'we struck them (m)';piqissu 'inspect (ms) it (m)';imqussum 'it happened (fell) to him';ikkissu 'he cut it (m) off';lūpussināšim 'let me act for them (f)'.
```

Both sets of suffixes follow all verbal morphemes, namely, $2\text{fs} \cdot \bar{\imath}$, pl $\cdot \bar{u}$, $\cdot \bar{a}$; the Ventive (see the next paragraph); the subordination marker $\cdot u$ (see §19.2); and the subject pronoun suffixes of the predicative construction (see §22.1). The suffixes precede the conjunction $\cdot ma$, which, it will be recalled (§7.4), causes a preceding short vowel to be lengthened. Some examples:

ana mārīka taddiššū-ma ittīka imhurūšu 'You (ms) gave it (m) to your sons, and they accepted it from you'; āmurkinātī-ma aḥdu 'I rejoiced when I saw you (fp)'.
```

Both sets of suffixes may follow the Ventive (with the exception of the 1cs dative, which is the Ventive; the 1cs accusative, as already noted, always includes the Ventive). The final -m of the Ventive is always assimilated to the first consonant of the suffix:

ublūniššu 'they (m) brought him here (or: to me)';

suḥārī aṭṭardakkum 'I have sent you (ms) my servant';

tereddeāniššunūti 'you (pl) will conduct them (m) here (or: to me)';

alkīnniāšim 'come (fs) to us'.
```

The dative case, and, therefore, the dative suffixes, usually indicates the person or thing to which an action is directed, or for which an action is done; thus, it often corresponds to the use of the preposition ana; e.g.,

ana bēlīya allakam 'I will come to my lord'; allakakkum 'I will come to you';

annītam ana mārīni nītepeš 'we have done this for our sons'; annītam $n\bar{\imath}$ tepessunūšim 'we have done this for them'.

A verb may have both a dative and an accusative suffix; when this occurs, the dative precedes the accusative, and the final -m of the dative suffix, like that of the Ventive, is assimilated to the following consonant. The Ventive may also appear, preceding both suffixes, as expected, so that the order is Verb–Ventive–Dative–Accusative:

atrudakkuššu 'I sent him to you (ms)'.

Occasionally in such instances, the singular accusative suffixes lose their vowel, and the resulting final doubled consonant is simplified: aṭrudakkuš.

A dative or accusative suffix is occasionally added to a verb redundantly from the English point of view, when the noun to which it refers is also present in the clause. Resumptive pronouns, as these are called, serve a number of discourse functions. In the following example the dative object stands at some distance from the verb; the resumptive pronoun makes the clause easier to grasp.

šumma awīlum ana aššatīšu eqlam kiriam bītam ū bīšam išrukšim 'if a man gave (šarākum) his wife a field, orchard, house, or moveable item of property (bīšum), ...' (CH Law §150).

While resumptive pronouns are more common when the nominal object is separated from the verb by a phrase or two, as in the preceding example, they are also found in shorter clauses. In the latter, the pronouns serve other functions: to announce a new topic (or the main topic, e.g., of a letter) or some other shift in a narrative (to a different subject, scene, or mood); to highlight a previously secondary topic; or to signal the end of a section of discourse. In the laws of Hammurapi sequences of laws often begin with a formulaic šumma awīlum; if awīlum is the direct object and accordingly appears in the accusative, it may retain its position after šumma and may be (but need not be) resumed by an object suffix, as in šumma awīlam e²iltum iṣbassu 'if a financial obligation (e²iltum) "seized" a man, ...' (CH Law §117); note that the direct object here precedes the subject, deviating from normal word order.

As the two examples cited here illustrate, resumptive pronouns are frequently not represented in English translation.

It has already been noted (§§3.6, 10.4), that a pronominal direct object may be omitted. This deletion is particularly common when the same object is governed by two (or more) successive verbs, and is also possible in English. (The phenomenon is more common in Akkadian than in English, however.) An example:

wardum akalam išriq-ma īkul 'The male slave stole the food and ate (it)', or 'The male slave stole and ate the food'.

The nominal (or non-finite) forms of the verb, namely, the Infinitive (§3.3), the Verbal Adjective (§4.3), and the Participle (§20.1), take the genitive suffixes that are attached to nouns. With the Infinitive, a suffix may be subjective or objective, as is true of a genitive noun after an Infinitive (§8.2, end; further, §30.1); e.g., ana amārīša 'to see her' or 'for her to see'.

18.3 The Adverbial Use of the Accusative

The accusative case may be used adverbially, with a wide range of functions. In principle, any preposition (except probably ana) may be deleted, and the noun then put in the accusative, if the relationship of that noun to the rest of the sentence (particularly the verb) is clear without the preposition. There are, however, restrictions on the adverbial use of the accusative that are not yet well understood; thus, the student should learn to recognize the adverbial accusative, but should refrain from using it when constructing sentences in Akkadian. Among the uses of the adverbial accusative, the following may be noted:

(a) The accusative of place:

 $\check{s}arr\bar{a}qam \ abullam \ i\check{s}bat\bar{u}$ 'the thief was seized (lit.: they seized the thief) at the city gate';

tuppaka Bābilim kunuk-ma šupram 'seal (ms) your tablet in Babylon (acc.) and send (it) to me';

 $m\bar{a}ssunu\ u\check{s}\check{s}ab\bar{u}$ 'they (m) will live in their land'; note also mahar for $ina\ mahar$ 'before' (§12.3(c)).

(b) The ablative accusative, replacing itti (cf. §5.5):

qīšātīšunu lā teleqqēšunūti 'do not accept (ms) their (m) gifts from them (acc.)';

kaspam ašqul-ma ula imhurūninni 'I paid the silver, but they (m) did not accept (it) from me (acc.)'.

(c) The accusative of time; this may indicate

(1) duration of time ("time how long"):

(2) the time when an action took/takes place; this usage is equivalent to ina with the noun in the genitive:

šattam šuāti (or ina šattim šuāti) nakrum ana mātim īrub '(in) that year, the enemy invaded the land'.

(d) The accusative of respect, manner, or means:

rīqūssu illak 'he will go empty-handed', lit.: 'in his emptiness' (rīqūtum 'emptiness', acc.);

hamuttam alkam 'come (ms) quickly' (hamuttum 'haste', acc.).

It was noted in the discussion of the indefinite pronouns (§14.3) that mimma may be used adverbially:

mimma libbaka lā imarraṣ 'do not be (ms) upset in any way' (lit.: 'your heart must not become upset in any way').

18.4 Morphographemic Writings

In several lessons we have noted that certain sound changes are not always reflected in writing; the following are representative:

 $q\acute{a}$ -ta-(at)-tum and $q\acute{a}$ -ta-an-tum for expected qatattum * qatantum * thin * , the fem. of qatnum, with assimilation of n (§§5.1, 5.4);

similarly \acute{u} -zu- $(u\acute{s})$ - $\acute{s}a$ and \acute{u} -zu-un- $\acute{s}a$ for expected $uzu \check{s}\check{s}a < *uzun \check{s}a$ 'her ear', with assimilation of n (§11.1);

ir-ka-(am)-ma and ir-ka-ab-ma for expected irkam-ma < irkab + -ma 'he rode and ...', with assimilation of b to m (§7.4).

Since sound changes normally take place without exception, that is, always produce the same form or pronunciation, the pairs of writings just cited must be considered variant spellings of a single form. The writings in which the sound change is reflected are phonetic, that is, they represent the actual pronunciations of the forms; the writings in which the sound change is not reflected are morphographemic, that is, they show the constituent morphemes of the forms more clearly. (As examples of morphographemic writings in English spelling we may cite spellings of plural words with the letter s even when the plural marker is pronounced [z], as in dogs for [dɔgz].)

A number of other morphographemic writings occurring in Akkadian texts may be noted here:

A stem-final dental or sibilant and the - \dot{s} - of third person pronominal suffixes become -ss-, as in $q\bar{a}ssa$ 'her hand', atrussu 'I sent him'; $tapqissun\bar{u}\dot{s}im$ 'you (ms) entrusted to them (m)' (§§11.1, 18.2). In Old Babylonian, this change is usually reflected in writing (i.e., in phonetic spellings); occasionally, however, and more commonly in later dialects, writings that are partly morphographemic show a stem-final dental, although the suffix is always written with -s-: $q\dot{a}$ -at-ru-ud-su, ta-ap-qi-id-su-nu-si-im.

The Ventive morpheme may simply be "tacked on" the end of a verb, in violation of the otherwise regular spelling of words according to their syllabification; for example, while <code>išpuram</code> 'he sent to me' is usually written <code>iš-pu-ra-am</code>, as expected, it is occasionally written <code>iš-pur-am</code>; similarly, for <code>išpuranni</code> 'he sent me' both <code>iš-pu-ra-an-ni</code> and, less often, <code>iš-pur-an-ni</code> occur. In other examples, in order to avoid the use of a <code>VC</code> sign after another <code>VC</code> or a <code>CVC</code> sign (as in <code>iš-pur-am</code>) scribes wrote a <code>CV</code> sign that repeated the final consonant of the verb, so that a false doubling appears, as in <code>iš-pur-ra-am</code>, again for <code>išpuram</code> (or <code>iš-pur-ra-an-ni</code> for <code>išpuranni</code>); a very common example of this phenomenon, especially in PNs, is the writing <code>i-din-nam</code> for <code>iddinam</code> 'he gave to me'.

EXERCISES

A. VOCABULARY 18.

Verbs:

 $baq\bar{a}rum~(a-u)$ 'to claim, lay claim to; to contest, bring suit (against someone: acc.; for something: acc. or $a\check{s}\check{s}um$ or ana)'; note $baqr\bar{u}$ (usually pl.) 'legal claims'; $baqr\bar{\iota}$ ra $\check{s}\hat{u}m$ 'to incur legal claims'.

kabātum (i) 'to be(come) heavy, fat; to be(come) important, honored; to be(come) difficult, painful'; Verbal Adj. kabtum (kabit-) 'heavy, fat; difficult, painful; important, serious, honored'.

nasāqum (a–u) 'to choose, select'; Verbal Adj. nasqum (nasiq-) 'selected, chosen, choice, precious'.

 $pal\bar{a}\check{s}um$ (a–u) 'to pierce, break through, into'; note $pil\check{s}um$ ($pil\check{s}\check{v}$) 'breach, hole'.

 $ri\bar{a}bum~(a-i)$ 'to replace, give back'.

 $\check{s}ar\bar{a}kum$ (a–u) 'to give, bestow'; note $\check{s}iriktum$ 'gift, dowry'.

 $zaq\bar{a}pum$ (a–u) 'to erect, set up; to plant (a garden), prepare (a garden, field) for planting'.

Nouns:

asûm (gen. asîm or asêm, acc. asâm or asiam; bound form asi?; pl. asû; log. A.ZU; Sum. lw.) 'physician'.

 $makk\bar{u}rum$ ($makk\bar{u}r$; log. NÍG.GA) 'property, assets, valuables, goods'.

muškēnum (muškēn; pl. muškēnū; log. MAŠ.GAG.EN or MAŠ.EN. GAG) 'dependent, poor person, serf, commoner'.

simmum (simmi; suf. simma-) 'wound; (skin) disease, carbuncle'.

 $s\bar{\imath}mtum$ ($s\bar{\imath}mat$ or $s\bar{\imath}mti$; pl. $s\bar{\imath}m\bar{a}tum$) 'what is established, fixed, decreed (by the gods), fate, destiny'; a euphemism for death, as in $ana \ s\bar{\imath}mtim \ al\bar{a}kum$ 'to die' (lit.: 'to go to one's fate').

terhatum (terhat) 'bride-price'.

zīttum (zītti; sf. zītta-; pl. zīzātum; substantivized fem. Verbal Adj. of zâzum, with irregular assimilation in sg. [given as zittum in the dictionaries]; log. ḤA.LA) 'share (of an inheritance); inheritance'.

Adverb:

mithāriš 'equally, to the same extent, each one; everywhere'.

LESSON NINETEEN

19.1 The G Perfect: Verbs II–weak; Verbs I–w

(a) Verbs II–weak. Unlike the Perfect of other verb types covered thus far, that of verbs II–weak appears to be based on the Preterite: the forms of the II–weak Perfect are simply those of the Preterite with the -t-inserted after the initial radical; since the medial theme-vowel is always long, no reduction takes place when vocalic suffixes are added:

	kânum (a–u)	qiāšum (a–i)	šâmum (a)	nêrum (e)
3cs	$iktar{u}n$	$iqtar{\imath}\check{s}$	$i\check{s}t\bar{a}m$	$ittar{e}r$
2ms	$taktar{u}n$	$taqtar{\imath}\check{s}$	ta š $tar{a}m$	$tettar{e}r$
2fs	$taktar{u}nar{\imath}$	$taqtar{\imath}ar{s}ar{\imath}$	ta š $tar{a}mar{\imath}$	$tettar{e}rar{\imath}$
1cs	$aktar{u}n$	$aqtar{\imath}\check{s}$	$a\check{s}t\bar{a}m$	$ettar{e}r$
3mp	$iktar{u}nar{u}$	$iqtar{\imath}ar{s}ar{u}$	$i\check{s}t\bar{a}mar{u}$	$ittar{e}rar{u}$
3fp	$iktar{u}nar{a}$	$iqtar{\imath}ar{s}ar{a}$	$i\check{s}t\bar{a}mar{a}$	$ittar{e}rar{a}$
2cp	$taktar{u}nar{a}$	$taqtar{\imath}ar{s}ar{a}$	ta š $tar{a}mar{a}$	$tettar{e}rar{a}$
1cp	$niktar{u}n$	$niqtar{\imath} \check{s}$	ni š $tar{a}m$	$nittar{e}r$

(b) Verbs I–w. Adjectival verbs are conjugated in the Perfect either like verbs I–e, as expected, or like verbs I–a, i.e., without the change a > e. Thus, for $wat\bar{a}rum$:

3cs	ītetir/ītatir	3mp	$ar{\imath} tetrar{u}$ / $ar{\imath} tatrar{u}$
		3fp	$ar{\imath} tetrar{a}$ / $ar{\imath} tatrar{a}$
2ms	$tar{e}tetir/tar{a}tatir$	2cp	$tar{e}tetrar{a}/tar{a}tatrar{a}$
2fs	$tar{e}tetrar{\imath}/tar{a}tatrar{\imath}$
1cs	$ar{e}tetir/ar{a}tatir$	1cp	$nar{\imath}tetir/nar{\imath}tatir$

Active verbs I–w in the Perfect do not have as their prefix vowel u-, tu-, nu-, as might be expected from the Preterite and Durative forms, but rather i-, ta-, etc., like Perfects of other root types. Further, the -t- is doubled, as in $al\bar{a}kum$ (§18.1); thus, these forms resemble those of verbs I–n in the Perfect. The theme-vowel, as in the Durative, is a. Thus, for $wa\bar{s}\bar{a}bum$:

3cs	$itta \v sab$	3mp	$itta\check{s}bar{u}$
		3fp	$itta\check{s}bar{a}$
2ms	$tatta \check{s} ab$	2cp	$tatta\check{s}bar{a}$
2fs	$tatta\check{s}bar{\imath}$
1cs	$atta\check{s}ab$	1cp	nittašab

The verb $bab\bar{a}lum$ exhibits two Perfect conjugations, one like that of other active verbs I–w and one with a single -t-:

3cs	ittabal/itbal	3mp	$ittablar{u}/itbalar{u}$
		3fp	$ittablar{a}/itbalar{a}$
2ms	tattabal/tatbal	2cp	$tattablar{a}$ / $tatbalar{a}$
2fs	$tattablar{\imath}/tatbalar{\imath}$	_
1cs	attabal/atbal	1cp	nittabal/nitbal

19.2 The Subordination Marker -u

The subordination marker -u is a verbal morpheme the occurrence of which is entirely predictable: it is attached to every finite verb that occurs in a subordinate (i.e., dependent) clause, provided that the verb has no other verbal ending, namely, $2\text{fs} - \bar{\iota}$, $pl - \bar{u}$, $-\bar{a}$; or the Ventive morpheme. Verbs that have one of these endings do not exhibit an overt marker in subordinate clauses (or, we may say that the marker of subordination on such verbs is $-\phi$).

The addition of -u affects the Perfect and certain weak verb types in the same way as the addition of any other vocalic ending:

in the Perfect, the theme-vowel between R_2 and R_3 drops out; in verbs III–weak, vowel contraction takes place; the Preterite forms of active verbs I–w lose their theme vowel; the Durative forms of verbs II–weak have a short theme-vowel and a the Durative forms of verbs II—weak have a short theme-vowel and a doubled final radical.

For reference, below are presented paradigms, without and with the subordination marker, of the Preterite, Durative, and Perfect of a sound verb ($\S{a}k\bar{a}num$), the Preterite forms of a verb III—weak ($ban\hat{u}m$) and an active verb I—w ($wa\S{a}bum$), and the Durative of a verb II—weak ($k\hat{a}num$).

The subordination marker precedes both object pronominal suffixes (§18.2) and the enclitic conjunction -ma. The appearance of either a pronominal suffix or -ma causes the lengthening of the marker to - \bar{u} -; e.g.,

(ša) aškunu '(which) I placed';
but (ša) aškunūšim '(which) I placed for her';
(ša) aškunū-ma '(which) I placed and ...'.

Note that in cuneiform and in transliteration, the 3cs with the subordination marker will be identical in appearance to the 3mp, for any given verb, such as $i\check{s}$ -ku-nu. In normalized transcription, the 3cs with the subordination marker and the 3mp are identical only for verbs III—weak (e.g., $ibn\hat{u}$). The addition of a pronominal suffix or -ma, however, causes the forms to be identical for all verbs in normalized transcription as well: $(\check{s}a)$ $i\check{s}kun\bar{u}\check{s}im$ 'which he/she/they (m) placed for her'.

As noted above, the subordination marker does not appear on any verb that has the Ventive morpheme.

The subordination marker appears, with the above-mentioned restrictions, on all verbs in subordinate clauses. The latter are discussed in the next section, and in §26.2. Note that verbs in protases of conditional sentences (§17.3) do not have the subordination marker.

Note: In most Akkadian grammars, the subordination marker is called the subjunctive marker, and verbs with the marker are said to be "in the subjunctive."

19.3 Relative Clauses

Relative clauses constitute the most frequent type of subordinate clause. For English 'who, whose, whom, which, that', Akkadian uses only the determinative-relative $\S a$, which is indeclinable in OB and later dialects. As in main clauses, the verb is always final in relative clauses.

The negative adverb in all subordinate clauses is $l\bar{a}$ (see §20.4). The Perfect (§17.2) is not normally found in relative clauses.

(a) $\check{s}a$ may occur without an antecedent noun, in which case it must be translated 'the one(s) who(m), he/she/they who(m), who(m)-ever, that/those which/that, what', and the like. The entire clause that begins with $\check{s}a$ is syntactically equivalent to a noun or noun phrase, and thus may occupy any position in the sentence that a noun may occupy. Thus, the clause may occur:

(1) as subject:

ša šarrum ina ṣibittim ikallû imât 'He/She/The one whom the king holds in prison will die' or 'Whomever ... will die';

(2) as direct object:

ša ittīni lā illakam nizzib 'We will abandon him/her/the one who will not come with us' or '... whoever will not come';

(3) after a preposition:

ana ša tašpuram tēmam aṣbat 'I took action concerning what/ that which you (ms) wrote me'.

(b) Much more often, ša occurs in apposition to an antecedent noun; it follows the antecedent noun, and any adjectives modifying it, directly:

šarrāqam ṣeḥram ša ina eqlīni niṣbatu nidūk 'We killed the young thief whom we had seized in our field';

kaspam ana mārim ša uldu inaddin 'She may give the silver to the son whom she bore';

aššum tēmim damqim ša imqutam luqbiakkim 'I must speak to you (fs) about the favorable report that came to me'.

Because it follows the antecedent noun directly, $\check{s}a$ may not in these instances be preceded by a preposition (or by itself with the meaning 'of'), unlike English relative pronouns; instead, the preposition follows $\check{s}a$ (not necessarily immediately), and governs a resumptive third person pronoun, which has the same gender and number as the antecedent noun. Thus a sentence like 'The slave with whom I went to town has escaped' is rendered as follows in Akkadian:

wardum ša ana ālim ittīšu alliku iḥtaliq (lit., 'the slave who, I went to town with him, has escaped').

Where ana plus a resumptive pronoun would be expected, a dative suffix normally occurs:

tappâšunu ša kasapšunu iddinūšum ul īmurū 'They (m) did not find their partner, to whom they had given their silver' (lit., '... their partner who, they had given their silver to him').

Where English has 'whose' or 'of whom/which', Akkadian has a resumptive suffix on the appropriate noun:

ṣeḥram ša abūšu ištu ḥarrān šarrim lā itūru ana mārūtim elqe 'I adopted the child whose father did not return from the royal campaign' (lit., '... the child who, his father did not return');

mannum awīlum ša ṭuppaka ana maḥrīšu tašpuru 'Who is the man to (the presence of) whom you sent your tablet?' (lit., '... the man who, you sent your tablet to his presence').

Be sure the following additional examples are clear:

wardū kalûšunu ša bītum elīšunu imqutu imūtū 'All the slaves on whom the house collapsed died';

awīlum ša bītam eššam ēpušūšum kaspam ul iddinam 'The man for whom I built a new house has not paid me';

 $b\bar{e}lam\ \check{s}a\ alap\check{s}u\ \hat{a}m\ \bar{\iota}kulu\ \check{s}abt\bar{a}$ 'Arrest (pl) the owner whose ox ate the grain'.

When δa represents the direct object of the verb in its own clause, it may optionally be resumed by a suffix on the verb (the suffix should not be translated); e.g., am- $m\bar{\imath}nim$ š $arr\bar{a}qam$ ša ina $b\bar{\imath}t\bar{\imath}$ šunu iṣ $bat\bar{u}$ šu (or simply iṣ $bat\bar{u}$) $l\bar{a}$ $id\bar{u}k\bar{u}$ 'Why did they (m) not execute the thief whom they seized in their house?'

The indefinite pronouns (§14.3) may be used in conjunction with $\check{s}a$ to form indefinite relative pronouns meaning 'anyone who(m), who(m)ever, anything that/which, whatever':

mamman ša awâtīya lā išemmû 'whoever does not heed my words';

ina mimma ša iddinūnikkim 'of (lit.: in) whatever they (m) gave you (fs)'.

(c) Relative clauses need not be verbal; verbless clauses may also be governed by $\S a$:

nakram ša ina ṣērim ul nipallaḥ 'We do not fear the enemy who is in the open country';

mārka awīlam ša kīma šuāti imḫaṣ 'Your (ms) son struck a man of equal rank' (lit., 'a man who is/was like him').

As in English, Akkadian nouns may be modified by prepositional phrases, as in the following examples:

harrānum ištu Bābilim adi ālīni 'the road from Babylon to our city';

iṣum ana eleppētim 'wood for ships'.

More commonly, however, the prepositional phrase is preceded by δa , so that the noun is modified by a verbless relative clause, as in sinništum ša ina bītim 'the woman in the house' (lit., 'the woman who (is) in the house');

eqlum ša warki ekallim 'the field (that is) behind the palace'.

When the prepositional phrases ina libbi, ina maḥar/maḥrī-, and ina muḥḥi (§12.3) occur immediately after ša, ina is often deleted; e.g., qarrādum ina libbi ālim ušib 'The warrior remained within the city' but qarrādum ša libbi ālim ušbu 'the warrior who remained within the city';

kaspum šū ina muḫḫīka 'You (ms) owe that silver' (lit., 'That silver is upon you'), but kaspam ša muḫḫīka apul 'Pay the silver that you owe'.

In the constructions that result from the deletion of the preposition after δa , the noun that follows δa is, in effect, an adverbial accusative (§18.3).

(d) It is not uncommon for more than one clause to be dependent on $\check{s}a$; normally, the clauses are connected by -ma (less often, asyndetically; see §7.5):

alpam ša tašāmū-ma ana abīni taṭrudu (or taṭrudūšu) ul āmur 'I have not seen the ox that you (ms) bought and sent to our father' (note the optional resumptive suffix);

nišū ina kašād qarrādim ša nakram inērū-ma ilū šarrūtam iqīšūšum iḥdâ 'The people rejoiced at the arrival of the hero on whom, when he had defeated the enemy, the gods bestowed the kingship'.

(e) As in English, it is possible for the relative pronoun to be deleted in Akkadian. It will be recalled that when δa is deleted from a genitive construction, the governing noun appears in the bound form:

bītum ša abīya or bīt abīya 'the house of my father'.

Likewise, when δa is deleted from a relative clause, the antecedent noun appears in the bound form. Consider the following examples:

bītum ša ēpušu imqut or bīt ēpušu imqut 'The house I built collapsed';

awātam ša šarrum iqbû ul ešme or awāt šarrum iqbû ul ešme 'I did not hear the word the king said';

wardam ša iḥliqu liṣbatū or warad iḥliqu liṣbatū 'The slave who escaped must be caught'.

As can be seen from the examples, the deletion of $\check{s}a$ normally occurs only when the relative clause is quite short. No examples of the deletion of $\check{s}a$ are attested when the relative clause is verbless. While this construction is not as common as the use of $\check{s}a$, it is by no means rare. Note that it can be identified by the appearance of a form other than a genitive after the bound form. (The case of a noun after a bound form, such as the nominative $\check{s}arrum$ in the second example above, will of course be obscured if it is written logographically.)

 $\check{s}a$ may also be omitted after the indefinite pronouns; in such cases, the pronouns are used by themselves as indefinite relatives, i.e., mamma(n) 'who(m)ever', mimma 'whatever'.

(f) Another word that is used as a relative pronoun is mala (in southern and Mari OB, mali; also mal) 'as much/many as, however much, everything that, everyone who, whoever, whatever'. Like $\S a$, it follows the noun to which it refers:

âm mala ērišūki idnīm 'Give (fs) me as much grain as (however much grain, whatever grain) I requested of you' (erēšum 'to ask someone for something, request something of someone'); ṣābum mala ittīka illaku lillikam 'Let as many troops as are (lit.: go) with you (ms) come here'.

Without an antecedent:

mali ina mātīšu eppešu tešemme 'You (ms) will hear whatever I do in his country'.

Occasionally, $\check{s}a$ follows mal(a/i):

ṭēmam mal ša ištu mātim šuāti imaqqutakkunūšim šuprānim 'Send me whatever news (as much news as) comes to you (mp) from that country'.

(a) Form. The Participle is an adjective of the pattern $p\bar{a}ris$. As an adjective, it is declinable, and has fem. and pl. forms:

	SING	JLAR		Plur	AL
	MASC.	FEM.		MASC.	FEM.
nom.	$p\bar{a}risum$	pārištum	nom.	$p\bar{a}ris\bar{u}tum$	$p\bar{a}ris\bar{a}tum$
0	$p\bar{a}risim$	•	genacc.	$par{a}risar{u}tim$	$p\bar{a}ris\bar{a}tim$
acc.	$p\bar{a}risam$	$par{a}ri\check{s}tam$

When used as a noun, the masc. pl. may have the plural endings found on nouns, i.e., nom. $p\bar{a}ris\bar{u}$, gen.-acc. $p\bar{a}ris\bar{\iota}$. The bound forms are all straightforward, except for the fem. sg., which is $p\bar{a}risat$ before nouns, but $p\bar{a}rista$ - before pronominal suffixes (see §§8.3(c 2v a); 11.1(c 1); for s > s before the fem. t, see §5.4).

The Participles of verbs I–m and verbs I–w are completely regular: e.g., $n\bar{a}dinum$, $w\bar{a}sibum$. As is also true of its Infinitive (see §9.2), the Participle of $bab\bar{a}lum$ is always written with initial b instead of w (except in Mari OB), thus, $b\bar{a}bilum$.

Verbs I–° (including $al\bar{a}kum$) offer no difficulties. The initial ° has been lost with no further changes in verbs I–a: $\bar{a}hizum$, $\bar{a}likum$. In verbs I–e, as usual, a-vowels become e: ms $\bar{e}ribum$, $\bar{e}ribtum$ (bound form $\bar{e}ribet$, but with suffix $\bar{e}ribta$ -), mp $\bar{e}rib\bar{u}tum$, fp $\bar{e}rib\bar{e}tum$.

For verbs III–weak, the loss of R_3 results in the base $p\bar{a}ri$ - for III–a/i/u, and $p\bar{e}ri$ - for III–e (note $man\hat{u}m$ (u) 'to count'):

		$ban\hat{u}m$ (i)	$man\hat{u}m~(u)$	$kal\hat{u}m$ (a)	šemûm (e)
ms	nom.	$bar{a}n\hat{u}m$	$mar{a}n\hat{u}m$	$kar{a}l\hat{u}m$	šēmûm
	gen.	$bar{a}n\hat{\imath}m$	$mar{a}n\hat{\imath}m$	$kar{a}l\hat{\imath}m$	šēmîm
	acc.	$b\bar{a}niam$	$mar{a}niam$	$k\bar{a}liam$	$\check{s}ar{e}miam$
fs	nom.	$b\bar{a}n\bar{\imath}tum$	$mar{a}nar{\imath}tum$	$k\bar{a}l\bar{\imath}tum$	šēmītum mp	nom.	$b\bar{a}n\hat{u}tum$	$mar{a}n\hat{u}tum$	$kar{a}l\hat{u}tum$	šēmûtum
fp	nom.	$b\bar{a}ni\bar{a}tum$	$mar{a}niar{a}tum$	$k\bar{a}li\bar{a}tum$	šēmiātum

Note that \bar{a} does not become \bar{e} in $\bar{s}\bar{e}mi\bar{a}tum$ (fp), contrary to expectation.

The bound forms of the ms follow the pattern of other words whose bases end in i: e.g., $b\bar{a}ni$ or $b\bar{a}n$; with suff. $b\bar{a}n\bar{i}\check{s}u$ for all cases (see §§8.3 (c 3), 11.1(c 2)). Like Participles of other verb types, the fs bound form before nouns usually has a inserted before the t: $b\bar{a}niat$ (as opposed to $rab\bar{i}t$ from $rab\bar{i}tum$); likewise usually a even in verbs III–e: $s\bar{e}miat$ (but note also re-di-IT for $r\bar{e}d\bar{i}t$ or $r\bar{e}diet$, from $r\bar{e}d\hat{u}m$); before a suffix the a drops out: $b\bar{a}n\bar{i}tka$ (nom.–acc.), $b\bar{a}n\bar{i}t\bar{i}ka$ (gen.) 'your (ms) maker (fs)'.

Verbs II–weak have Participles that follow the pattern of the sound verb, with ${}^{\circ}$ representing R_2 : e.g., $d\bar{a}^{\circ}ikum$, $s\bar{a}^{\circ}imum$, $n\bar{e}^{\circ}irum$ (for the writing of ${}^{\circ}$, see §21.4). A few verbs II–weak of the a–u and a–i classes also have irregular Participles of the form $mup\bar{\imath}s$: e.g., $mud\bar{\imath}kum$ (from $d\hat{a}kum$, alongside $d\bar{a}^{\circ}ikum$).

(b) Meaning and Use. The G Participle is active in voice; Participles of stative verbs, such as watārum or marāṣum, do not occur. When used to modify a noun, the Participle corresponds to English adjectives ending in '-ing' or relative clauses of the type 'who/that does/did X':

kakkum māḥiṣum 'a smiting weapon, a weapon that smites'.

The Participle may not be used to express the English progressive tenses: 'the king is going' will always be šarrum illak (Durative), never šarrum ālikum; the latter means 'a going/walking king, a king who goes'.

The Participle often occurs as a bound form before a genitive. With active-transitive verbs, the following genitive is normally what would be the direct object if the verb were finite:

šarrum māḥiṣ mātim nakartim 'the king who smites the enemy land' (cf. šarrum mātam nakartam imaḥḥaṣ 'the king smites the foreign land');

 $b\bar{e}let~il\bar{\iota}~b\bar{a}niat~nis\bar{\iota}$ (gen.) 'the mistress of the gods who creates the people' (cf. $b\bar{e}let~il\bar{\iota}~nis\bar{\iota}$ (acc.) ibanni 'the mistress of the gods creates the people').

Pronominal suffixes on Participles are those added to nouns (cf. §18.2, end):

 $umm\bar{\imath}\ w\bar{a}litt\bar{\imath}\ (\ *w\bar{a}lid\text{-}t\text{-}\bar{\imath}; \text{cf. } \S5.4)$ 'my mother who bore me' (cf. $umm\bar{\imath}\ uldann\bar{\imath}$ 'my mother bore me').

With active intransitive verbs, especially verbs of motion, the genitive after a Participle may express what would be a prepositional phrase with a finite verb:

ilum ālik pānīya 'the god who goes before me' (cf. ilum ina pānīya illak 'the god goes before me');

bēltum ēribet bīt ilim 'the lady who enters the temple' (cf. bēltum ana bīt ilim irrub 'the lady enters the temple');

 $s\bar{a}bum\ w\bar{a}sib\ mahar\ sarrim$ 'the army dwelling/that dwells before the king' (cf. $s\bar{a}bum\ ina\ mahar\ sarrim\ ussab$ 'the army dwells before the king').

A Participle modifying a plural noun, when the former stands in the bound form before another noun, may be singular; the reason for this is not clear (but cf. perhaps phrases such as $b\bar{e}l\ hubull\bar{\imath}\check{s}u$ 'his creditors', cited in §12.4): e.g., $il\bar{u}$ $w\bar{a}sib$ $\bar{a}lim$ $ann\hat{i}m$ 'the gods dwelling/who dwell in this town'.

The Participle is very frequently substantivized (see §4.4), with the meaning '(the) one who/that does/did X':

p\bar{a}ris\ puruss\hat{e} 'one (masc.) who makes decisions'; w\bar{a}\check{s}ib\bar{u}t\ \bar{a}lim 'city-dwellers'; n\bar{a}dinum 'the one who gives/gave, the seller (masc.)'; w\bar{a}lid\bar{u}tum 'parents' (lit., 'those who begot'); p\bar{a}qidum 'inspector'.
```

As can be seen from these examples, the substantivized Participle often denotes an agent noun or a noun of occupation. Further examples:

\bar{a}likum 'traveler, messenger (masc.)'; \bar{s}\bar{a}pirum 'overseer, governor, prefect'; b\bar{a}n\hat{u}m and b\bar{a}n\bar{\imath}tum 'creator (masc. and fem.)'; s\bar{a}b\bar{\imath}tum 'innkeeper (fem.)' (from sab\hat{u}m 'to brew beer').
```

It is important that the distinction in meaning between the two adjectives derivable from most active roots, the Verbal Adjective and the Participle, be clear, particularly since certain forms of the two, such as the ms bound form, appear the same in cuneiform and in transliteration (e.g., pa-ri-is for paris and $p\bar{a}ris$). For transitive roots, the Verbal Adjective is passive in meaning, while the Participle is active:

ṣabtum 'captured, captive, prisoner' vs. ṣābitum 'captor'; maḥṣum 'smitten' vs. māḥiṣum 'smiting';
epištum 'done (f), deed' vs. ēpištum 'doer, worker (f)'.

For active-intransitive roots, the distinction between the two forms is one of aspect: the Verbal Adjective is perfective while the Participle is imperfective, as in wašbum 'having sat down, seated' vs. wāšibum 'sitting (down)'.

As with English 'seated' vs. 'sitting', some semantic overlap between wašbum and $w\bar{a}\check{s}ibum$ may be assumed.

20.2 The Nominal Suffix -ān

The morpheme $-\bar{a}n$, which occurs immediately before the case-ending on nouns, serves to derive substantives from other nominal forms. It occurs, for example, on some participles as in nādinum 'selling, one who sells, seller', nādinānum 'seller';māhirum 'receiving, one who receives', māhirānum 'recipient'.

```

It also appears on other nouns and adjectives derived from verbal roots:

```
šarrāqānum 'thief', a synonym of šarrāqum;
šulmānum 'greeting-gift' (cf. šulmum 'well-being, greeting');
rabiānum 'mayor', that is 'great one', from rabûm 'great'.
```

The morpheme $-\bar{a}n$ also appears on a small number of plurals, mostly words with short bases:

```
il\bar{a}n\bar{u} = il\bar{u} 'gods';

\check{s}arr\bar{a}n\bar{u} = \check{s}arr\bar{u} 'kings'.

In later dialects (post-OB), the forms with $-\bar{a}n$ become the normal plurals of ilum and $\delta arrum$ ($il\bar{u}$ and $\delta arr\bar{u}$ being lost for the most part). Plurals with $\bar{a}n$ also spread to additional nouns, for example, both $\delta ipr\bar{u}$ and $\delta ipr\bar{a}n\bar{u}$ (as well as $\delta ipr\bar{t}um$) occur as plurals of $\delta iprum$. See also the next section.

Until recently, $-\bar{a}n$ was thought to indicate a specific or particular member of the class or object denoted by the word to which it is attached, and was often translated 'the X in question' or 'that (particular) X' (e.g., $\delta arr\bar{a}q\bar{a}num$ 'the thief in question'). The description here follows instead Streck 2005.

20.3 Irregular Masculine Plurals

(a) In the plurals of abum, $a\underline{b}um$, and $i\underline{s}um$, the consonant before the endings $-\overline{u}/-\overline{\iota}$ is doubled; this is also true of the fem. counterpart of $a\underline{b}um$, $a\underline{b}\overline{a}tum$ 'sister':

```
abb\bar{u} 'fathers, ancestors'; i\bar{s}\bar{s}\bar{u} 'trees, woods'; ahh\bar{u} 'brothers'; ahh\bar{a}tum 'sisters'.
```

The forms $ahh\bar{u}$ and $ahh\bar{a}tum$ are often written with an extra A sign at the beginning, i.e., a-ah-hu, a-ah-ha-tum.

(b) The nouns $aw\bar{\imath}lum$ and $suh\bar{a}rum$ have the following pl. forms:

```
nom. aw\bar{\imath}l\hat{u} şuh\bar{a}r\hat{u} gen.-acc. aw\bar{\imath}l\hat{e} suh\bar{a}r\hat{e}

The endings $-\hat{u}$, $-\hat{e}$ are contractions of $-\bar{a}^{\,2}\bar{u}$ and $-\bar{a}^{\,2}\bar{\iota}$, respectively.

(c) The pl. of $\bar{a}lum$ 'town' always has the suffix $-\bar{a}n$; the pl. markers may be either the usual $-\bar{u}$, $-\bar{\iota}$ or those found on $aw\bar{\iota}lum$, $suh\bar{a}rum$:

```
nom. \bar{a}l\bar{a}n\bar{u} or \bar{a}l\bar{a}n\hat{u}; gen.-acc. \bar{a}l\bar{a}n\bar{i} or \bar{a}l\bar{a}n\hat{e}.

20.4 Negation

The two negative adverbs encountered in OB, ul and $l\bar{a}$, have clearly defined, and mutually exclusive, ranges of use.

ul, introduced in §4.5, is spelled \acute{u} -ul in OB; the less common byform ula appears especially in early OB texts (another, extremely rare, byform is uli). ul(a) is used to negate main-clause assertions; these may be verbal ('you did not go') or verbless ('he is not in the city'). It also negates interrogative sentences in which no interrogative pronoun or adverb occurs (these are taken up in §36.3; examples: verbal 'did you not go?'; verbless 'is he not in the city?').

 $l\bar{a}$ (written both la-a and la) is used in all other situations:

- (a) in all subordinate clauses (§§19.3, 26.2) and in protases (but not apodoses) of conditional sentences with šumma (§17.3(b));
- (b) in negative injunctions, specifically, in the Prohibitive ($l\bar{a}$ + Durative; §16.3) and in negative injunctive verbless clauses (such as $l\bar{a}$ ina $\bar{a}lim$ $s\bar{u}$ 'may he not be in the city'; see §22.2);
 - (c) after interrogative pronouns and adverbs (§14.2);
 - (d) to negate individual nouns and adjectives: e.g., lā epištam tēpuš 'you (ms) did a non-deed'; eqlam šuāti ina lā mê īzibū 'they abandoned that field for lack of water (lit.: with/due to no water)';

ṭēmum lā damqum imqutam 'an unfavorable report reached me'; alaktum lā išartum 'unjust conduct (alaktum)'.

It is often appropriate to translate $\check{s}a\ l\bar{a}$ ('of no ...') as 'without'; similarly, a bound form before $l\bar{a}$:

eqlum ša lā mê 'a field without water'; kasap lā kanīkim 'silver without a sealed document'.

LESSON TWENTY-ONE

21.1 Summary of the Verb in the G Stem

The student has now encountered all of the forms associated with the verb in the G stem. These are:

- (a) Three indicative "tenses": Durative, Preterite, and Perfect;
- (b) Four injunctive forms: Imperative, Precative, Prohibitive, and Vetitive;
- (c) Three non-finite or nominal forms: the Infinitive, the Participle, and the Verbal Adjective.
- (d) Two morphemes that may occur with any finite verb: the Ventive and the Subordination Marker.

All verbs in the language, in theory at least, occur in each of these forms. Thus far, the G-stem (basic stem) has been presented for triradical sound verbs and for all verb types with one radical subject to phonological change (weak verbs). Following the standard descriptive grammar of Akkadian, W. von Soden's Grundriß der akkadischen Grammatik, we may present verbs in paradigms consisting of "principal parts," arranged in the following order: Infinitive, Durative, Perfect, Preterite, Imperative, Participle, Verbal Adjective (and its base). (Von Soden prefers a slightly different order of presentation.) The finite forms are given in the 3cs (ms for the Imperative), the non-finite forms in the ms. Thus, the G-stem of parāsum appears as follows:

parāsum iparras iptaras iprus purus pārisum parsum (paris)

(The Precative and Vetitive are based on the Preterite, the Prohibitive on the Durative.) Paradigms of this type are given for all verb types, in all stems, beginning on page 623.

21.2 E-type Verbs

In certain OB dialects, a small group of sound verbs exhibit forms with e-vowels in nearly every instance in which normal verbs have a-vowels, except the usual endings. These verbs usually have a liquid (l,r) or nasal (m,n) as their second or third radical; most have e as their theme-vowel. Many of these verbs also exhibit "regular" forms with the expected a rather than e (and with theme-vowel i). Some examples:

šebērum 'to break': tešebber (also tašabbir) 'you (ms) will break'; šebram (šabram) 'broken (ms acc.)'; qerēbum 'to approach': iqterbū (also iqtarbū) 'they (m) have approached'; qerbētum (qarbūtum) 'near (fp nom.)'; șeḥērum 'to diminish': iṣeḥḥerā (also iṣaḥḥirā) 'they (f) diminish'; lemēnum 'to become evil, angry': eltemnakkim (also altamnakkim) 'I have become angry with you (fs)'.

21.3 Doubly Weak Verbs

The roots of some verbs, many of them among the most common verbs in the language, contain not one but two radicals subject to phonological change: e.g.,

nadûm 'to lay down' (I–n and III–weak); elûm 'to go up' (I–e and III–weak); wârum 'to advance' (I–w and II–weak).

In general, it may be said that, if the two weak radicals are the first and third, the phonological changes and peculiarities of each, as described in the previous lessons, will occur. If, however, the middle radical is one of the usually weak consonants, it is most often treated like a strong (regular) radical. In the following paragraphs, the G-stem forms of one or two examples of each doubly weak root type are given in paradigms of the type discussed above in §21.1.

(a) I–n and II–i. Most often, the i is a strong (unaltered) radical, as in $na^{j}\bar{a}dum$ (i) 'to pay attention, heed'; other roots, however, behave like normal roots II–i, as in $n\hat{e}rum$ (e; also $n\hat{a}rum$, see §9.1) 'to slay'.

Infinitive	$na^{\circ}ar{a}dum$	nêrum (nârum)
Durative	ina⁵id	$in\hat{e}r$ ($in\hat{a}r$), pl. $inerr\bar{u}$ ($inarr\bar{u}$)
Perfect	$itta$ $^{\circ}id$	ittēr (ittār)
Preterite	$i^{\circ\circ}id$	$inar{e}r~(inar{a}r)$
Imperative	i i d	$n\bar{e}r$ (sic; not  $\bar{e}r$) ($n\bar{a}r$)
Participle	$nar{a}^{\scriptscriptstyle ightarrow}idum$	$*n\bar{e}^{\circ}irum\ (*n\bar{a}^{\circ}irum)$
Verbal Adj.	$na^{3}dum (na^{3}id)$	$nar{e}rum~(nar{e}r)~(nar{a}rum,~nar{a}r)$

(b) I–n and II–w* or II–y. A middle w behaves like a regular consonant in some roots, such as $naw\bar{a}rum$ (i) 'to shine', but like a weak consonant in others, such as nah_um (a–u) 'to rest'. Verbs I–n and II–y are conjugated like other verbs II–y, as in $ni\bar{a}lum~(a-i)$ 'to lie down'.

Infinitive	$nawar{a}rum$	nâḫum	$niar{a}lum$
Durative	in a wwir	$in\hat{a}h$, pl. $inuhhar{u}$	$inar\iota al$, pl. $inillar\iota$
Perfect	ittawir	$ittar{u}h$	$ittar{\imath}l$
Preterite	iwwir	$inar{u}h$	$inar{\imath}l$
Imperative	*iwir	$^*nar{u}b$	$*nar{\imath}l$
Participle	$*nar{a}wirum$	_	_
Verbal Adj.	nawirum	$nar{e}hum\ (nar{e}h)$	$n\bar{\imath}lum~(n\bar{\imath}l)$
•		— nēḫum (nēḫ)	— nīlum (nīl)

(c) I–n and III–weak. Both weak radicals undergo the usual changes; examples: $nad\hat{u}m$ (i) 'to put, lay down'; $nes\hat{u}m$ (e) 'to become far away'.

Infinitive	$nad\hat{u}m$	nesûm
Durative	in addi	inesse
Perfect	ittadi	ittese
Preterite	iddi	isse
Imperative	idi	*ise
Participle	$nar{a}d\hat{u}m$	_
Verbal Adj.	nadûm (nadi)	nesûm (nesi)

(d) I-² and II-weak. In this small group, the middle radical is a strong 2 in $e^{2}\bar{e}lum$ (i) 'to bind', but the first 2 is preserved between vowels in $\hat{e}rum$ (e) 'to awaken'.

Infinitive	$e^{\scriptscriptstyle \circ} ar{e} lum$	êrum
Durative	$i^{\circ\circ}il$	i ° $\hat{e}r$?
Perfect	?	?
Preterite	$ar{\imath}^{\circ}il?$	$i^{\scriptscriptstyle \circ}ar{e}r$
Imperative	$e^{\circ}il$	$ar{e}r?$
Participle	_	_
Verbal Adj.	e ^ɔ lum (e ^ɔ il)	ērum (ēr)

(e) I–³ and III–weak. Both R_1 and R_3 undergo the usual changes; all of these verbs are III–i and most are I–e, like $el\hat{u}m$ 'to go up', but note also $ar\hat{u}m$ (Durative irri, 2fs $tarr\hat{i}$) 'to conceive, become pregnant'.

Infinitive	$el\hat{u}m$
Durative	illi, telli, etc. (rarely also talli)
Perfect	$\bar{\imath}teli$, $t\bar{e}teli$, etc. (rarely also $t\bar{a}tali$)
Preterite	$ar{\imath} li, tar{e} li$, etc. (rarely also $tar{a} li$)

Imperative eli, fs $el\hat{i}$, cp $eli\bar{a}$ (rarely also ali, etc.) Participle $\bar{e}l\hat{u}m$ Verbal Adj. $el\hat{u}m$ (eli)

(f) I–w and II–weak. For the most part, the w (R_I) remains strong (though sometimes lost) and R_2 behaves as in other verbs II–weak; examples: warum (a–i) 'to advance'; *wiāṣum (a–i) 'to become (too) little'.

*wiārum/wârum	*wiāṣum
* $iw\bar{\imath}ar/i(w)\hat{a}r,$ pl. $i(w)irrar{u}$	*iwīaṣ, pl. iwiṣṣū
$iw\bar{\imath}r$	$iwar{\imath}$
$(i^{\circ}ir)$	_
_	_
?	$(w)\bar{\imath}$ ṣum $((w)\bar{\imath}$ ṣ)
	*iwīar/i(w)âr, pl. i(w)irrū ? iwīr

(g) I–w and III–weak. These exhibit the features of both verbs I–w and verbs III–weak. The theme-vowel is the same for both Durative and Preterite, as in other verbs III–weak, and unlike other verbs I–w (which are a–i verbs); the majority are III–i, like wasûm (i) 'to go out, forth', but note also watûm (a) 'to find' and warûm (u) 'to lead'.

waşûm	$wat\hat{u}m$	$war\hat{u}m$
ușși, tușși	utta, tutta	urru, turru
ittași, tattași	ittata, tattata	ittaru, $tattaru$
uși, tuși	uta, $tuta$	uru, $turu$
si , fs $s\hat{\imath}$, cp $siar{a}$	ta , fs $t\hat{\imath}$, cp $t\hat{a}$	ru , fs $r\hat{\imath}$, cp $r\hat{a}$
$war{a}$ $\hat{s}\hat{u}m$	$war{a}t\hat{u}m$	$war{a}r\hat{u}m$
waṣûm (waṣi)	watûm (wati)	warûm (wari)
	uṣṣi, tuṣṣi ittaṣi, tattaṣi uṣi, tuṣi ṣi, fs ṣî, cp ṣiā wāṣûm	uṣṣi, tuṣṣi utta, tutta ittaṣi, tattaṣi ittata, tattata uṣi, tuṣi uta, tuta ṣi, fs ṣî, cp ṣiā ta, fs tî, cp tâ wāṣûm wātûm

(h) II–° and III–weak. Usually the middle ° remains as a regular consonant, although forms with contraction also occur; in non-finite forms ° is sometimes replaced by y (written with IA; see §21.4, below). In most forms of these verbs, expected a-vowels become e; the theme-vowel usually vacillates between i and e; e.g., le°um 'to be able':

Infinitive $le^3\hat{u}m$ or $ley\hat{u}m$, gen. $le^3\hat{e}m$ or $ley\hat{e}m$ or $l\hat{e}m$ Durative $ile^{23}i$, $tele^{23}i$ and $il\hat{e}/il\hat{i}$, $tel\hat{e}/tel\hat{i}$ Imperative ?

Perfect $ilte^3i$, $telte^3i$ and $ilt\hat{e}$, $telt\hat{e}$ Participle $l\bar{e}^3\hat{u}m/l\bar{e}y\hat{u}m$ Preterite (il^3e, tel^3e) usually $il\bar{e}$, $tel\bar{e}$ Verbal Adj. $*le^3\hat{u}m$ (le^3i)

Durative $il\hat{e}$ is found in northern OB texts, $il\hat{i}$ in southern texts (and CH).

(i) II–w and III–weak. The w behaves like a regular consonant, e.g., in $law\hat{u}m$ (i) 'to go around'.

Infinitive $law\hat{u}m$ Durative ilawwi Imperative liwiPerfect iltawi Participle $l\bar{a}w\hat{u}m$ Preterite ilwi Verbal Adj. $law\hat{u}m$ (lawi)

(j) II–w or II–y and III–z (as opposed to III–w/y as in the preceding). These are generally conjugated like other verbs II–w/y, with or without the final z indicated.

 $b\hat{a}^{\circ}um$ (a) 'to walk along': Durative $ib\hat{a}(^{\circ})$, Preterite $ib\bar{a}(^{\circ})$.

(k) Trebly weak verbs. There are a few trebly weak verbs:

 $ew\hat{u}m$ 'to become': Durative iwwi, Perfect $\bar{\imath}tewi$, Preterite $\bar{\imath}wi$; $naw\hat{u}m$ 'to be abandoned, in ruins': Durative inawwi, Verbal Adj. $naw\hat{u}m$ (nawi); awûm (III–u) 'to speak' (not in the G-stem in OB).

In these, as the forms indicate, the middle radical w is a strong consonant. Still another trebly weak verb, however, is inflected like other verbs II—weak:

 $n\hat{e}^{\circ}um$ 'to turn around': Durative $in\hat{e}^{\circ}$, Preterite $in\bar{e}^{\circ}$.

21.4 The Writing of ³

In Middle Babylonian and later texts, there is a specific sign with the values V° and ${}^{\circ}V$, i.e., the glottal stop ${}^{\circ}$ preceded or followed by any vowel; this sign, A° (${}^{\bullet}V^{\bullet}$), originated as a graphic differentiation of AH. In texts of the Old Babylonian period, however, a specific sign for the representation of ${}^{\circ}$ was not in use, and so other means were employed to indicate the glottal stop in those words in which it occurred.

The least ambiguous representation of ${}^{\circ}$ in OB writing is the use of h-signs: for syllable-closing ${}^{\circ}$, the sign AH may be used; for syllable-initial ${}^{\circ}$, one finds HA, HI, and HU. Some Assyriologists assign special values to these signs when they are used to indicate ${}^{\circ}$, a convention that will be followed in this textbook:

AH = ah, eh, ih, uh, but also, in OB, a^3 , e^3 , i^3 , u^3 (these values are assigned to the special A³ sign in later texts);

HA = ha, but also $^{\circ}a_4$;

 $\text{HI} = hi, he, \text{ but also } \hat{i};$

HU = hu, but also u_5 .

Other Assyriologists prefer simply to transliterate these signs with their h-values, sometimes using Roman capital letters to indicate that the actual phonetic value is not the usual one. Some examples:

i-na-a²-²i-id or i-na-AḤ-ḤI-id for ina²ʾid 'she will heed';
i-²i-id or i-ḤI-id for iʾid 'heed! (ms)';
na-²a₄-du-um or na-ḤA-du-um for naʾādum 'to heed';
na-a²-du-um or na-AḤ-du-um for naʾdum 'pious';
nu-u²-²u5-du-um or nu-UḤ-ḤU-du-um 'to instruct' (§29.1);
še-er-²a₄-num or še-er-ḤA-num for šerʾānum 'band, vein, tendon';
e-²i-il-tum or e-ḤI-il-tum for e²iltum '(financial) obligation';
i-²a₄-al-la-lu-šu or i-ḤA-al-la-lu-šu for i²allalūšu 'they (m) will hang him' (CH §21; see Lesson 18, exercise F).
```

Examples like the last, which is the Durative of the verb $al\bar{a}lum$ 'to hang' (a-u), with a strong $^{\circ}$, are exceptions to the usual conjugation of verbs $I-^{\circ}$, probably the result of inter-dialectal mixing.

The most common indication of \circ is simply the writing of an appropriate vowel sign, as in le-\hat{u}-um for le^{\hat{z}}\hat{u}m 'to be able' (or Participle l\bar{e}^{\hat{z}}\hat{u}m); it-ta-i-id for itta^{\hat{z}}id 'he has heeded'; \check{s}a-i-mu-um for \check{s}\bar{a}^{\hat{z}}imum 'the one (m) who purchases'; \check{s}e-er-a-num for \check{s}er^{\hat{z}}\bar{a}num 'band, vein, tendon'.

```

Note that a broken writing, i.e., VC-V(C), as in the last example, regularly indicates the presence of $^{\circ}$ (otherwise, the sequence VC-V(C) appears only in certain morphographemic writings; see §18.4). Writings like the first three examples, it will be noted, are the same as writings for two vowels in sequence, as described on p. 72, such as ra-bi-a-am for rabiam 'great (ms, acc.)'; ki-a-am for kiam 'thus'.

ra-bi-a-tum for rabiātum 'great (fp)'; qí-a-šu-um for qiāšum 'to give'.

Whether such writings are to be normalized with or without $^{\circ}$ depends on a number of factors. It is partly a matter of whether the $^{\circ}$ is represented as a strong consonant by other means in other writings of the form (e.g., the use of h-signs as in it-ta-HI-id for itta-id; see above), or in writings of other forms of the same root (e.g., the broken writing in il-e for il-e 'he was able'). It is also in part simply a matter of convention; as was noted in §1.2(b), some Assyriologists prefer to transliterate $^{\circ}$ between any two vowels, thus, rabi- $^{\circ}am$, rabi- $^{\circ}atum$, ki- $^{\circ}am$, qi- $^{\circ}asum$. In the normalizations in this textbook, the sequences ia and ea (with long or short a) are generally not separated by $^{\circ}$, whereas other sequences of two vowels are transliterated $V^{3}V$ (apart from most sequences involving the same vowels; see below).

In some instances, especially in non-finite forms of roots that are both II–³ and III–weak, expected ³ is written with the IA sign, apparently indicating the pronunciation of intervocalic ³ as a glide, y: e.g.,

LUGAL le-iu-um for $šarrum\ l\bar{e}y\hat{u}m$ 'able king' in the Prologue to CH; contrast $šar-ru-um\ le-\acute{u}-um$ for $šarrum\ l\bar{e}^{-\^{u}}m$ with the same meaning in the Epilogue to CH;

a-na re-ie-em for ana reyêm 'in order to tend' ($re^{\jmath}\hat{u}m$ ' 'to tend', conjugated like $le^{\jmath}\hat{u}m$) in a royal inscription of king Samsu-iluna (Ḥammurapi's successor); contrast a-na re-em for ana re-êm or ana rêm with the same meaning in CH §265.

Double ³³, which appears only in forms of II–weak verbs and their derivatives, may also be indicated by a vowel sign, as in i-na-i-id for ina²²id 'she will heed'; i-na-i-du for ina²² $id\bar{u}$ 'they (m) will heed'.

A special difficulty is presented by cases in which vowels of the same quality appear on either side of ${}^{\circ}$ or ${}^{\circ\circ}$, and ${}^{\circ}$ -signs are not used. For example, is the Infinitive na-a-dum to be interpreted as $na^{\circ}\bar{a}dum$ or as $n\hat{a}dum$ (cf. $\check{s}a$ -a-mu-um for $\check{s}\hat{a}mum$ 'to buy')? The former is preferred by most Assyriologists because other forms of this verb frequently have a strong ${}^{\circ}$ indicated (whereas other forms of $\check{s}\hat{a}mum$ do not). Similarly, writings such as i-LI-i for the Durative of $le^{\circ}\hat{u}m$ 'to be able' may represent either $ile^{\circ\circ}i$, with strong medial ${}^{\circ\circ}i$, or $il\hat{i}i$, with loss of ${}^{\circ\circ}i$ and vowel contraction; since the Preterite occurs as both il-e for il-e and i-e for il-e, i.e., both with and without ${}^{\circ}i$ preserved, the Durative writing is ambiguous. A similar difficulty obtains in writings in which ${}^{\circ}i$ is expected before another consonant, and yet is not indicated by AH; e.g., the Verbal Adj. written na-a-dum or na-dum may be normalized na-a-dum or $n\bar{a}dum$ (with loss of ${}^{\circ}i$ and compensatory lengthening).

21.5 Topicalization by Preposing

Topicalization is the announcement or emphasis of the topic of a sentence, when the speaker/writer wishes the hearer/reader to focus on a part of the sentence other than the grammatical predicate (i.e., other than the verb in verbal sentences). One means of topicalization in most languages is by intonation or stress (e.g., 'I saw you there' or 'I saw you there'). Presumably, intonation was one means of emphasis in Akkadian, but this type of emphasis is not reflected in the written language. There are two means of topicalizing in Akkadian that are discernible, however: the addition of -ma to a word, for which see §29.2; and preposing. In preposing (also called "extraposition"), a noun or noun phrase that is the topic of its clause, or that needs emphasis, is dissociated from its clause, and placed at the beginning of the clause, in the nominative case. Clauses of this kind thus appear to have two subjects; in fact, however, the first nom. noun (phrase) is not part of the grammar of the clause, and is therefore sometimes termed the nominative absolute (also referred to as "casus pendens" [Latin for "hanging case"] or "suspended subject"). The noun or noun phrase that is topicalized in this way is always replaced in its clause by an appropriate pronoun suffix. Some examples:

šarrum māršu imraṣ '(As for) the king — his son fell ill.'
sinništum šī aḥūka iḥḥassi '(As for) that woman — your (ms) brother will marry her.'
ṣuḥārû ša taṭrudīm âm attadiššunūšim '(As for) the servants you (fs) sent me — I have given them grain.'
```

As the translations indicate, the most convenient representation of preposing in Akkadian is preposing in English: 'As for X ...'. Preposing in Akkadian, however, does not always connote the same emphasis as it does in English; often it is simply a means of announcing the topic of the sentence. Further, the phrase 'as for X' is somewhat stilted in English. Thus, it is often best to translate such sentences by reinserting the preposed noun (phrase) into its original position in the clause. The above sentences, then, could be rendered:

'The king's son fell ill.'
```

'Your brother will marry that woman.'

'I have given grain to the servants you sent me.'

Like resumptive pronouns (§18.2, p. 171), preposing serves several discourse functions, including easing comprehension in a complicated sentence, highlighting a topic, announcing a new topic, or marking the end of a section of discourse. The frequency of preposing varies from genre to genre: it is common in the protases of laws and of omens (§22.3), less so in contracts and letters (§24.5).

LESSON TWENTY-TWO

22.1 The Predicative Construction

Adjectives may be used attributively, as in 'the wide river', and predicatively, as in 'the river is wide'. As we have seen (§4.2), an attributive adjective in Akkadian follows the noun it modifies and agrees with it in gender, number, and case. Adjectives that serve as the predicate of their clause normally appear in an entirely different syntactic construction. This predicative construction is comprised of two elements:

- (1) the base of the adjective;
- (2) an enclitic (i.e., suffixed) pronoun that serves as the subject.

The two elements of a predicative construction constitute a verbless predication in which the predicate precedes its pronominal subject, as we have seen to be the case in other verbless clauses (see §2.5); for example, compare the following two clauses:

ina ālim anāku 'I am/was/will be in the town' (lit., 'in the town-I'); dannāku 'I am/was/will be strong' (lit., 'strong-I').

The difference between these two clauses is that when the predicate is an adjective (or an unmodified noun; see below), the predicative construction with its enclitic form of the pronoun is used. Below are the forms of the enclitic subject pronouns, and the complete paradigm of the predicative construction with the adjective marṣum 'sick':

1cs	$-ar{a}ku$	as in	mar s $ar{a}ku$	'I am/was/will be sick'
2ms	- $ar{a}ta$	as in	mar ṣ $ar{a}ta$	'you (ms) are/were/will be sick'
2fs	- $ar{a}ti$	as in	mar sar ati	'you (fs) are/were/will be sick'
3ms	-ø	as in	marus	'he is/was/will be sick'
3fs	-at	as in	marsa t	'she is/was/will be sick'
1cp	$-\bar{a}nu$	as in	marṣānu	'we are/were/will be sick'
1cp 2mp	-ānu -ātunu	as in	marṣānu marṣātunu	'we are/were/will be sick' 'you (mp) are/were/will be sick'
_ 1			•

The following byforms also appear occasionally: 1cs $-\bar{a}k$, 2ms $-\bar{a}ti$ and $-\bar{a}t$, and 2fs $-\bar{a}t$.

As can be seen from the example above, the form of the pronoun in the first and second persons is reminiscent of the independent personal pronouns; in the third person plural (and dual), the pronoun elements are the same as the corresponding endings on finite verbs; for the third fem. sg. the enclitic pronoun is -at, while for the third masc. sg. it is $-\phi$, i.e., no ending appears after the adjective base. Note that the addition of the pronominal elements causes the expected syncope of the theme-vowel in the Verbal Adjective, so that the full adjective base appears only with the 3ms subject.

The predicative form that results from the combination of adjective base and enclitic pronoun is subject to the usual rules of vowel contraction. Vowel harmony affects only a-vowels that are non-final; further, vowel harmony does not usually affect the pronominal elements after adjectives of roots III–e. When the base of the adjective ends in a double consonant, as in dann- 'strong', the doubling is simplified in the predicative form with 3ms subject: dan 'he is/was/will be strong'. Additional paradigms of predicative forms will illustrate these points; note ezbum 'abandoned', rabûm 'great', šemûm 'heard', dannum 'strong':

2ms	$ezbar{e}ta$	$rabiar{a}ta$	$\check{s}emiar{a}ta$	$dannar{a}ta$
2fs	$ezbar{e}ti$	$rabiar{a}ti$	$\check{s}emiar{a}ti$	$dannar{a}ti$
3ms	ezib	rabi	$\check{s}emi$	dan
3fs	ezbet	rabiat	$\check{s}emiat$	dannat
1cp	$ezbar{e}nu$	$rabiar{a}nu$	$\check{s}emi\bar{a}nu$	$dann\bar{a}nu$
2mp	$ezbar{e}tunu$	$rabiar{a}tunu$	šemiātunu	$dannar{a}tunu$
2fp	$ezbar{e}tina$	$rabiar{a}tina$	$\check{s}emiar{a}tina$	$dannar{a}tina$
3mp	$ezbar{u}$	$rab\hat{u}$	šemû	$dannar{u}$
3fp	$ezbar{a}$	$rabiar{a}$	še $miar{a}$	$dannar{a}$

Like the root of the verb $dan\bar{a}num$ 'to be strong', the verb $mad\bar{a}dum$ 'to measure' has a root in which R_2 and R_3 are the same. But whereas $dan\bar{a}num$ is a stative verb, and so has a Verbal Adj. with base dann-, $mad\bar{a}dum$ is active, and so the base of its Verbal Adj. is madid- (see §4.3(a), end); thus the predicative form with 3ms subject is madid 'it (m) is/was/will be measured'. (Predicative forms with other subjects resemble those of dann-, e.g., with 3fs: maddat; with 3mp: $madd\bar{u}$.)

When a noun is the subject of a clause with an adjectival predicate, that noun is resumed by the appropriate third person enclitic pronoun in the predicative construction:

ilatni ina mātīšunu palḥat 'our goddess is/was feared/fearsome in their (m) land'; $qarr\bar{a}d\bar{u}$ šarrim ana $m\bar{a}t$ nakrim $teb\hat{u}$ 'the king's warriors are/were under way to the enemy's land'; tuppātūšunu ḫepiā 'their (m) tablets are/were broken'; bābum peti (i.e., peti-ø) 'the door is/was open'.

As these examples show, the predicative form stands at the end of its clause. Occasionally, an independent pronoun also occurs before a predicative form, usually to focus attention on the pronoun subject:

anāku ul wašbāku 'I myself was not around' (lit.: 'resident'); atta ana mārūtim nadnāta 'it is you who were given up for adoption'.

It is important that the distinction in meaning between the predicative form of a Verbal Adjective and the finite tenses of the same verb be clear, especially when active-intransitive verbs and adjectival/stative verbs are involved. The tenses (Preterite, Durative, and Perfect) all denote the process of a verbal root; the predicative construction, as its name implies, predicates the condition or state that is the result of the action of the verb. Some examples:

uššab 'he is/was (in the process of) sitting down', ušib 'he sat down, became seated', but wašib 'he is/was seated, sitting';

amras 'I got sick, fell ill', but marṣāku 'I am/was sick';

iħliq 'she escaped, got lost', but ħalqat 'she is/was escaped, lost'; imaqqut 'it is/was collapsing' (or, 'will collapse'), but maqit 'it (m) is in ruins (collapsed)';

 $idmiq\bar{a}$ 'they (f) became good, they improved', but $damq\bar{a}$ 'they are/were good';

īter 'it became excessive', but watar 'it is/was excessive'; tadannin 'you (ms) are/were growing strong, growing in strength', but dannāta 'you are/were strong';

 $itebb\hat{u}$ 'they (m) are/were setting out, (in the process) of standing up', but $teb\hat{u}$ 'they are/were under way, standing'.

In a subordinate clause, a predicative form with 3ms subject is marked with -u, but other persons are unchanged; e.g., ṣuḥārum ša ana Bābilim ṭardu imūt 'the servant who was sent to Babylon died';

amtam ša ina bītīki wašbat ul āmur 'I have not seen the female slave who is living in your (fs) house'.

Predicative forms with 3ms subject and with third person plural subject may occur with the Ventive morpheme, as in the following examples:

ṣuḥārum annûm ṭardam 'this servant is/was sent to me';
dayyānū tebûnim 'the judges are on their way here';
awâtum kašdānim 'the news (lit., 'words') has arrived here'.

Predicative forms may also be accompanied by dative suffixes:

 $b\bar{\imath}tum\ s\bar{\imath}u\ nadis sim$ 'that house is/was given to her'; $m\bar{a}r\ siprim\ sa\ tard\bar{\imath}ukum/tardakkum$ 'the messenger who is/was sent to you (ms)';

amtum ša tardassum 'the female slave who is/was sent to him'; iltum wašbatkum 'the goddess is present for you (ms)'.

In most Assyriological works, including the standard grammars and dictionaries, the predicative construction with a Verbal Adjective base is referred to as the Stative, a term reserved in this textbook to describe the semantic characteristics of certain verbal root types, such as $dan\bar{a}num$ 'be(come) strong'. In the modern Akkadian dictionaries, further, the predicative forms of Verbal Adjectives are usually listed not under the Verbal Adjective itself but rather under the Infinitive of the verb (although there is some inconsistency in this regard).

While the vast majority of examples of the predicative construction involve Verbal Adjectives, the construction may also be used in verbless clauses in which the predicate is a noun. The enclitic pronouns are added directly to the noun base; even the feminine ending -(a)t does not appear before the pronouns (or, is replaced by them):

PN<sub>1</sub> ana PN<sub>2</sub> aššat; ana PN<sub>3</sub> amat 'PN<sub>1</sub> is wife to PN<sub>2</sub>; she is servant to PN<sub>3</sub>'; sinnišānu 'we are women'; mārāku kallāku hīrāku u abrakkāku 'I am daughter, bride (kallatum), spouse (hīrtum), and steward (ab(a)rakkum)'.
```

The same rules of vowel harmony, vowel contraction, and simplification of double consonants apply to predicative forms with noun bases as were seen to apply to those with adjective bases:

```
ina šamê bēlēti 'you are mistress rubâka 'you are prince';in heaven'; šar 'he is/was king'.

The predicative construction with a noun base occurs only in a very restricted environment. Specifically, it may occur only if the predicate noun is not followed by any modifiers, viz., an adjective, a genitive noun, a possessive (genitive) pronominal suffix, a relative clause, the particle -ma when it is not a coordinator (§29.2). When a modifying word or phrase follows, the noun appears in its regular or bound form, and the subject, if it is a pronoun, is an independent nominative pronoun (§2.4). Even when no modifier follows the predicate noun, the use of the predicative construction is not required, but merely optional. Study the following sets of examples:

Hammurapi šarrum dannum šarrum dannum atta 'you (ms) are a mighty king' 'Hammurapi is a mighty king' Ḥammurapi šar Bābilim šar Bābilim atta 'you (ms) are king of Babylon' 'Hammurapi is/was king of Babylon'; Hammurapi šarrani šarrani atta 'Hammurapi is/was our king'; 'you (ms) are our king' Hammurapi šar(rum ša) nipallahu šar(rum ša) nipallahu atta 'you are/were the king we 'Hammurapi is/was the king we revere'; revere' Hammurapi šarrum or Hammurapi šar šarrum atta or šarrāta 'Hammurapi is/was (the) king' 'you (ms) are (the) king'

The distinction in meaning between <code>Hammurapi</code> <code>šarrum</code> and <code>Hammurapi</code> <code>šar</code> is one of markedness; the former may mean 'Hammurapi is king', but also, in some contexts, 'king Hammurapi'; the latter is specifically marked as a predication. Similarly, <code>šarrum</code> <code>atta</code> may mean 'you (ms) are (the) king' or 'you, O king', whereas <code>šarrāta</code> is only 'you are (the) king'.

22.2 Injunctions in Verbless Clauses

To express positive injunctions in verbless clauses, i.e., to express 'may/let ... be', the particle $l\bar{u}$ is used:

Adad lū bēl dīnīka 'may Adad (storm-god) be your (ms) adversary' (bēl dīnim 'adversary'); abūšu lū atta 'be (ms) his father'; lū dannātunu 'be (mp) strong'; lū ṭardū 'may they/let them (m) be on their way' (lit., 'sent'); lū awīlāta or lū awīlum atta 'be (ms) a man'.

The negative of $l\bar{u}$ in such expressions is $l\bar{a}$; note that the use of $l\bar{a}$ instead of ul is all that marks verbless clauses as negative injunctions rather than negative statements (just as with $l\bar{a}$ vs. ul before Durative verbs; see §16.3(a)):

kaspum ul nadin 'the silver is/was not given';kaspum lā nadin 'the silver may/must not be given'.ul enšēta 'you (ms) are not weak';lā enšēta 'do (ms) not be weak, you may/must not be weak'.

22.3 Omen Texts

The ancient Mesopotamians believed that the future could be foretold. A given natural phenomenon that had been observed to be followed by a certain event was deemed to be predictive; i.e., that phenomenon would always be followed by, or associated with, the same event. Because the ability to predict the future was obviously very advantageous, the Mesopotamians did not simply wait for predictive phenomena; they actively solicited them. A wide range of phenomena were considered portentive; among the most frequently consulted by the diviners were the internal organs of slaughtered animals (usually sheep or goats), especially the arrangement, characteristics, and distinctive features of the liver, gall bladder, and lungs. The general term for this kind of divination is extispicy (examination of the exta); the examination of the liver in particular is called hepatoscopy. Other phenomena observed were the flights of birds; the behavior of other animals, including insects; patterns of smoke in the air and of oil on water; strange births of animals; and dreams.

Because so many different kinds of phenomena were deemed ominous, and the possible variations within each type of phenomenon virtually infinite, it was necessary for the diviners to write down individual omens. These were then assembled into collections of omens, called series, some of them quite large, to be learned and consulted by the diviners. Omen texts constitute a distinctly Akkadian genre; although there are references to the practice of divination in Sumerian texts, the earliest recorded omens stem from the OB period, and are in Akkadian. The genre continues to the end of the time during which Akkadian was written. After economic or administrative documents, omen texts form the largest genre of cuneiform texts.

Formally, individual omens are conditional sentences. The protasis presents the observation of a certain phenomenon, while the apodosis indicates the event that is expected as a result of the observation (frequently in a very curt, sometimes enigmatic phrase). The tenses used are those indicated for conditional sentences in general (see §17.3(b)), although it should be noted that verbless clauses, including many predicative forms, abound. Another grammatical point of note is orthographic: there are frequent, and unexplained, writings of final short vowels with an extra vowel sign, as in $q\acute{a}$ -as- $s\acute{u}$ - \acute{u} for $q\bar{a}ssu$ 'his hand'. Some examples from YOS 10:

šumma marrātum šittā — dikšum 'If the gall-bladders (martum) are two ($šitt\bar{a}$) — a wound (dikšum)' (31 x 45–47);

šumma marrātum šalāš — dikšān šinā itebbûšum 'If the gall-bladders are three — two ($\dot{s}in\bar{a}$) wounds will happen to him' (31 x 48–52);

šumma martum ina qablīša naksat — gillatum ina mātim ibašši 'If the gall-bladder is cut in its middle (qablum) — there will be (ibašši) crime (gillatum) in the land' (31 v 31–36);

šumma ina birīt martim šīlum šakin — šarram ina pānī pilšim idukkūšu 'If a depression (šīlum) is situated in the middle of the gall-bladder — they will kill the king in front of a breach' (31 i 41–46);

šumma izbum kīma libittim — $m\bar{a}[tam\ d]annatum\ iṣabbat-ma\ kurrum\ imaqqut\ 'If a deformed foetus ($ izbum) is like a brick (libittum) — duress will seize the land, and the*kur*-measure will fall' (56:8–9).

In the final example, in the first clause of the apodosis (mātam dan-natum iṣabbat), the usual order of subject and object is reversed, a common occurrence in these texts.

Extremely frequent in omen protases is the device of topicalizing by preposing (§21.5); e.g., šumma martum pānūša ana šumēlim šaknū 'if the "face" of the gall-bladder is located on the left' (lit.: 'if the gall-bladder — its "face" is located ...') (31 ii 42–45).

In their attempts to make the omen lists as complete as possible, the diviners often followed one symptom with its antithesis, or another closely related symptom: e.g., 'If the two dark marks of the left side ride up against one another — you will acquire a partner and defeat your enemy. If the two dark marks of the right side ride up against one another — your enemy will acquire a partner and defeat you' (11 v 3–8). Sometimes the desire for completeness resulted in protases involving rather unlikely phenomena: e.g., 'If the gall-bladders are seven — the king of the universe' (31 xiii 19–21).

EXERCISES

A. VOCABULARY 22.

Verbs:

maṣûm (i) 'to be equal to; to amount to, be sufficient for'; mala libbim maṣûm 'to have full discretion, do what one wants'

- (e.g., mala libbīšu imaṣṣi 'he may do what he wants'); Verbal Adj. maṣûm (maṣi-) 'sufficient, enough', in predicative use, maṣi 'is sufficient, enough; amounts to'; kī maṣi 'how much(?)'; mala maṣû 'as far as it extends, as much as there is'.
- saḥārum (u) 'to go/walk around, surround, circle, curve; to turn, turn around, turn back, rotate, twist (intrans.); to seek, look for, turn to (someone)'.
- šebērum (e or i) 'to break (trans.)'; Verbal Adj. šebrum (šebir-) 'broken'.
- tabālum (a) 'to take away, carry off, away; to take for oneself, take along' (cf. wabālum).

Nouns:

- amūtum (fem.; pl. rare) '(sheep's) liver; (liver) omen'.
- $b\bar{a}^{\gamma}erum$ ($b\bar{a}^{\gamma}er$; Participle of $b\hat{a}rum$ 'to fish'; log. (lú)ŠU.ḤA) 'fisherman'; also, a class of soldier.
- imittum a (fem. and, often in omens, masc.; imitti; fem. of rare adj.
- imittum b (imitti; dual imittān; log. ZAG) 'shoulder of an animal' (cf. emēdum).
- martum (fem., rarely masc. in omens; originally marratum, the fem. of a Verbal Adj. marrum 'bitter'; pl. marrātum; log. ZÉ) 'gall bladder; bile, gall'.
- maṣṣarum (maṣṣar; pl. $maṣṣar\bar{u}$) 'watchman; watch; garrison'; $maṣṣar\bar{u}tum$ ($maṣṣar\bar{u}t$) 'safe-keeping, custody' (cf. $naṣ\bar{a}rum$).
- $p\bar{u}hum$ ($p\bar{u}h(i)$; pl. $p\bar{u}h\bar{u}$ and $p\bar{u}h\bar{u}tum$) 'substitute, replacement'; often in apposition to a preceding noun (e.g., eqlam $p\bar{u}ham$ idnam 'give me a replacement field, a field as replacement').
- riksum (rikis; pl. riksātum [often = sg.]) 'band; contract, agreement, treaty'; riksam/riksātim šakānum 'to establish an agreement, make out a contract'.
- šumēlum (šumēl; log. GÙB) 'left (side), left hand'.

Preposition:

balum (with suffix balukka, baluššu, etc.) 'without, without the knowledge/consent of; apart from'; ina balum = balum.

Proper Name:

Adad (log. IŠKUR [the IM sign]) 'Adad' (storm god).

Note also the following terms referring to parts/areas of the liver:

bāb ekallim ('palace gate') the umbilical fissure.
kakkum ('weapon') a distinctive (and portentive) mark on the liver.
naplaštum (pl. naplasātum; cf. §5.4) 'flap, lobe'.
padānum ('path') near the naplaštum.
šēpum ('foot') like the kakkum, a distinctive mark.

LESSON TWENTY-THREE

23.1 The Absolute Form of the Noun

The absolute form is an indeclinable form of the noun and adjective. The form has no case-ending: for most noun and adjective types, the absolute form resembles the predicative form, 3ms; for nouns with feminine -(a)t, the absolute form usually resembles the predicative form, 3fs, rarely 3ms. Some examples:

eţel 'youth'šanat 'year'šar 'king'bēlet 'lady'um 'mother'têret 'omen'ṣeḥer 'small'napšat 'life'rabi 'large'but sinniš 'woman, female'dan 'strong'
```

A few instances of an absolute form of the fem. pl., in $-\bar{a}$, are known; no examples of the masc. pl. are extant. The paucity of plural forms is undoubtedly connected with the function of the absolute form.

The use of the absolute form is not fully understood; the following may be noted, however:

- (a) It is employed in expressions of mass and quantity; in these, both the number and the unit of measurement appear in the absolute form. (See the next section.)
- (b) It may be used for the vocative (see §23.3, below):

bēlet 'lady!' šar 'king!'
```

- (c) It may be used to indicate that a substantive is expressly singular:

 sanat* 'a single year' uttet* 'a single grain (of wheat, silver)'

 (uttetum 'grain, wheat')
- (d) The cardinal numbers usually occur in the absolute form, the numbers 'one' and 'two' almost invariably so. (See the next section.)
- (e) Several fixed expressions, usually adverbial in nature, employ the absolute form, for reasons that are unclear:

ṣeḥer rabi 'small (and) great';
zikar sinniš 'male (and) female' (zikarum 'male');
lā šanān 'without equal' (šanānum 'to rival, equal').
```

(The absolute form is called the status absolutus in some grammars. In origin it is probably an embedded predicative form: seher rabi 'being small, being great'.)

23.2 Numbers

(a) The Cardinal Numbers

In English it is common to write numbers logographically, as in '23' rather than 'twenty-three'. This is almost invariably the case in Akkadian texts, to the extent that the pronunciation and construction of the Akkadian numbers are not fully understood.

The numbers from 'one' to 'nineteen' have masc. and fem. forms; numbers up to 'ten' (except 'two') occur in both absolute and, less often, free forms.

			WITH MA	sc. Noun	WITH FEM	. Noun

The tens from	'twenty'	to	'fifty'	have th	e follov	ving forms:

	Log.	Sumerian	WITH MASC./FEM. NOUN
20	\forall	NIŠ	ešrā
30	₩(UŠU3	$\check{s}alar{a}\check{s}ar{a}$
40		NIMIN	erbeā/erbâ
50	₹ ₹	NINNU	h amšā

'Twenty' to 'fifty' look like nom. dual forms without the final -n, 'twenty' of 'ten' and 'thirty', 'forty', and 'fifty' of 'three', 'four', and 'five'. These forms are normally indeclinable (although gen.-acc. $e\check{s}r\bar{e}$ occurs at Mari). For 'sixty' to 'ninety', see further below.

As the logograms accompanying the tables above indicate, units are indicated by vertical wedges, tens by angle wedges. (There is no 'zero'.) In compound numbers, higher order components precede lower (i.e., tens precede ones):

	Log.	WITH MASC. NOUN	WITH FEM. NOUN
32	W M	$(\check{s}al\bar{a}\check{s}\bar{a}\;(u)\;\check{s}in\bar{a}^{??})$	$(\check{s}al\bar{a}\check{s}\bar{a}\;(u)\;\check{s}itt\bar{a}^{??})$
59	₩₩	$(\underline{ham} \underline{s} \overline{a} (u) ti \underline{s} \overline{\imath} t (um)^{??})$	$(\underline{ham \bar{s}a} (u) ti \bar{s}e / \hat{u}m^{??})$

(The pronunciation of such numbers is unknown.)

The speakers of Akkadian inherited from the Sumerians a sexagesimal (i.e., base 60) system of counting, in addition to the decimal system. Higher numbers in the sexagesimal system are:

			WITH MASC.	/Fem. Noun
	Log.	Sumerian	Absolute	Free
60	T	GÍŠ	$\check{s}\bar{u}\check{s}(i)$	šūšum
600	∜ or ⁴	GÍŠ-U	nēr	nērum
3600	4$	ŠÁR	šār	šārum

The cuneiform and Sumerian for '600' represent 60x10. The sign for '3600' is distinct in OB script, but falls together with H in Neo-Assyrian script (4). These elements may occur in compound numbers. Again, higher orders precede lower, so that '70' is written Υ (i.e., 60+10), as opposed to Υ for '11' (i.e., 10+1). The pronunciations of 'seventy' and 'eighty' are unknown; 'ninety' is $ti\check{s}e\bar{a}$.

70	T -<	(i.e., 60+10)
80	74	(i.e., 60+20)
90	T-44	(i.e., 60+30)
120	T	(i.e., 2x60, šinā šūši)
150	M-444	(i.e., 2x60+30)
599	## #	(i.e., 9x60+5x10+9)
5000	多mp 學	(i.e., 3600+2x600+3x60+2x10)

Higher numbers in the decimal system are meatum (fem.; usually abs. meat; pl. $me\bar{a}tum$) 'hundred' and $l\bar{\imath}mum$ 'thousand':

	Absolute	Free	Writing
100	meat	(meatum)	ME (┡), less often me-at
1000	$l\bar{\iota}m(i)$	$l\bar{\imath}mum$	LIM (* -, i.e., 10x100), li-im , or simply LI

These elements also appear in compound numbers; e.g.,

300	**************************************
3000	₩ ♦ - šalāšat līm(i)
3333	m4-mr

The word for 'both', not surprisingly, occurs as a dual:

masc.: nom. $kilall\bar{a}n$ (in southern and Mari OB, $kilall\bar{u}n$)

gen.-acc. kilallīn nom. kilattān

gen.-acc. kilattīn

These forms may be used independently or in apposition to a preceding noun, which is normally plural (dual with natural pairs); verbs are likewise plural:

 $kilall\bar{u}n\;illak\bar{u}\;$ 'both (m) will go';

fem.

kilattīn turdam 'send (ms) both (female slaves) to me';

šumma ina kilallīn ištēn ana šīmtim ittalak 'if one of the two (brothers) dies';

 $b\bar{e}l\bar{u}\ kilall\bar{a}n\ izuzz\bar{u}$ 'both owners will divide'; alpī kilallīn šām 'buy (ms) both oxen';

birīt īnīn kilattīn 'between both eyes'.

The forms for 'both' may also occur with suffixes:

kilallāšunu (or kilallūšunu) tamkāram ippalū 'both of them (m) will pay the merchant'; kilallūkunu lā tallakā 'neither of you (m) may go'; ekallū šunu kilallūšunu ša PN 'both of those palaces belong to PN'; kilallīšunu ana mê inaddû 'they (m) will throw them both (m) into the water';
```

šarrum eleppam ana kilallīni ittadnanniāšim 'the king has given the boat to both of us'.

(b) Construction of the Cardinal Numbers

(1) With No Unit of Measurement

Normally in OB, when no unit of measurement is involved, the absolute form of the number precedes the item counted; the item counted appears in the appropriate case of the free form, usually in the plural, viz.,

```
NUMBER (absolute) + ITEM COUNTED (free form, pl., case from context)

Rarely, the singular occurs after numbers; after 'two' usually pl., rarely dual or sg.; after 'one', of course, always sg.

The gender of the numbers 'one' and 'two' is the same as that of the item counted; but the gender of the numbers 'three' to 'nineteen' is the opposite of that of the item counted (as elsewhere in Semitic; this phenomenon is referred to as "chiastic concord"). Some examples:

ištēn wardum imūt 'one male slave died';
ištēt amtum imūt 'one female slave died';
šinā wardī nīmur 'we saw two male slaves';
šittā amātim nīmur 'we saw two female slaves';
šalāšat eṭlūtum illikū 'three young men went';
šalāš sinnišātum illikā 'three women went';
hamšat alpī ašām 'I bought five oxen';
hamiš eleppētim abni 'I built five boats';
ana ešret ūmī 'for ten days';
ešer šanātim 'in ten years' (adverbial acc.);
šalāššeret tamkārū īlûnim 'thirteen merchants came up';
šalāššer immerātim ana kaspim niddin 'we sold thirteen sheep'.
```

The cardinal numbers rarely follow the noun, perhaps to connote emphasis. In such instances, the number most often appears in the free form with the appropriate case ending:

šadî sebettam nīmur 'we saw seven mountains'.

When ištēn/išteat 'one' follows its noun, the meaning is 'single' or 'each'; the absolute form is used (the free forms ištēnum, ištētum are rare):

kīma aplim ištēn 'like a single/individual heir'; ana amtim išteat 'for each slave'.

(2) With a Unit of Measurement Expressed

When a unit of measurement appears, the following construction is used:

NUMBER	+	MEASUREMENT	+	ITEM MEASURED
absolute; gender		absolute form		free form; sing.;
from measurement				case from context

Thus, to express, for instance, 'I gave him seven grains of silver', as in the first example below, the Akkadian has literally 'I gave him seven grain silver'.

sebe uṭṭet kaspam addiššum 'I gave him seven grains (uṭṭetum) of silver' (note sebe with fem. uṭṭetum; acc. sg. kaspam as the direct object of the verb);

hamšat kur ûm iḥtaliq 'five kor (kurrum, about 300 liters) of barley have disappeared' (note ḥamšat with masc. kurrum; nom. sg. ûm as the subject of the verb); ina libbi šalāšat šiqil hūrāṣim ša elīka 'out of the three shekels (šiqlum) of gold that you owe (lit., that is against you)' (note šalāšat with masc. šiqlum; gen. hūrāṣim after bound form libbi).

(c) The Ordinal Numbers

Like the cardinal numbers, the ordinals are usually written with logograms, the same signs as for the cardinals. Since they are adjectives, they have both masc. and fem. forms, and these always agree with the gender of the modified noun (vs. the chiastic concord of the cardinals '3' and higher). Apart from the words for 'first', the ordinals, though adjectives, normally precede their noun (following the noun rarely, perhaps for emphasis).

Several terms for 'first' occur. Based on the same root as $i \dot{s} t \bar{e} n$ 'one' is the relative adjective $i \dot{s} t \bar{t}^2 u m$ (an archaic form, without vowel contraction; see §30.2), but this is found only rarely, in poetry. The usual terms are the relative adjectives $p \bar{a} n \hat{u} m$ and $m a h r \hat{u} m$, both of which also mean 'former, earlier, previous'. As noted above, these follow their noun. The cardinal forms $i \dot{s} t \bar{e} n$, fem. $i \dot{s} t e a t$, are also occasionally used for 'first'.

'Second' (also 'next') is $\check{s}an\hat{u}m$ (f. $\check{s}an\bar{\imath}tum$), which like other ordinals precedes the modified noun; after a noun, $\check{s}an\hat{u}m$ means 'other, another' (Vocab. 16).

The base of the ordinals from 'third' to 'tenth' is parus (perus in roots in which a > e; other bases are attested in other dialects).

	MASCULINE	FEMININE
'first'	pānûm	pānītum
	$mahr\hat{u}m$	$mahrar{\imath}tum$
	(ištī³um	ištītum)
	ištēn	išteat
'second'	šanûm	šanītum
'third'	šalšum	šaluštum
'fourth'	rebûm	rebūtum
'fifth'	 hamšum	 hamuštum
'sixth'	šeššum	šeduštum
'seventh'	$seb\hat{u}m$	$sebar{u}tum$
'eighth'	samnum	samuntum
'ninth'	tešûm	tešūtum
'tenth'	ešrum	ešurtum

The ordinals above 'tenth' are denominative adjectives of the corresponding cardinals; e.g.,

'eleventh'	ištēššerûm	ištēššerītum
'thirteenth'	šalāššerûm	šalāššerītum

The form $e \check{s} r \hat{u} m$ ($\langle e \check{s} r \bar{a} + \bar{\iota} + u m \rangle$) occurs for 'twentieth (day of the month)'. It is possible that after 'twentieth', the cardinal numbers served as ordinals as well.

(d) Expressions of Time

In cuneiform, certain expressions involving numbers, especially with words denoting periods of time ($\bar{u}mum$, warhum, šattum), are written entirely logographically. The normal order of the number and the noun in the spoken language is reversed in the script, and the sign KAM, which indicates numerals in Sumerian, follows; the word modified by the number is written singly (i.e., without MEŠ). Examples:

UD.5.KAM i-ti-qu for $hamšat \bar{u}m\bar{u} \bar{t}tiq\bar{u}$ 'five days passed';

iš-tu MU.3.KAM for ištu šalāš šanātim 'for three years' (or, 'since three years ago');

ITI.2.KAM ik-lu- $\check{s}u$ for $\check{s}in\bar{a}$ $warh\bar{\iota}ikl\hat{u}\check{s}u$ 'they held him (for) two months (adverbial acc.)'.

Writings of the type MU.x.KAM are unfortunately ambiguous, however, since they are also employed when the ordinal number is intended, as in the following examples:

UD.5.KAM i-ti-iq for ḥamšum ūmum ītiq 'the fifth day passed'; i-na MU.3.KAM for ina šaluštim šattim 'in the third year'; ITI.2.KAM al-li-ik-šum for šaniam warḥam allikšum 'I went to him (on) the second month (adverbial acc.)'.

Which of these two possibilities is intended in such writings must be determined according to context.

(e) Fractions

Most fractions with numerator '1' may be expressed logographically as IGI.x.GÁL (GÁL is the IG sign). Some common fractions, such as $^{1}/_{2}$, are written with specific signs; in some instances, such as $^{1}/_{3}$ and $^{1}/_{6}$, both special signs and the formula IGI.x.GÁL occur. The OB Akkadian terms for the fractions with numerator '1' either are the same as the ordinals, thus with base parus to $^{1}/_{10}$ (see under (c), above; cf. English 'third' and 'one-third'), or have base paris or pur(u)s. Some fractions have fem. forms (i.e., with -(a)t), others masc. forms (without -(a)t), while some exhibit both; since most are simply written logographically, differences in meaning between these are usually unclear.

Forms are presented in the table below by increasing denominator; note the forms for $^2/_3$ and $^5/_6$.

1/2	许	MAŠ	mišlum (bound form and absolute mišil), less often muttatum or bāmtum (bāmat)
1/3	I	ŠUŠANA	rarely for šuššān (i.e., 'two-sixths', dual of šuššum 'one-sixth'); usually to be read šaluš(tum) (see next)
	₹ ₩ ₩	IGI.3.GÁL	šaluš (bound/abs., especially in divisions of land and crop shares, as in 'he leased the field ana šaluš for a one-third share') and šaluštum (bound šalušti, abs. šalšat; less often in the same contexts, and the normal form otherwise, as in šalušti šamnim 'one-third of the oil')
² / ₃	JYP.	ŠANABI	$\check{sinip}(\hat{u}m)$, usually fem. $\check{sinipi}\bar{a}t(um)$
		_	$\check{s}itt\bar{a}n$, obl. $\check{s}itt\bar{\imath}n$ (written syllabically)
1/4	在开手	IGI.4.GÁL	rabiat, rebiat, ra/ebât (bound/abs. forms of unattested *ra/ebītum)
1/5	4 平 平	IGI.5.GÁL	<pre>hamuštum (and bound hamušti, abs. ham- šat); also humuš</pre>

1/6	≺	ŠUŠ	šuduš (bound/abs. form of rare šuššum) or šeššat
	金金	IGI.6.GÁL	same as preceding
⁵ / ₆	M	KINGUSILA	parasrab (also parab)
1/7	角銀令	IGI.7.GÁL	sebītum, sebiatum, bound/abs. form sebiat
1/8	黄土	IGI.8.GÁL	samnat (bound/abs. form of unattested *samuntum)
1/9	角錐や	IGI.9.GÁL	tešât (< tešiat, bound/abs. form of unattested *tešītum)
1/10	个人图	IGI.10.GÁL	ešret (bound/abs. form of unattested * ešir-tum); note also ešrētum (always pl.) 'tithe'
1/12	中人下	IGI.12.GÁL	šinšerûm
1/13	今人三国	IGI.13.GÁL	šalāššerītum, bound form šalāššeriat

The syntax of the fractions is not well understood, since expressions are not normally written syllabically; it is likely, however, that they usually occurred as bound forms with a following genitive, as in rebiat šikarim ašti 'I drank one-fourth of the beer.'

(f) Multiplicatives

To express 'x times', 'x-fold', the ending $-\bar{\imath} \check{s} u$ (- $\check{s} u$ for 'one time') is added to the base of the cardinal number; e.g.,

ištīššu 'once, one time';
šinîšu 'twice, two times, twofold';
šalāšīšu 'thrice, three times, threefold';
erbîšu 'four times, fourfold';
šalāššerīšu 'thirteen times'.
```

These forms are often preceded by the preposition adi 'up to, as far as', with no apparent difference in meaning:

adi hamšīšu 'five times, fivefold'.

23.3 The Expression of the Vocative

The vocative may be expressed by the free form of the noun in the nominative or by the absolute form. More commonly, however, the 1cs suffix is attached:

 $b\bar{e}lt\bar{\iota}$ '(O) my lady!', less often $b\bar{e}ltum$ or $b\bar{e}let$ '(O) lady!'.

EXERCISES

A. VOCABULARY 23.

Verb:

bašûm (i) 'to exist; to be present, available; to happen'; Dur. 3cs ibašši 'there is/are' may occur with pl. subjects (cf. bīšum, etc.); Verbal Adj. bašûm (baši-) 'on hand, available, present' (listed in the dictionaries as a Participle, bāšûm); substantivized fem. bašītum see Vocab. 19.

Nouns:

išātum (išāt; log. IZI [the NE sign]) 'fire'.

izbum (izib) 'malformed newborn human or animal' (cf. ezēbum).

kurrum (absolute form kur; log. GUR; Sum. lw.) 'kor' (unit of dry measure, = 30 sūtum = ca. 300 litres; see Appendix B.5); note: hamšat kur ûm for 'five kor of barley' is usually written 5 ŠE. GUR (i.e., with ŠE and GUR reversed); numbers of GUR from 'one' to 'nine' are written with horizontal wedges (),),), ...; see Appendix B.5).

manûm (base manā-; absolute form manā; log. MA.NA) 'mina' (60 šiqlum, about 500 grams; see Appendix B.1).

 $pagrum (pagar; pl. pagr\bar{u})$ 'body, corpse; self' (often as a reflexive pronoun; e.g., $pagarka \ usur$ 'guard yourself').

šiqlum (šiqil; log. GÍN) 'shekel' ($^{1}/_{60}$ manûm, about 8 grams; see Appendix B.1; cf. šaqālum).

ubānum (fem.; ubān; pl. ubānātum; log. ŠU.SI) 'finger, toe'; a unit of length (about 1.67 cm.; see Appendix B.2); part of the liver ('processus pyramidalis'); ubān šēpim 'toe'.

Learn to recognize the signs and words for the numbers 1–10, 60, 100, 600, 1000, 3600, and 'both', and the signs for the fractions.

B. Learn the following signs:

OB Lapid.	OB Cursive	NA	values

E ^dURAŠ (the IB sign) UR.SAG (= qarrādum) GAL.LA (= GAL) 'Year King Ammiditana (dedicated a great weapon of gold ...) to Uraš the great warrior'. Uraš is a grain god.

LESSON TWENTY-FOUR

24.1 Derived Verbs

The verb forms encountered thus far all belong to the G, or basic, stem; they consist of the simple or basic root plus an inflectional pattern for each finite and non-finite form. But other verbs may be formed, or derived, from these same roots by the use of special prefixes, infixes, or other characteristic features. These derived verbs (or derived stems) are most conveniently referred to by letters that signify the essential characteristic of each. (Some scholars and reference works, notably the CAD, use a system of numerical notation to refer to the verb stems; these are given below in square brackets.) The most common verb stems are the following:

G	.basic	(German	Grundstamm;	a few scholars v	vrite B for basic)	[I/1]
D	.doubl	ed middle	radical [II/1]
Š	prefix:	ed š [III/1]
N	.prefix	ed n [IV/1	1]
Gt, Dt, Št	.infixe	dt[I/2,II]	/2, III/2, respec	tively]
Gtn, Dtn, Štn, Ntn	.infixe	d tan [I/3	, II/3, III/3, IV	/3, respectively	·]

All of these stems are inflected for the same finite and non-finite forms (e.g., Preterite, Imperative, Participle) as the G stem. Each stem has a characteristic range of meanings or functions; the forms and meanings of each will be presented in the remaining lessons. It should be noted that most roots occur in more than one stem, but very few are found in all the possible stems.

In modern Akkadian dictionaries, derived verbs are listed under the G-stem entry, usually with a special sub-section for each stem. Some roots do not occur in the G; these are generally listed under the Infinitive of the most frequently attested stem: e.g., naprušum (N Infinitive, root p-r-š) 'to fly'; kullumum (D Infinitive, root k-l-m) 'to show'.

24.2 The D Stem: Sound Verbs; Verbs I-n; Verbs III-weak

(a) Sound Verbs

The D stem, for all verb types except verbs II–weak, is characterized by a doubled middle radical in all of its forms. (This doubling will not, of course, always be indicated in the script.) The "principal parts" (cf. §21.1) of parāsum in the D are:

Preterite: uparris

All D verbs, regardless of their vowel-class in the G, are a–i verbs. This difference in vowels between R_2 and R_3 is the only feature that distinguishes the Durative (uparras) and the Preterite (uparris). Note that the Perfect has the vowel of the Preterite in the D, rather than that of the Durative as in the G. The prefixes that mark person in the Durative, Perfect, and Preterite all have u, rather than the i and a of G verbs. Note that the 3cs and 1cs forms are identical.

	Durative	Preterite	Perfect
3cs	uparras	uparris	uptarris
2ms	tuparras	tuparris	tuptarris
2fs	tuparrasī	tuparrisī	tuptarrisī
1cs	uparras	uparris	uptarris
3mp	uparrasā	uparrisū	uptarrisā
3fp	uparrasā	uparrisā	uptarrisā
2cp	tuparrasā	tuparrisā	tuptarrisā
1cp	nuparras	nuparris	nuptarris

The -t- of the Perfect undergoes the same changes as in the G (cf. §17.1); e.g., ussabher, ussabher, usdammer (the last two also with i > e; §7.1).

The Precative has the same prefixes, attached to the base of the Preterite, as in the G (except in the 1cp, with $i\ nu$ - in the D, vs. G $i\ ni$ -).

3cs liparris 3mp $liparris\bar{u}$ 3fp $liparris\bar{a}$ 1cs luparris 1cp i nuparris

The Imperative, as expected, has the "theme-vowel" of the Preterite (i) between R_2 and R_3 ; between the first two radicals, however, the vowel is u, not a as in the Preterite:

ms purris cp $purris\bar{a}$ fs $purris\bar{i}$

The forms of the negative commands are completely predictable: Vetitive 3cs ayy-uparris, 2ms \bar{e} -tuparris (i.e., ayy- $/\bar{e}$ - plus Preterite); Prohibitive 3cs $l\bar{a}$ uparras (i.e., $l\bar{a}$ plus Durative).

The Participles of all stems other than the G have prefix mu-, and i between R_2 and R_3 . The characteristic feature of the D Participle is of course the doubled middle radical:

 $\begin{array}{llll} \text{ms} & \textit{muparrisum} & \text{mp} & \textit{muparris\bar{u}tum} \\ \text{fs} & \textit{muparri\bar{s}tum} & \text{fp} & \textit{muparris\bar{a}tum} \end{array}$

The bound form of the fs is muparrisat, with suffix muparrištaka (cf. the G $p\bar{a}rištum$, bound form $p\bar{a}risat$, suff. $p\bar{a}rištaka$, §§8.3(c 2v), 11.1(c 1), 20.1); for $s > \check{s}$ before the fem. t, see §5.4).

In each of the derived stems, the Infinitive and the Verbal Adjective are identical in form; all have u between R_2 and R_3 . Note that the vowel between R_2 and R_3 is the only difference in the D between the base of the Imperative, purris-, and the base of the Verbal Adj. (and Infin.), purrus-.

In e-type verbs (§21.2), α -vowels again usually (though not always) become e; e.g.,

D Durative ugerreb (but also ugarrab);

D Preterite uqerrib (but also uqarrib).

It is important to note that for many such verbs, the Durative and the Preterite will be written identically, as in

*ú-qé-er-*RI-IB for Durative uqerreb and Preterite uqerrib.

(b) Verbs I-n

These offer little difficulty. The only form in which assimilation of n takes place is the Perfect; all other forms correspond to those of the sound verb.

Infinitive: nukkurum Imperative: nukker
Durative: unakkar Participle: munakkerum

Perfect: uttakker Verbal Adj.: nukkurum (nukkur)

Preterite: unakker

(c) Verbs III-weak

Since there are no distinctive vowel-classes, most of these verbs fall together into one paradigm, as sound verbs do. In verbs III–e (i.e., those whose third radical was 3 3–4 [h, c]), however, a-vowels, with the usual exceptions, most often become e. Below are the D stem "principal parts" of the four types of G verbs III–weak:

	$ban\hat{u}m$ (i)	$mal\hat{u}m~(a)$	$had\hat{u}m\left(u\right)$	ṭeḫûm (e)
Infinitive:	$bunn\hat{u}m$	$mull\hat{u}m$	$hudd\hat{u}m$	ṭuḥḥûm
Durative:	ubanna	umalla	uhadda	uṭeḫḫe/uṭaḫḫa
Perfect:	ubtanni	umtalli	uhtaddi	uṭṭeḫḫi/uṭṭaḫḫi
Preterite:	ubanni	umalli	uhaddi	uṭeḫḫi/uṭaḫḫi
Imperative:	bunni	mulli	huddi	ṭuḥḥi
Participle:	$mubann\hat{u}m$	$mumall \hat{u}m$	$muhadd \hat{u}m$	$mu ota hh\hat{u}m/mu ota hh\hat{u}m$
Verbal Adj.:	$bunn\hat{u}m$	$mull \hat{u} m$	$hudd\hat{u}m$	ṭuḥhûm
(V. Adj. bas	se: bunnu	mullu	huddu	tubbu

As in the case of uqerrib/uqerreb cited above at the end of (a), writings of the D Durative and Preterite of verbs III–e may be identical:

*ú-țe-eḫ-*ḤI for Durative uțeḥḥe and Preterite uțeḥḥi.

Vowel contraction takes place as usual, as the Durative and Preterite paradigms of mullûm illustrate:

	Durative	Preterite
3cs	umalla	umalli
2ms	tumalla	tumalli
2fs	$tumall \hat{\imath}$	$tumall \hat{\imath}$
1cs	umalla	umalli
3mp	$umall\hat{u}$	$umall\hat{u}$
3fp	$umall \hat{a}$	$umalliar{a}$
2cp	$tumall \hat{a}$	$tumalliar{a}$
1cp	numalla	numalli

Note that because of vowel contraction the Durative and Preterite forms are identical in the 2fs and 3mp.

The base of the Participle ends in -i (cf. muparrisum). For reference, the forms of the Participle of $mull \hat{u}m$ are:

ms $mumall\hat{u}m$ (bound mumalli) mp $mumall\hat{u}tum$ fs $mumall\bar{t}tum$ (bound mumalliat) fp $mumalli\bar{a}tum$

The bases of the Infinitive and Verbal Adjective end in -u (cf. purrusum). Thus, they have the following forms:

Infin. / attributive Verbal Adj., ms: nom. mullûm

gen. mullîm acc. mullâm

attributive Verbal Adj., fs: mullūtum mp: mullûtum fp: mullâtum predicate Verbal Adj., subject 3ms: mullu

3fs: mullât 3mp: mullû

etc.

24.3 The Meaning of the D Stem

(a) Factitive of verbs that are adjectival in the G stem; thus, if a G verb means 'to be(come) X', where X is an adjective, the D means 'to make (something) X'; e.g., damāqum 'to be(come) good, improve' (intransitive), dummuqum 'to make good, improve' (transitive);

rapāšum 'to be(come) wide', ruppušum 'to widen (something)'.

Be certain the following sentences are clear:

mātum irpiš 'the land became wide';mātam urappiš 'I/she/he widened the land';mātum rapšat 'the land is/was wide';mātum ruppušat 'the land is/was widened/made wide'.

(b) $\pmb{\text{Causative}}$ of some verbs that are active-intransitive in the G; e.g., ḥalāqum 'to disappear, perish', ḥulluqum 'to cause to perish, destroy'.Sometimes this is merely a transitivizing effect in English:

 $ni\bar{s}\bar{u}\ ipahhur\bar{a}$ 'the people will gather' (intrans.), but $ni\bar{s}\bar{\iota}\ upahhar$ 'I will gather the people'.

(c) Pluralic, denoting activity on a plurality of objects, or by a plurality of subjects; e.g.,

 $\bar{a}l\bar{s}u$ anaqqar 'I will tear down his city', but but $\bar{a}l\bar{a}n\bar{\imath}\bar{s}unu$ unaqqar 'I will tear down their (m) cities';

 $s\bar{e}p\bar{i}ya\ i\check{s}\check{s}iq$ 'he kissed my feet', but $\check{s}\bar{e}p\bar{i}ya\ una\check{s}\check{s}iq\bar{u}$ 'they (m) kissed my feet'.

(d) For many active-transitive verbs that occur in both the G and the D, the D may also denote heightened transitivity, expressing greater effect on the object (sometimes corresponding in English to the addition of 'up': compare 'I used the ink' vs. 'I used up the ink'; Kouwenberg 1997). Examples:

parāsum G 'to divide', purrusum D 'to divide up, cut away'; maḥāṣum G 'to strike, wound'; muḥḥuṣum D 'to strike repeatedly (pluralic), to hurt, to destroy'.

In any given context this nuance of the D can be difficult to ascertain and to render in English. In the lesson vocabularies, therefore, it will normally be noted simply by an "equals" sign; e.g.,

 $par\bar{a}sum G$ 'to divide', purrusum D = G, but the greater effect of the D on the object, vis-à-vis the corresponding G, should always be considered.

- (e) Denominative, i.e., derived from a noun, as in ruggubum 'to roof over', from rugbum 'roof'.
- (f) Lexical; i.e., the basic form of the verb is D stem, the root not occurring in the G, as in kullumum 'to show', wuššurum 'to release'.

(g) Not all verbs occur in the D. In the vocabularies of this and subsequent lessons, the D of a verb will be given only if it is of relatively frequent occurrence. Its meaning should be learned together with that of the G. Below are listed the frequently-found D stems of sound verbs, verbs I-n, and verbs III—weak encountered thus far; they are arranged in semantic groups. Their meanings, especially those that are not predictable, should be learned.

(a) factitive:

dummuqum 'to make good, pleasing; to improve; to treat kindly (with acc. or ana/dative)'.

dunnunum 'to strengthen, fortify, reinforce; to speak severely'; in hendiadys: 'to do something forcefully'.

huddûm 'to make happy'.

kubbutum 'to honor, show respect to; to aggravate, make difficult'.

lubburum 'to make last, prolong (the life of)'.

rubbûm 'to make large, great; to raise (offspring), raise (in rank)'. ruppušum 'to widen, broaden'.

šullumum 'to keep whole, well, safe; to heal (trans.); to preserve, take care of; to conduct or deliver safely; to make good, replace in full; to complete'.

zukkûm 'to cleanse, clear, winnow; to free, release'.

(b) causative:

bullutum 'to keep (someone) alive, healthy, safe; to heal (trans.)'.

hulluqum 'to make disappear, let escape, destroy'.

kunnušum 'to bend; to make submissive'.

mussûm 'to make reach, release'.

nukkurum 'to change, alter (trans.); to move, remove'.

puhhurum 'to gather, collect, assemble (trans.)'.

puššuhum 'to pacify, soothe, calm'.

qurrubum 'to bring/send near; to present, offer'.

suḥḥurum 'to turn around, aside, divert; to turn away, back, send away, back, repel, expel'.

tukkulum 'to cause to trust; to encourage; to make trustworthy'.

tummûm 'to make swear, adjure, bind by oath'.

tuḥḥûm 'to bring near'.

(c-d) pluralic and heightened transitivity ("D = G"):

$hupp \hat{u}m$	nukkusum	purrusum	suddurum kuṣṣurum	nussuhum	puššurum	suhhupum
muddudum	nussuqum	puṭṭurum	șubbutum
muhhusum	puqqudum	puttûm	šubburum

xD verbs with less predictable meanings:

gummurum = G; also, 'to pay in full'.

kuššudum 'to pursue, chase (away), exile; to approach; to conquer'.

muhhurum 'to approach; to make accept'.

mullûm 'to fill (something: acc.; with something: acc.); to pay or deliver in full; to assign'.

ruddûm 'to add to, contribute to' (i.e., 'to make follow').

24.4 Features of Late OB Texts

The spoken OB dialect (or, better, cluster of dialects), like all languages, was constantly changing during its history. Although written language tends to be more conservative than its spoken counterpart (cf.

English spelling), some changes, especially phonological ones, begin to appear in later OB texts. Because the spelling habits of the scribes were deeply ingrained, however, the later forms do not usually appear consistently; rather, it is quite common for the later, spoken forms to occur in texts, sometimes sporadically, sometimes overwhelmingly, alongside older, learned forms. Below are three phonological developments that appear in later OB texts.

(a) Mimation, the final m that appears on all singular and on fem. pl. nouns, on all adjectives, on the forms of the Ventive morpheme (-am, -m, -nim), and on the dative pronouns was lost, probably quite early in the OB period. Compare the following pairs of classical and late OB forms:

šarrum ~ šarru 'king' (nom.);
šarrātim ~ šarrāti 'queens' (gen.-acc.);
tašpuram ~ tašpura 'you (ms) sent to me';
išpurūnim ~ išpurūni 'they (m) sent to me';
ašpurakkum ~ ašpurakku 'I sent (Ventive) to you (ms)'.

Because of this change, several formal distinctions are lost:

- (1) The 2fs, 3ms, and 3fs dative pronouns (classical -kim, -šum, -šim), when at the end of a verb, become identical to their accusative counterparts (i.e., -ki, -šu, -ši, respectively; but note 2ms dative -ku vs. acc. -ka).
- (2) The Ventive no longer appears formally on the 2fs verb (i.e., $ta\check{s}pur\bar{\iota}$ 'you sent' or 'you sent to me'), although it is still clearly marked on all other forms.
- (3) Because the writing system does not normally distinguish short and long vowels, the nom. and gen. of masc. sg. nouns are written the same as their pl. counterparts; likewise, certain verb forms are written identically:

ka-al-bu for nom. kalbu 'dog' or kalb\bar{u} 'dogs'; ka-al-bi for gen. kalbi or kalb\bar{\imath} (but note that the acc. sg. ka-al-ba remains distinct from the acc. pl. ka-al-bi).

iš-pu-ra can be 3fp iš $pur\bar{a}$ 'they (f) sent' or 3cs with Ventive išpura 'she/he sent to me'; similarly ta-aš-pu-ra for 2cp taš $pur\bar{a}$ or 2ms tašpura.

The loss of mimation occurred only if the m was word-final; thus, if the conjunction -ma or any other ending or suffix followed, m was retained, or assimilated, as earlier:

tašpura, but tašpuram-ma and tašpuraššu; ašpurakki, but ašpurakkim-ma.
```

(b) The sequences ia and ea (and $i\bar{a}$, $\bar{i}a$, $e\bar{a}$) contracted to \hat{a} ; e.g.,

rabiam > rab\hat{a} 'great (ms, acc.)'; qi\bar{a}\check{s}um > q\hat{a}\check{s}u 'to bestow'; rabi\bar{a}tum > rab\hat{a}tu 'great (fp, nom.)'; aq\bar{a}\check{s} > aq\hat{a}\check{s} 'I will bestow'; iqbiam > iqb\hat{a} 'she said to me'; \check{s}emeam > \check{s}em\hat{a} 'listen (ms) to me'; taqabbi\bar{a} > taqabb\hat{a} 'you (pl) say'; \check{s}eme\bar{a} > \check{s}em\hat{a} 'listen (pl)'.
```

(c) Rarely, initial w was lost and intervocalic w was written as m; these developments are normal in later dialects of Akk.:

24.5 Old Babylonian Letters

There are several thousand OB letters. They are perhaps the most difficult genre of text to understand, since most often a certain amount of background information, assumed by the correspondents, is unavailable to the modern reader. Much of the content can often only be surmised. Further, apart from the standardized formulae of greetings (see below), the language of letters is more colloquial than that of other genres. They are therefore of considerable linguistic interest because their language is closer to the spoken Akkadian of the writers; but for the same reason they often present idioms and turns of phrase of uncertain meaning.

The OB letter format involves several standardized formulae (see Sallaberger 1999). The letters were actually dictated to a scribe, and were in turn read aloud by another scribe to the addressee. Thus, the introductory greeting-formula is as follows:

ana PN1 qib\bar{\iota}-ma umma PN2-ma 'Speak to PN1 (the addressee); thus (says) PN2 (the sender): ...'.

In this formula, qibi (usually written qi-bi-ma, with NE = bi as the second sign) is the ms Imperative of $qab\hat{u}m$; umma is an adverb meaning 'thus', which is followed by a direct quotation. The reasons for the occurrence of -ma after qibi and the sender are not known. The introduction may be embellished:

ana abīya ša Marduk uballaṭūšu qibī-ma umma Sîn-nāṣir mārūkā-ma 'Speak to my father whom Marduk keeps well (bulluṭum, D Durative); thus (says) Sîn-nāṣir your son: ...'

Following the opening formula, wishes for the well-being of the addressee may be expressed; the most common of these, in its simplest form, is DN liballiṭka 'May DN keep you well'.

This too may be embellished, as in Šamaš u Marduk aššumīya dāriš ūmī liballiţūka 'May Shamash and Marduk keep you well for my sake forever (dāriš ūmī)'.

There are no strict rules governing the introduction of the subject matter of the letter. Sometimes, topicalization by preposing (§21.5) is used, often, but not necessarily, with aššum or ana:

aššum eqlim ša tašpuram 'Concerning the field about which you (ms) wrote to me: ...';

ana amtim ša taṭrudīm 'As to the slave (f) whom you (fs) sent me: ...'; PN₁ ṣuḥārum aḥi PN₂ '(Concerning) the servant PN₁, brother of PN₂: ...'.

A difficult feature of letters is the frequent occurrence of direct quotations within the body of the letter; review of §15.4 is encouraged. Also characteristic of letters is the common use of the Perfect to indicate the main point of the letter; see §17.2.

The letters incorporated into the exercises will, for the most part, be cited according to the most recent and comprehensive edition of OB letters from Mesopotamian sites: $Altbabylonische\ Briefe$ (abbreviated AbB), series edited by F. R. Kraus.

EXERCISES

A. VOCABULARY 24.

Verbs:

 $hi\bar{a}rum$ G (a–i) 'to choose a mate'; Verbal Adj., fem. $h\bar{i}rtum$ ($h\bar{i}rti$; sf. $h\bar{i}rta$ -; pl. $h\bar{i}r\bar{a}tum$) 'wife (of equal status with the husband)'; Participle $h\bar{a}^2irum/h\bar{a}wirum$ '(first) husband'.

kullumum D (not in G) 'to show, reveal (something to someone: double acc.); to produce (a person, document)'.

lamādum G (a; Imperative irregular: limad) 'to learn, study; to become aware of, informed of; to understand; to know sexually'; lummudum D 'to inform, teach'.

manûm G (u) 'to count; to include; to hand over, deliver'; Verbal Adj. manûm (mani-) 'counted, included, delivered' (cf. manûm 'mina').

Nouns:

appum (appi; dual appān; pl. appātum; log. KIR(I)₄ (the KA sign))

'nose; tip, end, edge'.

bultum (bulut) 'life, health' (cf. balātum).

 $d\bar{a}rum$ ($d\bar{a}r(i)$) 'perpetuity', rare except in the adverb $d\bar{a}ri\check{s}$ (see §28.2) and the adverbial phrase $d\bar{a}ri\check{s}$ $\bar{u}m\bar{\iota}$ both meaning 'forever'; Adj. $d\bar{a}r\hat{u}m$ ($d\bar{a}r\bar{\iota}$ -) 'perpetual, lasting, everlasting'; note also the substantivized fem. pl. $d\bar{a}ri\bar{a}tum$ 'perpetuity, eternity', and ana $d\bar{a}ri\bar{a}tim$ 'forever'.

eṣemtum (eṣemti; pl. eṣmētum; log. GÌR.PAD.DU) 'bone'.

 $lis\bar{a}num$ (fem., rarely masc.; $lis\bar{a}n$; pl. $lis\bar{a}n\bar{a}tum$, rarely $lis\bar{a}n\bar{u}$; log. EME) 'tongue; language, speech'.

šulmum (šulum) 'well-being, health; wish for well-being, greeting' (cf. šalāmum).

 $t\bar{\imath}bum\ (t\bar{\imath}b(i))$ 'rise, uprising, attack, onslaught'; $t\bar{\imath}bum\ ka\check{s}dum$ 'successful attack' (cf. $teb\hat{u}m$).

LESSON TWENTY-FIVE

25.1 The D Stem: Verbs I-a (I-a and I-e); Verbs I-w

(a) Verbs I-2

Three basic rules have been seen to operate concerning the loss of the initial radical ³ in these verbs (see §§8.1, 13.1):

(1) At the beginning of a form, $^{\circ}$ is lost with no further changes, as in the G Infinitive (e.g., $ar\bar{a}kum < ^{*\circ}ar\bar{a}kum$); in the D, this applies to the forms of the Imperative, the Infinitive, and the Verbal Adjective: :

Imperative: urrik < *⁵*urrik*;

Infinitive and Verbal Adjective: urrukum <  urrukum.

(2) Before a consonant, the loss of $^{\circ}$ caused the lengthening of the preceding vowel (e.g., G Preterite $\bar{\imath}rik < *i^{\circ}rik$); in the D, the Perfect reflects this change:

Perfect: $\bar{u}tarrik < *u^{3}tarrik$.

(3) Between vowels, both $^{\circ}$ and the vowel following it are lost (e.g., G Durative $irrik < *i^{\circ}arrik$); in the D, this is also the case with the Durative, Preterite, and Participle:

Durative: $urrak < u^3 arrak;$ Participle: $murrikum < mu^3 arrikum$ Preterite: $urrik < u^3 arrik;$

In verbs I–e, as expected, a–vowels become e, as in $\bar{u}teppi\check{s}$, the D Perfect of $ep\bar{e}\check{s}um$; an important exception to this rule, however, is the Durative, where a between R_2 and R_3 remains unchanged: $uppa\check{s}$.

The D forms of arākum, epēšum, and elûm (also III–i);

Infinitive:	urrukum	uppušum	$ull\hat{u}m$
Durative:	urrak	$uppa\check{s}$	ulla
Perfect:	$ar{u}tarrik$	$ar{u}teppi\check{s}$	$ar{u}telli$
Preterite:	urrik	$uppi\check{s}$	ulli
Imperative:	urrik	$uppi\check{s}$	ulli
Participle:	murrikum	muppišu m	$mull \hat{u} m$
Verbal Adj.:	urrukum	uppušum	$ull\hat{u}m$
(V. Adj. base:	urruk	$uppu\check{s}$	ullu)
(V. Adj. + 3fs:	urrukat	$uppu\check{s}et$	$ull \hat{a}t)$

Note that the Preterite and Imperative forms are the same. It will be recalled that G Durative forms of verbs I—³ that begin with a vowel, such as irrik, may be written either i-ri-ik or i-ir-ri-ik, i.e., always with an initial V-sign. The same feature is characteristic of D Durative and Preterite forms; thus,

- D Durative urrak is written \acute{u} -ur-ra-ak or \acute{u} -ra-ak (not ur-ra-ak);
- D Preterite urrik is written \acute{u} -ur-ri-ik or \acute{u} -ri-ik (not ur-ri-ik).
- (The Imperative, however, even though pronounced the same as the Preterite, is written ur-ri-ik or ur-ri-ik, but not ur-ri-ik.)

As in the G, verbs originally I–y are conjugated like verbs I–e in the D.

(b) Verbs I-w

All verbs I–w, whether active or adjectival, are conjugated alike in the D stem. Only two points require comment:

- (1) In the Perfect, the sequence uw- became \bar{u} before the t, thus $\bar{u}tatter$ (uwtattir).
- (2) When w stood at the beginning of a form, it was often (though not always) dropped.

The forms of $wat\bar{a}rum$ in the D (with i > e before r):

Infinitive: (w)utturum Imperative: (w)utter Durative: uwattar Participle: muwatterum Perfect: $\bar{u}tatter$ Vbl. Adj.: (w)utturum Preterite: uwatter (V. Adj. base: (w)uttur)

(c) D Stems of verbs I^{-2} and verbs I^{-2} encountered thus far:

```
uddušum 'to renew, restore'.
```

uḥḥuzum 'to mount, set, overlay (something: acc.; in/with a precious material: acc.)'.

ullûm 'to raise, elevate, extol'.

ummudum 'to lean, push, rest, set (something) on, against (something)'.

unnušum 'to make weak, weaken (trans.)'.

uppušum = G (not common in OB).

urrukum 'to lengthen, extend, prolong; to delay'.

(w)ulludum 'to bear, beget (many offspring; i.e., pluralic)'.

(w)ussubum = G (not common in OB).

(w)utturum 'to augment, increase (trans.)'.

25.2 The Independent Pronouns: Remaining Forms

In §2.4, the nominative forms of the independent personal pronouns were presented. In this section are given the corresponding forms for the oblique cases. The third person forms have already been presented in §6.3 as the demonstrative 'that, those'. The other persons, too, have a common gen.-acc. form and a special dative form used after ana. The nom. forms are given again below for comparison. Parentheses enclose rare forms; square brackets denote as yet unattested forms.

	NOM.	GENACC.	DATIVE
1cs	$anar{a}ku$	yâti	yâšim, ayyâšim
2ms	atta	$k\hat{a}ta$, $(k\hat{a}ti)$	kâšim, kâšum
2fs	atti	$k\hat{a}ti$	$k\hat{a}\check{s}im$
3ms	$\check{s}ar{u}$	$\check{s}u\bar{a}ti$, $\check{s}u\bar{a}tu$, $\check{s}\hat{a}t^{\mathcal{U}}/i$	šuāšim, šâšim, šâšum
3fs	šī	$\check{s}u\bar{a}ti$, $\check{s}\hat{a}ti$, $(\check{s}i\bar{a}ti)$	$\check{s}u\bar{a}\check{s}im,\check{s}\hat{a}\check{s}im,(\check{s}i\bar{a}\check{s}im)$
1cp	$n\bar{\imath}nu$	$niar{a}ti$	$niar{a}\check{s}im$
2mp	attunu	$kunar{u}ti$	$kunar{u}\check{s}im$
2fp	attina	$[kinar{a}ti]$	$[kinar{a}\check{s}im]$
3mp	šunu	šunūti	šunūšim
3fp	$\check{s}ina$	$\check{s}inar{a}ti$	$[\check{s}in\bar{a}\check{s}im]$

Note that the forms (other than nom.) are based on the pronominal suffixes. The gen.-acc. forms end in -ti, the dative in -šim. The final -m of the dative forms is occasionally omitted in later OB texts (cf. §24.4). The plural gen.-acc. and dative forms are the same as the corresponding acc. and dative suffixes (§18.2).

The first person singular forms are written in a variety of fashions:
```

gen.-acc. as ia-(a-)ti, i-ia-(a-)ti; dative as ia-ši-im, ia-a-ši-im, i-ia-ši-im, a-ia-ši-im.
```

The gen.-acc. forms occur under several conditions:

(a) in apposition after a noun in the gen. or acc.:

```
ina maḥar abīya kâta 'before you, my father'; bēlī kâta ul āmur 'I have not seen you, my lord';
```

(b) in tandem with a noun in the gen. or acc.:

ša yâti u tamkārim 'of the merchant and me';
 m\bar{a}tka\ u\ k\hat{a}ta\ uhallaq 'I will destroy you (ms) and your land';
```

(c) after δa (see also b, above), and after prepositions (other than ana) that do not take suffixes (viz., adi, ina, ištu, $k\bar{\imath}ma$, mala, and others; see §10.3, end):

```
kīma kunūti 'like you (mp)';ša lā kâta 'except you (ms)' (cf. §20.4d).
```

(d) as direct object, for emphasis, usually with a suffix on the verb as well:

```
am\text{-}m\bar{\imath}nim\ ni\bar{a}ti\ sehr\bar{\imath}tim\ tuhallaqni\bar{a}ti 'why do you (ms) destroy us children?'; kâti ašapparki 'I will send you (fs)'.
```

(e) $k\hat{a}ta/k\hat{a}ti$ often occurs as subject with $an\bar{a}ku$ in OB letters:

anāku u kâta nillik 'you (ms) and I went'.
```

The dative forms are usually, though not always, preceded by ana:

```
ana kâšim taklāku 'I trust you (fs)' (emphasis); šeššet šiqil kaspam (ana) yâšim iddinam 'To me she gave six shekels of silver'.
```

Occasionally, the gen.-acc. form replaces the expected dative after ana, especially when the pronoun is in apposition to a noun: e.g., ana bēlīya kâta 'to you, my lord'.

25.3 The Independent Possessive Adjectives

These are a set of adjectives that appear most commonly as predicates of verbless clauses (as in 'the house is mine'); they are also used in place of (sometimes in addition to) the genitive pronominal suffixes, to emphasize possession. The forms are based on the masculine forms of the genitive suffixes. Since they are adjectives, they agree in case, gender, and number with the modified noun; they do not agree with the gender of the "possessor" (thus, e.g., 'his' and 'her(s)' are not distinguished). Essentially, the markers of gender and number are those of other adjectives: none for ms; -at- for fs; $-\bar{u}t$ - for mp; $-\bar{a}t$ - for fp. There are two unusual tendencies, however: the -t- that occurs in all forms but ms is often written double; many forms, except in the ms, have nunation (final n) rather than mimation (final m). Below are listed for reference most of the attested forms. Only the ms forms have been declined; the others offer no difficulties in this regard (fs nom. -um/n, gen. -im/n, acc. -am/n; pl. nom. -um/n, gen.-acc. -im/n).

Examples of possessive adjectives as predicates:

bītum šū yûm (iu-ú-um) 'that house is mine';
šattam kûm nûm 'this year (adv. acc.) yours (scil. grain) is ours';
eleppum šī ul kattum 'that boat is not yours';
ṣuḥārû yûtun (iu-ú-tu-un) 'the servants are mine';
hiblēt PN ul yâttun (ia-a-at-tu-un) 'PN's wrongs (for hiblāt, pl. of hiblitum) are not mine (i.e., my responsibility)'.

These forms may also modify a noun attributively, to provide more emphasis than the suffix pronoun, which is normally (but not always) omitted, or to negate possession:

kaspam yâm u kaspam kâm ul inaddinam 'He will not give me my silver or your silver';

ana wardim lā šêm 'to a slave (that is) not hers/his'.

Occasionally, there is no antecedent noun:

 $l\bar{a}$ šuniam ibqur \bar{u} 'They (m) laid claim to what is not theirs'.

A. VOCABULARY 25.

Verbs:

ebēbum G (i) 'to become clean'; Verbal Adj. ebbum (ebb-; fem. ebbetum) 'clean, pure, holy; shining, polished; trustworthy'; ubbubum D 'to clean, purify; to clear (of claims), clear oneself'.
erēšum b G (i) 'to (plow and) seed, plant, cultivate (a field)'; note errēšum (errēš; pl. errēšū) 'cultivator, tenant farmer'.

- esērum a G (i) 'to enclose, shut in'; ussurum D 'to enclose, take captive'.
- $es\bar{e}rum$ b G (i) 'to press (someone: acc.; for payment, silver: acc.), put under pressure, collect'; $s\bar{e}rtam$ $es\bar{e}rum$ 'to impose a penalty, punishment'; ussurum D = G.
- $ger\hat{u}m$ G (e) 'to be hostile; to start a lawsuit (intrans.), sue (trans.)'; $gurr\hat{u}m$ D = G.
- $lap\bar{a}tum~G~(a-u)$ 'to touch; to strike; to apply, smear (someone or something); to assign (workers to a task)'; lupputum~D 'to touch, smear; to tarry, delay'.
- sanāqum G (i) 'to arrive at, reach; to approach with a claim, proceed against (+ ana/dat.); to check, control, supervise; to question'; sunnuqum D 'to check, inspect; to control; to question'.
- (w)uššurum D (not in G) 'to release, set free'.

Nouns:

- $l\bar{\imath}tum$ (also littum; bound form $l\bar{\imath}t(i)$, litti; log. ÁB [but in OB, ÁB usually = arhum 'cow']) 'cow'; pl. $li\bar{a}tum$ (log. ÁB.GUD.HI.A) 'cattle, bovines (of both sexes)'.
- našpakum (našpak; pl. našpakātum; log. (É.)Ì.DUB) 'storage area for barley, dates, etc.; granary, silo'; also (with log. (giš)MÁ.Ì.DUB) 'cargo boat' (cf. šapākum).
- $qib\bar{\imath}tum~(qib\bar{\imath}t;~{\rm pl.}~qibi\bar{\imath}tum)$ 'word, utterance, instruction, order, command' (cf. $qab\hat{\imath}um$).
- \S{ubtum} (\S{ubat} ; pl. $\S{ub\bar{a}tum}$) 'dwelling, residence' (cf. $wa\S{\bar{a}bum}$).
- $ummi\bar{a}num~(ummi\bar{a}n;~pl.~ummi\bar{a}n\bar{u};~log.~UM.MI.A)$ 'artisan; scholar, expert; money lender'.
- zērum (zēr(i); pl. zērū; log. NUMUN and ŠE.NUMUN) 'seed; (male) descendants, progeny, offspring'.
- zikarum (also zikrum; bound form zikar; pl. zikarū) 'male; man'.

Idiom:

ša $q\bar{a}t(i)$ (log. NÍG.ŠU) 'in the charge of, under the authority of' (written syllabically before a pron. suff., NÍG.ŠU before PN's: $s\bar{a}bum$ ša $q\acute{a}$ -ti-ia 'the work-force in my charge'; $aw\bar{\imath}l\hat{u}$ NÍG.ŠU $^{\mathrm{I}}gi$ -millum 'the men in G.'s charge').

LESSON TWENTY-SIX

26.1 The Verbs edûm and išûm

The verbs $ed\hat{u}m$ 'to know' and $is\hat{u}m$ 'to have' share several peculiarities in the G stem: they are found only in the Preterite, Infinitive, and, for $ed\hat{u}m$ only, the Participle; the prefixes of the Preterite forms are irregular in that they have i in the first and second person, rather than a (or e < a); though formally Preterite, the finite forms have no specific tense value. (Since these verbs have no Verbal Adjectives, there is no predicative construction; instead the Preterite form is used.) $ed\hat{u}m$ (Infinitive also $id\hat{u}m$) is a III–e verb; $is\hat{u}m$ is III–u.

3cs	$ar{\imath} de$	$ar{\imath} \check{s} u$	3mp	$ar{\imath}d\hat{u}$	īšû
2ms	$t \bar{\imath} de$	$t\bar{\imath}\check{s}u$	3fp	$[\bar{\imath}dear{a}]$	$ar{\imath}\check{s}\hat{a}$
2fs	$[t\bar{\imath}d\hat{\imath}]$	$[tar{\imath}\check{s}\hat{\imath}]$	2cp	$tar{\imath}dear{a}$	$[tar{\imath}\check{s}\hat{a}]$
1cs	$\bar{\imath}de$	$ar{\imath} \check{s} u$	1cp	$n\bar{\imath}de$	$n\bar{\imath}\check{s}u$

Note that the 3cs and 1cs forms are identical:

```
\bar{\iota}de 'he/she knows, I know'; \bar{\iota}\dot{s}u 'he/she has, I have'.
```

These verbs do not have formal Imperative and Precative forms. Instead, injunctions are expressed by the Preterite preceded by $l\bar{u}$:

```
l\bar{u} t\bar{\iota}de 'know, may you (ms) know'; ab\bar{\imath}\ l\bar{u}\ \bar{\imath}de 'may my father know, my father should know'; t\bar{e}mam\ \bar{s}upram-ma\ l\bar{u}\ \bar{\imath}de 'send (ms) me a report, that I may know'; l\bar{u}\ \bar{\imath}\bar{s}u 'may I/he/she have, let me/him/her have'.
```

The G Participle of $ed\hat{u}m$ is irregular, with a prefixed mu:

```
ms m\bar{u}d\hat{u}m (bound form m\bar{u}de) mp m\bar{u}d\hat{u}tum fs m\bar{u}d\bar{e}tum (bound form m\bar{u}deat) fp m\bar{u}de\bar{a}tum
```

An example:

šībum mūde bīšīya 'a witness who knows my property'.

The verb išûm has no Participle.

The verb $ed\hat{u}m$ also occurs in the D stem, where the root is I-w: $(w)udd\hat{u}m$ (Pret. uweddi) 'to mark; to make known, reveal, inform; to recognize, identify, assign'.

26.2 Subordinate Clauses

It is convenient to group Akkadian subordinate clauses into three main types: relative clauses (§19.3), temporal clauses, and others. All of these have in common that they are dependent on a main clause, are introduced by a subordinating conjunction (which may be deleted in some relative clauses), and have verbs marked by the subordination marker -u when no other verbal ending appears (§19.2).

(a) Temporal Clauses

The following are the most common temporal conjunctions in Old Babylonian; most of them, it will be noted, also occur as prepositions.

 $in\bar{u}ma$ (in poetry, also inu) 'when, as soon as, after, at the time that, while'. Action either before or simultaneous with that of the main clause.

 $\bar{u}m$ Same range of meaning and use as $in\bar{u}ma$.

ina 'as long as, while'. Action simultaneous with that of the main clause. With rare exception used only in certain legal expressions, before predicative Verbal Adjectives and forms of $ed\hat{u}m$:

ina balṭu u šalmu 'while he was in good and sound health';
ina lā īdû 'without my/his/her/their(m) knowing; unknowingly' (lit., 'while I/he/she/they(m) was/were not aware').

ištu 'after, as soon as, since'. Action always before that of the main clause. Also used causally: 'since, because'; see (b), below.

 $k\bar{\imath}ma$ (in poetry, also $k\bar{\imath}$) 'as soon as, when'. Action immediately before that of the main clause. Also used non-temporally: 'that; as'; see (b), below.

warka/warki 'after'. In OB, only in expressions involving death.

adi (rarely also qadum) 'until, as long as, while'.

 $adi (...) l\bar{a}$ 'before'.

lāma 'before'.

Temporal clauses normally precede the main clause, but may, if short, be imbedded in the main clause (like an adverb); e.g., ṣuḥārī inūma ittalkam ṭurdam 'Send (ms) me my servant as soon as he has arrived.'

Clauses with adi occasionally follow the main clause (examples below).

More than one temporal clause may be dependent on a single main clause: e.g., warka abum imtūtu inūma aḫḫū izuzzū qīšti abum iddinūkum teleqqe 'After (our) father has died, when the (other) brothers take shares, you (ms) may take the gift (your) father gave you.'

The tenses of the verbs of both the temporal clauses and the main clauses follow certain relatively well-established patterns, summarized in the following chart, and then described in detail with examples.

	Main Clause Action in Past ;	Main Clause Action in Present or Future
	Tense of Temporal Clause:	Tense of Temporal Clause:
(1) inūma, ūm, ištu,	Preterite	Perfect: explicit anteriority
kīma, warki, adi		Durative: unmarked
(2) $adi \dots l\bar{a}$	_	Preterite: explicit anteriority
		Durative: unmarked
(3) $l\bar{a}ma$	Durative	Preterite: real, immediate Durative: potential, indefinite

(1) $in\bar{u}ma$, $\bar{u}m$, ištu, $k\bar{t}ma$, warka/i, adi (for adi $l\bar{a}$, see (2)):

When the main clause describes action in the past (i.e., verb in Preterite or Perfect [rarely also past Durative], or verbless clause), the temporal clause, if verbal, has the Preterite: e.g., inūma/ištu/kīma âm tašāmu tallikam 'When/After/As soon as you (ms) (had) bought the grain, you came here';

 $m\bar{a}rum\ \check{s}\bar{u}\ warki\ ab\bar{u}\check{s}u\ im\bar{u}tu\ irgum$ 'That son brought suit after his father (had) died';

adi ašpurakkim taklîšināti 'You (fs) held them (f) until I wrote to you'. [With a past Durative in the main clause, note, e.g., šumma awīlum ṣeḥram ana mārūtim ilqe inūma ilqûšu abāšu ... iḫīaṭ 'if a man adopted a youngster (and) after he adopted him he would look for (ḥiāṭum) his (true) father' (CH §186).]

When the main clause describes action in the present or future (verb in Durative, Imperative, Precative, or Prohibitive, or a verbless clause), the temporal clause, if verbal, contains either the Perfect or the Durative. The Perfect, here used like the English future perfect, marks specifically the anteriority of the action in the temporal clause vis-à-vis that of the main clause:

inūma/ištu/kīma âm taštāmu alkam/tallakam 'When/As soon as/ Immediately after you (ms) have bought the grain, come/you will come here'.

The Durative is used when no such specific marking is intended, or when the actions of the two clauses are roughly simultaneous:

inūma/ištu/kīma âm tašammu alkam/tallakam 'When/After you (ms) buy the grain, come/you will come here'.

The Durative is not as yet attested in a clause with warka/i nor the Perfect in a clause with adi:

mārum šū warki abūšu imtūtu lā iraggum 'That son may not bring suit after his father has died'; kilîšināti adi ašapparakkim 'Hold (fs) them (f) until I write to you'.

When the action of the main clause is present or future, and a clause with $i \not s t u$ or $k \bar{\imath} m a$ contains the Preterite, the force of the subordinate clause is probably always causal rather than temporal (see (b), below): e.g.,

ištu | kīma âm tašāmu allakakkum 'Since/Because you (ms) (have) bought grain, I will come to you'.

Regardless of the "tense" of the main clause, $in\bar{u}ma$, $i\check{s}tu$, and adi may also govern verbless clauses: e.g., ša ištu ṣeḥrēku lā āmuru ātamar 'I have seen what I had not seen since I was young';

 $in\bar{u}ma~ina~\bar{a}lim~wa\bar{s}bu~iparras\bar{u}$ 'It will be decided while he is resident in town';

adi balṭānu ina bītīni wašbāti 'You (fs) may live in our house as long as we are alive';

inūma ana ālim ḫarrāššu âm addiššum 'When his travel was to the city, I gave him grain'.

Verbless clauses are not attested after $\bar{u}m$ or $k\bar{t}ma$.

(2) adi ... lā:

 $Adi ... l\bar{a}$ (with $l\bar{a}$, as expected, always directly before the verb) is used only when the main clause describes action in the present or future. The verb of the temporal clause may be Preterite or Durative. The Preterite marks anteriority (cf. the Perfect with $in\bar{u}ma$, etc., above):

 $adi \ ab\bar{\imath} \ l\bar{a} \ illikam \ ul \ at \hat{a}r$ 'I will not return before my father has come'.

The Durative is used when no such marking is intended:

adi $l\bar{a}$ $nimmar\bar{u}$ $\dot{s}i$ ul nit $arrassun\bar{u}$ ti 'We will not send them (m) before we see her'.

(3) $l\bar{a}ma$:

When the action of the main clause is past tense, this conjunction is followed by the Durative, as in $l\bar{a}ma~allakam~eqlam~ip\check{s}ur\bar{u}$ 'They (m) sold the field before I came'.

When the main clause action is present or future, the verb after $l\bar{a}ma$ may be Durative or Preterite. The Preterite (or, very rarely, the Perfect) indicates that the action is seen as certain and immediate:

 $l\bar{a}ma~ip\check{s}ur\bar{u}\check{s}u~alk\bar{\iota}m$ 'Come (fs) before they sell/have sold it'.

The Durative indicates that the action of the temporal clause is seen as only possible, or of indefinite time:

lāma ālam šuāti ikaššadu šuprānim 'Write (pl) me before he can reach that town'.

(b) Other Subordinate Clauses

In general, no firm rules exist for the use of tenses in subordinate clauses other than temporal ones; the tenses for the most part have the same range as in main clauses, with the important exception that the Perfect does not occur (except very rarely as a future perfect, with present or future action in the main clause). Below are the remaining common subordinating conjuctions of OB, and their meanings, with one or two examples of each. The clauses they govern either precede the main clause, or, if short, may be inserted into the main clause.

ana ša 'because (of the fact that)':

ana ša bēlī udammaqam-ma alpam ušabbalam 15 šiqil kaspam ana bēlīya kâta ušabbalam 'Because my lord will be kind and dispatch (wabālum, Š Dur.) an ox to me, I will dispatch to you, my lord, the 15 shekels of silver.'

ana ša is rare as a conjunction; most often it simply means 'to the one who/which':

ana ša $b\bar{e}l\bar{\iota}$ itrudam šamnam addin 'I gave the oil to him/the one whom my lord sent to me'.

ašar (bound form of ašrum 'place') 'where(ver)':

ṣuḥāram ašar bēlī iqabbû aṭarrad 'I will send the servant wherever my lord commands.'

Rarely, ašar also means 'what' and 'when'.

aššum 'because':

aššum marṣākū-ma lā alliku aḫī aṭrud 'Because I was sick and (could) not go, I sent my brother.'

Rarely, $a\check{s}\check{s}um$ also means 'so that'; this is especially the case in the letters from Mari (§29.4).

$\bar{e}ma$, rarely $\bar{e}m$, 'where(ever)':

 $\bar{e}ma\ eleppašunu\ kalât-ma\ m\bar{u}ṣâm\ l\bar{a}\ \bar{\imath}s\hat{u}\ tapp\hat{u}ssunu\ alk\bar{\imath}$ 'Wherever their (m) boat is detained and has no exit $(m\bar{u}s\hat{u}m)$, assist (fs) them.'

ištu 'because, since':

ištu bēlī eqlī lā iddinam bēlī kaspam mala šīm eqlīya liddinam 'Since my lord did not give me my field, may my lord give me silver equivalent to the value of my field.'

This use of ištu is rarer than its use in temporal clauses; see (a).

 $k\bar{\imath}ma$ has a number of meanings in addition to its use as a temporal conjunction (see above, under (a)):

'that, the fact that' (with verbs of speaking, perceiving, knowing, showing, etc., in the main clause):

šāpirum kīma immerī nēmettaka ana ekallim lā tublam ulammidanni 'The prefect informed me that you (ms) had not brought the sheep, your tax, to the palace';

'as, according as' (also ana $k\bar{\imath}ma$, ak- $k\bar{\imath}ma$):

kīma ina ṭuppi ekallim šaṭru apulšu 'Pay (ms) him as (according to what) is written in the palace record';

ana kīma bēlī išpuram eppeš 'I will do according as my lord wrote me';

kīma also occasionally means 'because' and 'so that':

kīma ana abīya ašapparu 'because I am writing to my father';

kīma šumi bīt abi lā azakkaru tētepšannī 'you (ms) have treated me so that I cannot mention the name of (my) household';

note also $k\bar{\imath}ma\ \check{s}a$ 'as if':

kīma ša abī ištēn mana kaspam iddinam aḥaddu 'I rejoice as if my father had given me a mina of silver';

 $k\bar{\imath}ma$ ša $b\bar{e}l$ $lemutt\bar{\imath}ka$ $an\bar{a}ku$ 'as if I were your (ms) adversary (lit: lord of evil)'.

 $k\bar{\imath}ma$ sometimes appears immediately before the predicate of its clause, rather than at the beginning:

eqlum kīma zīttī ul īde 'he did not know that the field is my share'.

EXERCISES

A. VOCABULARY 26.

Verbs:

- edûm/idûm G (Preterite īde; see §26.1) 'to know, be experienced, familiar with'; (w)uddûm D 'to mark, assign; to make known, reveal, inform; to recognize, identify'.
- elēlum G (i) 'to become pure, clean, free (of debt)'; Verbal Adj. ellum (ell-; fem. elletum) 'clean, pure, holy, free'; ullulum D 'to purify, keep pure; to declare innocent, free (of debt); to consecrate (to a god)'.
- išûm G (Preterite īšu; see §26.1) 'to have, own'; X Y eli Z īšu 'Z owes Y to X' (e.g., tamkārum šinā šiqil kaspam eli aḥīya īšu 'my brother owes two shekels of silver to the merchant'); şibit ṭēmim išûm 'to take action'.
- zêrum G (e) 'to dislike, hate; to reject; to avoid'.

Nouns:

- andurārum (andurār) 'freedom, manumission (of slaves); remission (of debts)'.
- $a\check{s}rum$ ($a\check{s}ar$; pl. $a\check{s}r\bar{u}$ and $a\check{s}r\bar{a}tum$) 'place, locale, setting'; $a\check{s}ar$ $i\check{s}t\bar{e}n$ '(in) one place'; for $a\check{s}ar$ as a conjunction, see below.
- kallatum (kallat; pl. kallātum; log. É.GI₄/GI.A) 'daughter-in-law, bride'.
- ṣītum (ṣīt; pl. ṣiātum) 'rise, rising (of sun), east; emergence, birth, origin; produce, product; lease; expenditure, loss; departure'; ṣīt pîm 'utterance, command'; pl. ṣiātum (also ūm ṣiātim) 'distant time (past or future)'; ṣīt šamšim 'sunrise, east' (cf. waṣûm).
- $\check{s}ammum$ ($\check{s}ammi$; pl. $\check{s}amm\bar{u}$ [often = sg.]; log. \acute{U}) 'plant, grass; herb, drug; hay, fodder'.

Conjunctions that are also used as prepositions:

adi 'until, as long as, while'; $adi ... l\bar{a}$ 'before'.

aššum 'because'; rarely 'so that' (esp. Mari).

 $\bar{e}ma$ (rarely $\bar{e}m$) 'where(ever)' (as prep.: 'in/at every place/time of').

ina 'as long as, while' (usually in legal expressions, before predicative Verbal Adjectives and forms of $ed\hat{u}m$).

ištu 'after, as soon as, since'; less often causal 'because, since'.

 $k\bar{\imath}ma$ 'as soon as, when; that, the fact that; as, according as (also ana $k\bar{\imath}ma$, ak- $k\bar{\imath}ma$)'; rarely 'because; so that'; $k\bar{\imath}ma$ ša 'as if'.

warka, warki 'after' (in OB only in expressions involving death).

Other Conjunctions:

ana ša (rare) 'because (of the fact that)'.

ašar 'where(ever)'; rarely 'when, what'.

 $in\bar{u}ma$ (poetic/archaizing inu) 'when, as soon as, after, at the time that, while'.

 $\bar{u}m$ (also ina $\bar{u}m$) 'when, as soon as, after, at the time that, while'.

LESSON TWENTY-SEVEN

27.1 The Š Stem: Sound Verbs; Verbs I-n; Verbs III-weak

(a) Sound Verbs

The Š stem is characterized by a prefix š, which precedes the root consonants in all forms. The "principal parts" are as follows:

Infinitive: šuprusum Imperative: *šupris*Durative: ušapras Participle: mušaprisum

Perfect: uštapris Verbal Adj.: šuprusum (šuprus)

Preterite: ušapris

Note the following observations:

(1) R_2 follows R_1 immediately in all forms.

- (2) A vowel always separates the \check{s} and R_I , u if \check{s} begins the form, a otherwise.
- (3) Each form has the same vowel configuration as the corresponding D form: e.g.,

Durative: D $uR_1aR_2R_2aR_3$, Š $u\check{s}aR_1R_2aR_3$.

Thus, in the Š, as in the D, no special vowel-classes exist — the Durative of all Š verbs has a between R_2 and R_3 , while the Perfect, Preterite, and Imperative have i; the prefixes of the Š Durative, Perfect, and Preterite have u, as do the D forms; the Imperative has i between R_2 and R_3 , while the Infinitive and Verbal Adjective have u.

(4) The t of the Perfect follows the \check{s} immediately.

(b) Verbs I-n

Since R_1 always comes immediately before R_2 in the Š stem, the n is assimilated in all forms.

(c) Verbs III-weak

As in the D, verbs that in the G are III–i, III–a, and III–u are conjugated alike in the Š; in verbs III–e, a-vowels usually (though not always) become e. Again, the usual rules of vowel contraction apply.

(d) Paradigms

Paradigms of the Š stems of $par\bar{a}sum$, $nad\bar{a}num$, $ban\hat{u}m$, and $\check{s}em\hat{u}m$ follow.

27.2 The Meaning of the Š Stem

 $\check{s}uprusar{a}ta$

+2ms

etc.

Š verbs are essentially causatives of their G counterparts.

 $šuddun\bar{a}ta$

šubnâta

šušmâta

(a) For a few adjectival verbs, it is the \check{S} rather than the D that serves as the factitive stem: e.g., šumrusum 'to make sick, cause trouble'.

(b) The most frequent use of the \check{S} is as a causative of active-intransitive verbs: e.g.,

šumqutum 'to cause to fall, to fell';šuknušum 'to make submissive, to subjugate';šutbûm 'to cause to stand up, to set aside, remove'.
```

With many verbs of motion, the Š means 'to send', 'to lead', or 'to take' (with the Ventive, 'to bring') an object in the direction denoted by the G, as in šūrubum (erēbum) 'to send/lead/take/bring in';

šūṣûm (waṣûm) 'to send/lead/take/bring out';
šūlûm (elûm) 'to send/lead/take/bring up';
šūrudum (warādum) 'to send/lead/take/bring down'.

(c) Š forms of active-transitive verbs may be doubly transitive, i.e., they may take two accusative objects, one of the action of the (G) verb, which normally (but not always) comes first, and one of the causing: e.g., awâtīki aḥḥīya ušešmi 'I made my brothers hear your (fs) words'; suḥāram ṭuppam (or ṭuppam ṣuḥāram) uštābilakkum 'I have had a servant take (wabālum, Š Perfect) the tablet to you (ms)';

âm šuāti šumherāšu 'hand over (pl) that grain to him' (lit., 'cause him to receive that grain');

nēmettam muškēnam ušaddin 'I collected the tax from the commoner' (lit., 'I caused the commoner to give the tax').

It is more common, however, for the object of the causing to be omitted; when this happens, the verbal notion is rendered passive in English:

awâtīki ušešmi 'I caused your words to be heard' (lit., 'I caused (someone) to hear');

tuppam uštābil 'I have had the tablet carried' (or, 'I have dispatched the tablet'; lit., 'I have caused (someone) to carry');

âm šumherā 'hand over the grain' (i.e., 'cause the grain to be received'; lit., 'cause (someone) to receive');

nēmettam ušaddin 'I collected the tax' (i.e., 'I caused the tax to be given'; lit., 'I caused (someone) to give the tax').

It is also possible for the first object to be omitted; if so, the verbal notion becomes intransitive:

aḥḥīya ušešmi 'I made my brothers listen/pay attention'.

(d) A few verbs occur only in the \check{S} stem (and related stems; see §36.1–2): e.g.,

šutlumum 'to give, lend'; šuklulum 'to complete'.
```

(e) Many verbs occur in both the D and the Š stems, in addition to the G. In a few cases, the meanings of the D and Š are difficult to differentiate: kunnušum and šuknušum 'to subjugate';(w)utturum 'to augment', šūturum 'to increase, surpass'.

```
```

Sometimes the meanings overlap only partly:

šumlûm 'to fill, make full', mullûm 'to fill, make full', but also, 'deliver in full, assign';

šurbûm 'to make great, increase', rubbûm 'to make great, raise (off-spring)'.

Often, however, the meanings of the D and the Š are quite distinct:

nakārum 'to become hostile, to change (intransitive)', nukkurum 'to change (trans.)', šukkurum 'to cause to rebel, cause enmity';

redûm 'to guide, conduct', ruddûm 'to add to', šurdûm 'to cause to conduct, cause to flow'.

The same is true, of course, when the D and G have the same nuances:

sabātum and subbutum 'to seize', šusbutum 'to cause to seize'.

(f) Closely related to the causative nuance of the Š is its occasional use to denote permission: e.g.,

 $il\bar{u}$ etlam $\bar{a}l\check{s}u$ $u\check{s}ak\check{s}id\bar{u}$ 'The gods allowed the youth to reach his town'. Such renderings must be derived from context.

(g) The causative meaning of the \S stem is predictable in most instances, and for the majority of verbs, it offers no special translation problems. In some cases, however, less obvious nuances have developed. These are listed below for the strong verbs, verbs I-n, and verbs III—weak encountered thus far.

šubšûm 'to make appear, produce, create'.

šuknušum 'to subjugate, make submissive' (=D).

šulputum 'to cause to touch (rare); to defeat, destroy; to desecrate, defile'.

šumhurum 'to make accept, to offer; to hand over'.

šumgutum 'to cause to fall, fell, strike down, overthrow, defeat'.

šumruṣum 'to make sick, unhappy, worried; to cause trouble, difficulty'.

šumsûm 'to make suffice'; mala libbi X šumsûm 'to give X full discretion'.

šuddunum (nadānum) 'to cause to give, hand over, sell; to collect (taxes, etc.)'; Participle mušaddinum 'collector (of taxes, etc.)'.

šuddûm (nadûm) 'to cause to throw, drop, abandon; to let (a field) go fallow; to reduce to ruins'.

šukkurum (nakārum) 'to cause to rebel, cause enmity'.

šussukum (nasākum) 'to remove, reject, annul'.

šupšuhum 'to quiet, calm, pacify, appease'.

šurbûm 'to make great, increase'.

 $\check{s}urd\hat{u}m$ 'to cause to bring, conduct; to cause to flow'.

šurkubum 'to cause to mount; to load (a ship, wagon, etc.)'.

šuršûm 'to cause to acquire, provide (someone with something: double acc.)'; note pānam šuršûm 'to make clear, explicit (a report, tablet, matter)'; idam šuršûm 'to raise objections'.

šushurum 'to cause to turn, cause to seek; to place around, surround (something with something: double acc.)'.

 $\check{s}u\check{s}m\hat{u}m$ 'to cause (someone) to hear (something), inform, cause to pay attention'. $\check{s}utb\hat{u}m$ 'to cause to arise; to set aside, remove'.

27.3 The Expression of the Comparative and the Superlative

There are no distinct forms of the adjective for the comparative or the superlative; the simple adjective (or its predicative form) is used.

In comparisons, 'than' is expressed by the preposition eli, as in eli kala ilātim dannat 'she is stronger than all the (other) goddesses'; eli kakkabī šamê $m\bar{a}d\bar{a}$ 'they (f) are more numerous than the stars (kakkabum) of the sky';

 $aw\bar{\imath}lam\ \check{s}a\ el\bar{\imath}\check{s}u\ rab\hat{u}\ imhas$ 'he struck a man who is greater (in rank) than he';

 $suh\bar{a}ram\ el\bar{\imath}ya\ iramm\bar{\imath}$ 'they (m) love the servant more than me'.

The superlative (English 'X-est, most X') is usually expressed by the bound form of the adjective: e.g.,

Ištar rabīt ilātim 'Ištar is the greatest of the goddesses'.

The Š Verbal Adjective of adjectival verbs, called the Elative, can correspond to the English superlative, or to 'very X', as in šurbûm 'very great, greatest'; šūturum (from watūrum) 'most surpassing, pre-eminent'.

LESSON TWENTY-EIGHT

28.1 The Š Stem: Verbs I^{-s} (I-a and I-e); Verbs I-w

(a) Verbs I-

In the Š of the strong verb (§27.1(a)), R_1 immediately precedes R_2 in all forms. In the Š of verbs I^{-2} , the loss of 2 has, as expected, caused the lengthening of the preceding vowel, in all forms but one. The aberrant form is the Durative, in which the vowel remains short, while R_2 is doubled (as it is in the G Durative ihhaz). In verbs $I^{-}e$, the usual change of a-vowels to e takes place. Below are the Š forms of $ah\bar{a}zum$, $ep\bar{e}šum$, and $el\hat{u}m$ (also III–weak):

Infinitive:	šūhuzum	šūpušum	šūlûm
Durative:	$u\check{s}a\check{h}\check{h}az$	ušeppeš	$u\check{s}elle$
Perfect:	uš t ā h iz	uštēpiš	uštēli
Preterite:	$u\check{s}ar{a}hiz$	ušēpiš	ušēli
Imperative:	$\check{s}ar{u}hiz$	šūpiš	$\check{s}ar{u}li$
Participle:	mu š $ar{a}$ $hizum$	mušēpišum	mušēlûm
Verbal Adj.:	šūḫuzum	šūpušum	$\check{s}ar{u}l\hat{u}m$
(V. Adj. base:	$\check{s}ar{u}huz$	šūpuš	$\check{s}ar{u}lu)$

(b) Verbs I-w

These are conjugated like verbs I^{-3} in the Š. Most follow the pattern of verbs I^{-a} , but a few have the change of a-vowels to e that is characteristic of Verbs I^{-e} . In a very small group, including $wa\$\hat{u}m$, forms of both types occur; of these the forms with a > e predominate. As in the D, there is no distinction between active and adjectival verbs I^{-w} . Here are the Š forms of $bab\bar{a}lum$ (a-type), $wa\$\bar{a}bum$ (e-type) and $wa\$\hat{u}m$ (also III—weak; usually e-type, also a-type):

Infinitive:	$\check{s}ar{u}bulum$	šūšubum	šūṣûm
Durative:	uš $abbal$	ušeššeb	ušeșșe (ušașșa)
Perfect:	u š $tar{a}bil$	uštēšib	uštēși (uštāși)
Preterite:	$u\check{s}ar{a}bil$	ušēšib	ušēși (ušāși)
Imperative:	$\check{s}ar{u}bil$	$\check{s}ar{u}\check{s}ib$	$\check{s}ar{u}si$

Participle: mušābilum mušēšibum mušēşûm (mušāşûm)

Verbal Adj.: $s\bar{u}bulum$ $s\bar{u}subum$ $s\bar{u}s\hat{u}bu$ (V. Adj. base: $s\bar{u}bul$ $s\bar{u}sub$ $s\bar{u}sub$

Conjugated like babālum (a-type) are walādum and watārum. Conjugated like wašābum (e-type) is warādum.

In OB poetry (§§33.3–4, 35.4), the Š Preterite and Participle of $was\bar{a}bum$ occasionally have \bar{u} rather than \bar{e} : $us\bar{u}sib$, $mus\bar{u}sibum$. (Š Preterite and Participle forms with \bar{u} are also attested in poetry for $wap\hat{u}m$ G (i) 'to appear', Š 'to make manifest', and for $es\bar{e}rum$ (I–e; originally I–y) G (i) 'to go straight, prosper', Š 'to move straight toward; to set straight, make prosper'.)

(c) Š stems of verbs I^{-2} and verbs I^{-2} encountered thus far:

Verbs I–a

 $s\bar{u}huzum$ 'to cause to hold, cause to marry; to obtain (a wife for someone); to teach, instruct, to incite'; $d\bar{\imath}nam\ s\bar{\imath}uhuzum$ 'to grant a legal case, hearing to someone'.

 $\bar{s}\bar{u}kulum$ 'to cause, give to eat, to feed'.

 $š\bar{u}lukum$ (rare) 'to cause to go; to fit'.

šūrukum (rare) 'to lengthen, prolong'.

Verbs I-e

 $\tilde{sud}\hat{u}m$ ($ed\hat{u}m$) 'to make known, announce, proclaim (something: acc.; to someone: acc. or ana/dat.)'.

šūlûm 'to cause to go up, send/lead/take/bring up; to raise, make emerge/ appear; to summon/produce a witness (or document); to remove, oust'.

šūpušum 'to cause to do/make/build; to have (something) built; to direct work'.

šūrubum 'to cause to enter, send/lead/take/bring in'.

šūrušum (rare) 'to cause to (be) cultivate(d), put under cultivation'.

šūšurum 'to move straight toward; to set straight, set on the proper course, make prosper'.

šūtuqum 'to cause to move on/proceed/pass; to send on; to allow to elapse'.

šūzubum 'to cause to leave; to have (a document) made out; to save (persons, cities)'.

Verbs I–w

 $s\bar{u}bulum$ (α -type) 'to cause to carry/bring; to send, dispatch (something; lit., to have something brought)'.

 $š\bar{u}ludum$ (rare) (a-type) 'to cause to bear'.

šūrudum (e-type) 'to send/lead/take/bring down'.

 $s\bar{u}s\hat{u}m$ (e-type, rarely a-type) 'to cause to go/come out/forth, to send/lead/take/bring out; to make leave, send away, evict, expel; to remove (from a house, container), release; to let escape; to obtain, produce; to rent. hire'.

šūšubum (e-type) 'to cause to sit down/stay/dwell; to install (officers, etc.), to garrison (soldiers); to settle, resettle (people)'.

šūturum (a-type) 'to cause to increase/surpass, to enlarge'; Verbal Adj. šūturum 'pre-eminent, surpassing'.

28.2 The Terminative-adverbial Ending -iš

In this and the following section are presented two nominal endings, -iš and -um, both of which are adverbial in nature. These endings occur on singular noun (and adjective) stems, replacing the usual case-endings. (Examples on plural nouns are rare.)

The ending -iš corresponds semantically to the preposition ana plus the genitive. It occurs on nouns and on adjectives.

On nouns, $-i\check{s}$ is no longer a productive morpheme by the OB period; its occurrence is restricted to a relatively small group of nouns, and, apart from a few frozen expressions, almost exclusively to poetry and some personal names, such as Iliš-tikal 'trust (ms)-in-god' (cf. the name Ana-ilīya-atkal).

On an Infinitive, -iš denotes purpose:

```
amāriš '(in order) to see' (cf. ana amārim).
```

Apart from Infinitives, nouns with $-i\check{s}$ most often occur as bound forms before following genitive nouns or with pronominal suffixes, as in dāriš ūmī 'forever' (lit.: 'for perpetuity of days');

akliška liţţul 'let him look at your (ms) food'.
```

Note that $-\check{s}\check{s}$ - remains unchanged when third person suffixes are added: $q\bar{a}ti\check{s}\check{s}u$ 'to his hand'.

Nouns with $-i\check{s}$ plus a pron. suf. are often semantically equivalent to forms with locative -um plus a pron. suf.; see the next section, end.

Much more commonly, in both prose and poetry, $-i\check{s}$ is added to ms adjective bases, from which are formed adverbs:

m\bar{a}dis 'much, greatly'; lemnis 'badly, wickedly'; damqis 'well'; k\bar{\imath}nis 'truly'.
```

With vocalic stems, regular vowel contraction takes place:

```
rabîš 'greatly'; hadîš 'joyfully'.
```

The ending -išam is an adverbial suffix that usually has distributive force:

28.3 The Locative-adverbial Ending -um

The ending -um is semantically equivalent to the preposition ina plus the genitive. When used without a following genitive, it has the same form as the nominative sg. case-ending: e.g.,

```
šanûm warhum 'in the second month';išteat sūtum 'for one seah'.
```

The final m is lost in later OB (see §24.4).

A form with the locative ending may occur as a bound form before a following noun; usually the final m is missing:

libbu ālim 'in the center of town' (contrast the bound form of nominative libbum, as in libbi ālim 'the center of town');

x kaspam libbu kaspīki idnī 'give (fs) x silver out of your silver'.

Before pronominal suffixes, the locative ending remains and the m is assimilated to the following consonant (cf. the m of the Ventive); the ending with the 1cs suffix, -uyya, is normally written -Cu-a (perhaps pronounced - \bar{u} ³a).

libbuššu 'in its (m) midst';
libbukki 'in your (fs) mind';
libbuyya (written li-ib-bu-a) 'within me'.
```

Occasionally, a noun with the locative-adverbial ending is preceded, redundantly, by the preposition ina (or, more rarely, by ana), as in ina bītum 'in the house' (equivalent to both ina bītim, with the genitive, and the locative bītum alone);

ina libbu ālim 'in the center of town'.

In OB prose, apart from a few expressions involving time or measurement, such as the examples in the first paragraph above, the use of the locative-adverbial ending is largely restricted to a few frozen adverbial (or prepositional) forms, such as libbu(m) 'within'. In several forms, -um is preceded by the morpheme $-\bar{a}n$ (cf. §20.2), as in šaplānum 'underneath, below' (from šaplum 'underside'); elēnum 'above, beyond' (cf. elûm 'upper');

qerbēnum 'inside' (qerbum 'inner part').
```

The Infinitive occasionally occurs with the locative-adverbial ending, often with -ma, to add emphasis to a finite verb:

tabālum tatbal 'you (ms) did indeed carry off';

šūpušum-ma lišēpišū 'they (m) must certainly direct the building'.
```

In poetry, use of the locative-adverbial is somewhat less restricted. Further, it sometimes has the instrumental nuance of ina: e.g., qibītušša 'by her command'.

When followed by pronominal suffixes, especially third person suffixes, the endings -um and -iš tend to become indistinguishable in meaning:

šēpuššu or šēpiššu 'at/to his foot'.

28.4 Adverbs

Most adverbs can be associated with nominal or pronominal bases. There are a number of endings from which adverbs are formed; the following paragraphs list the most common of these for reference.

(a) -am, often simply -a (cf. 24.4(a)), i.e., the accusative case, used adverbially (§18.3); examples:

(b) -iš, the terminative-adverbial ending (§28.2, above):

```
ašariš 'there' (cf. ašrum);šapliš 'below' (šaplum 'underside');m\bar{a}diš 'much, greatly';annîš 'hither';rabîš 'greatly';e\~s (< ayyi\~s) 'whither?'.
```

Note also the ending -išam:

```
 ūmišam 'daily'; ullîšam 'thither';
 warhišam 'monthly'; ayyišam-ma 'anywhere'.
```

(c) -um/-u, the locative-adverbial ending (§28.3, above):

```
apputtum 'please';ayyānum 'where?' (cf. ayyum);warkānum 'afterward, later';annânum 'here' (cf. annûm);elēnum 'above, in addition';ullânum (-ma) 'already, from there'(ullûm 'that' [§6.3, end]).
```

- (d) -i: mati 'when?'; ali 'where?'; $mat\bar{\imath}ma$ 'ever'; $k\bar{\imath}$ 'how?'.
- (e) $-\phi$, i.e., the absolute form (§23.1):

```
zamar 'quickly, suddenly'; pīqat 'perhaps'.
```

Other adverbs are compounds of two or more elements:

```
annīkiam 'here';ullīkiam 'there';ayyīkiam 'where?';am-mīnim (or ana mīnim) 'why?';inūmīšūma (ina+ūmī+-šu+-ma)malmališ/mammališ (mal+mal+-iš)'at that time, then';'likewise, to the same degree'.
```

Some sentence-modifying adverbs naturally stand first in their sentence, as in English:

šanītam aḥī warassu iṭrudakkum 'Moreover, my brother sent you (ms) his slave'.

The normal position of most adverbs, however, is after the subject and object, i.e., directly before the verb:

 $ah\bar{i}$ warassu ašariš iţrudakkum 'My brother sent his slave there to you'.

It should be noted, however, that Akkadian word order, except for the position of the verb at the end, is not rigid, and many variations occur.

LESSON TWENTY-NINE

29.1 Verbs II-Weak: the D and Š Stems

In the D and Š stems, verbs II–weak must be considered in two distinct groups:

- (1) those whose middle radical was w or y;
- (2) those whose middle radical was one of the five alephs $(^{\circ}, h, h, ^{c}, \acute{g})$ that were lost (as noted in §6.1, \acute{g} was lost only sporadically).

(a) Verbs II-w and II-y

Verbs originally II–w are a–u (or II–u) in the G (e.g., $t\hat{a}rum$, $m\hat{a}tum$); those originally II–y are a-i (or II–i) in the G (e.g., $qi\bar{a}\check{s}um$). These two types are conjugated alike in both the D and the Š stems. As is true in the sound verb, there are no special vowel-classes: the Durative is characterized by an a-vowel before R_3 , while the Preterite, Perfect, Imperative, and Participle have an i-vowel and the Infinitive and Verbal Adjective have an u-vowel. In both stems, in any form that ends with the third radical (discounting pronominal suffixes and -ma), the preceding vowel is long, marked with a macron; in forms in which the third radical is followed by a vowel (including the Ventive -am and the subordination marker -u), the third radical is doubled and the preceding vowel is short (cf. the G Durative $iq\bar{\imath}a\check{s} \sim iqi\check{s}\check{\imath}u$, $it\hat{a}r \sim iturr\bar{\imath}u$; but in the D and Š, this applies to all forms). In the paradigms below plural forms are also given, for comparison and reference; the verbs in the paradigms are $k\hat{a}num$ (a– u; i.e., II–w) G 'to be firm', D 'to make firm'; $m\hat{a}tum$ (a–u) G 'to die', Š 'to put to death'.

	D Stem	Š Stem
Infinitive: (Bound form:	kunnum kunni, suf. kunnašu	šumuttum šumūt, suf. šumuttašu)
Durative:	$uk\bar{a}n$, 3mp $ukann\bar{u}$	$u\check{s}m\bar{a}t$, 3mp $u\check{s}matt\bar{u}$
Perfect:	uktīn, 3mp uktinnū	u š t a m $\bar{t}t$, 3mp u š t a m i t t \bar{u}
Preterite:	ukīn, 3mp ukinnū	ušmīt , 3mp ušmittū
Imperative:	$k\bar{\imath}n$, cp $kinnar{a}$	šumīt , cp šumittā
Participle: (Bound form:	mukinnum mukīn, suf. mukinnašu	mušmittum mušmīt, suf. mušmittašu)

Vbl. Adj.: kunnum šumuttum (V. Adj.+3ms: $k\bar{u}n$, +3mp: $kunn\bar{u}$ $šum\bar{u}t$, +3mp: $šumutt\bar{u}$)

Note that in the Š stem Durative, Preterite, and Participle, the a-vowel between the \check{s} and R_1 ($u\check{s}apras$, $u\check{s}apris$, $mu\check{s}aprisum$) has been lost through syncope.

(b) Verbs II-2

These are poorly attested in the D and Š stems. Verbs that are II-a in the G (thus, from II– 3 1– 2) tend to be conjugated in the D with the middle 3 as a strong consonant; contraction may take place (with the vowel then marked by a circumflex), however, especially when the vowels before and after the 3 are the same, less frequently otherwise. These verbs are so rare in the Š that a full paradigm cannot be given.

Verbs that are II–e in the G (i.e., II– 2 3–4) are either treated like verbs II–w/y, but with e-vowels where the latter have a, or conjugated like verbs II–a (without a > e), as is the originally II–g (II– 2 5) verb $bu^{22}\hat{u}m$ (also III–weak) D 'to look for, search' (not in G).

In addition to $bu^{\circ\circ}\hat{u}m$, the verbs in the paradigms below are $w\hat{a}rum$ (II–a) G 'to advance', D 'to send'; $r\hat{e}qum$ (II–e) G 'to be distant', D (rare) 'to keep far away'; $n\hat{e}sum$ (II–e) G 'to live', Š 'to keep alive'.

	D	S t	e	m	Š Stem
Infinitive: (Bound form:	wuɔɔurum/wûrum wuɔɔur/wûr	buɔɔûm buɔɔu		ruqqum ruqqi	šunuššum šunūš)
Durative: (3mp:	uwa ^{ɔɔ} ar/uwâr uwa ^{ɔɔ} arū/uwarrū	$uba^{\circ\circ}a$, $uba^{\circ\circ}\hat{u}$	'ubâ	urēq, ureqqū	ušnēš ušneššū)
Perfect:	$ar{u}ta^{\circ\circ}er$	$ubta^{\circ\circ}i$		$urt\bar{\iota}q$?
Preterite: (3mp:	uwa ^{ɔɔ} er(/uwêr) uwa ^{ɔɔ} erū(/uwerrū)	$uba^{\circ\circ}i \ uba^{\circ\circ}\hat{u}$		urīq uriqqū	ušnīš ušniššū)
Imperative:	$wu^{\circ\circ}er$	$bu^{\circ\circ}i$		$r\bar{\imath}q$?
Participle: (Bound form:	muwa ^{ɔɔ} erum muwa ^{ɔɔ} er	muba ^{>>}		muriqqum murīq	mušniššum mušnīš)
Vbl. Adj.: (V.Adj.+3ms:	wu ^{ɔɔ} urum/wûrum wu ^{ɔɔ} ur/wûr	$bu^{\circ\circ}\hat{u}m$ $bu^{\circ\circ}u$		ruqqum rūq	? ?)

(c) D and Š stems of verbs II–weak encountered thus far:

dâkum: Š šudukkum 'to have (someone) killed' (rare).

kânum: D kunnum 'to establish as true, confirm, convict (of doing: ina + Infin.); to set (up), fix, establish, assign; to maintain'.

mâtum: Š šumuttum 'to put to death, to cause the death of'.

miādum: Š šumuddum 'to make much, increase, enlarge, make numerous'; in hendiadys, 'to do (something) much, a lot'.

 $na^{\circ}\bar{a}dum$: D $nu^{\circ\circ}udum$ 'to ask to pay attention, alert, instruct'.

târum: D turrum 'to return (trans.), restore, give/take/send/put/pay back; to turn (something: acc.; into something else: ana); to take captive in war'.

 $ti\bar{a}bum$: D tubbum 'to make pleasant, sweet, good; to please, satisfy'; Š $\check{s}utubbum = D$ (much less common than D).

zâzum: D zuzzum 'to divide, distribute' (rare).

29.2 Non-coordinating -ma

In verbal clauses, the enclitic particle -ma may occur on parts of speech other than the verb. In such instances, -ma is not a conjunction, but rather an emphasizing particle, marking the word to which it is attached as the logical predicate of its clause. (The predicate may be defined as the focus or new information of the clause. In a verbal clause, the true, or grammatical, predicate is the verb; when no other part of speech is emphasized, the verb is also the logical predicate; but when the focus or emphasis lies with an element other than the verb, that element is the logical predicate.) In English, a logical predicate other than the verb may be topicalized in a cleft sentence pattern (see below).

The following sentence will illustrate this predicating function of -ma, and the English equivalent. Given the sentence šarrum mārī ina kakkīšu imḥaṣ 'The king struck my son with his weapon', any of the first three elements may be made the logical predicate by the addition to it of -ma:

šarrum-ma mārī ina kakkīšu imhas 'It was the king who struck my son with his weapon';

šarrum mārī-ma ina kakkīšu imḥaṣ 'It was my son whom the king struck with his weapon';

 $\check{s}arrum\ m\bar{a}r\bar{\iota}\ ina\ kakk\bar{\iota}\check{s}\bar{u}$ -ma imha, 'It was with his weapon that the king struck my son'.

In many instances, of course, translation by means of a cleft sentence is awkward. Other means may be used, but the emphatic force of the -ma should be indicated. Sometimes, for example, it has a limiting nuance:

iṣam warqam-ma šūbilam 'Send (ms) me only green (warqum) wood'; šībum u ṣeḥrum lā innammar; eṭlam dannam-ma ṭurdam 'Let no old man or child show up (innammar); send (ms) me only strong youth(s)'.

29.3 The Particle $l\bar{u}$

This particle has three uses, two of which have already been encountered.

(a) To denote alternatives, with or without \bar{u} 'or' (§7.4(f)):

šumma awīlum lū wardam lū amtam išriq 'if a man stole either a male or a female slave';

- (\bar{u}) $l\bar{u}$ $b\bar{\imath}t\bar{\imath}$ idnam (\bar{u}) $l\bar{u}$ $b\bar{\imath}tam$ essam idnam 'either give (ms) me my house or give me a new house'.
- (b) To express injunctions in verbless clauses (§22.2):

 $ab\bar{u}$ šu $l\bar{u}$ atta 'be (ms) his father'; $l\bar{u}$ $aw\bar{l}l\bar{a}$ ta 'be (ms) a man'; Adad $l\bar{u}$ $b\bar{e}l$ $d\bar{\imath}n\bar{\imath}ka$ 'may Adad be your adversary ($b\bar{e}l$ $d\bar{\imath}nim$)'.

The negative of $l\bar{u}$ in such cases is $l\bar{a}$.

(c) As an asseverative particle, meaning 'indeed, certainly, verily'. In expressions of oaths (§36.3), $l\bar{u}$ occurs in this usage before all tenses. Apart from oaths, $l\bar{u}$ in asseverative use normally appears only before the Preterite, and with rare exception only in royal inscriptions (§30.3), as in $l\bar{u}$ $\bar{e}pu\check{s}$ 'I verily built'.

29.4 Old Babylonian Letters from Mari

The site of Mari, situated on the Euphrates River about 250 miles upstream from Babylon, and thus well outside ancient Mesopotamia proper, was the seat of an important Amorite kingdom during the late nineteenth and early eighteenth centuries BCE. It was destroyed by Hammurapi in 1761 BCE. The French excavators at Mari (modern Tell Hariri in southeastern Syria) under the direction of A. Parrot and his successors, have, since the 1930's, unearthed over 20,000 OB tablets, of which some 5,000 are letters. The letters are for the most part written in style and grammar very close to those of contemporary Mesopotamian letters. There are, however, a few important differences to be noted.

- (a) A few of the signs used at Mari are rare or unknown in Mesopotamian OB texts: e.g., QA is used more often than GA for /qa/.
- (b) The normally uncontracted vowel sequences ia, $i\bar{a}$, ea, and $e\bar{a}$ all contract in the Mari dialect to \hat{e} : e.g., iqbêm (<iqbiam) 'he said to me';

išpurannêšim (<išpuranniāšim) 'he sent to us'.</pre>

(c) There are occasional instances of non-Akkadian meanings of words and uses of forms, which reflect the underlying Northwest Semitic speech of the natives of Mari. These will be indicated with the glosses in the readings.

Mari texts were originally published in two companion series of volumes, $Archives\ Royales\ de\ Mari$ (abbreviated ARM) for the cuneiform copies and $Archives\ Royales\ de\ Mari$, $transcrites\ et\ traduites$ (abbreviated ARMT) for the transliterations and translations; more recently ARM volumes include both. Over thirty volumes of ARM(T) have appeared.

EXERCISES

A. VOCABULARY 29.

Verbs:

bârum G (a–u) 'to be firm, in good repair; to become proved' (rare in OB apart from PNs); burrum D 'to establish, ascertain (the true legal situation), prove, certify, explain, indicate'.

kullum D (root k-w-l; not in G) 'to hold, contain, have, maintain'; rēšam kullum 'to wait for, take care of, be ready for, at the disposal of' (e.g., tuppaka rēšī likīl 'let your (ms) tablet be ready for me, at my disposal'; rēš awâtīša kīl 'take (ms) care of her affairs'; note also, frequent in letters, DN rēška ana damiqtim likīl and DN rēš damiqtīka likīl 'may DN treat you (the addressee) well, provide you with good things'); Participle mukillum in mukīl bābim 'doorkeeper, guard', mukīl rēšim 'attendant, spirit; a feature on the exta'.

raḥāṣum G (i) 'to flood (trans.), inundate'.

riāqum G (a-i) 'to be empty, idle'; Verbal Adj. rīqum (rīq-) 'empty; idle'; ruqqum D and šuruqqum Š 'to empty; to leave idle'; note also rīqūtum (rīqūt) 'emptiness; idleness'; rīqūt- (with suf., e.g., rīqūssu; adv. acc., see §18.3(d)) 'empty-handed'.

šuklulum Š (not in G) 'to complete, finish, accomplish, bring to an end'.

warāqum G (i) 'to become yellow, green; to turn pale'; Verbal Adj.warqum (waruq-) 'yellow, green; fresh (of plants)'; (w)urruqumD factitive.

 $w\hat{a}rum G$ (root originally $w^{-3}-r$ [see D], but G Dur. * $iw\bar{\imath}ar/iw\hat{a}r$, pl. iwirrū; Pret. iwīr [see §21.3(f)]) 'to advance against, attack'; wu³³urum D 'to send (a person, message); to command, order (to do: acc. Infin. or ana/aššum + Infin.)' (cf. têrtum).

Nouns:

 $b\bar{a}r\hat{u}m$ (base $b\bar{a}ri$ -; log. (lú)MÁŠ.ŠU.GÍD.GÍD [gíd = the BU sign]) 'diviner, haruspex'.

biltum (bilat; pl. bilātum; log. GUN/GÚ.UN) 'load, weight; tribute, rent'; a unit of weight ('talent') = ca. 30 kg. (see App. B.1); $n\bar{a}\check{s}(i)$ biltim 'tenant (of a field owned by the state)' (cf. babālum).

emum (with suf. $em\bar{u}/\bar{\iota}/\bar{a}$ -, like abum and ahum) 'father-in-law (wife's father)'; bīt emim (rare) 'wedding'.

itinnum (log. ŠITIM; Sum. lw.?) 'house builder'.

qištum (qišti; pl. qišātum; log. GIŠ.TIR) 'forest, grove'.

Adjective:

warkûm (warkī-; fem. warkītum) 'later, future' (cf. warki).

Adverbs:

magal 'very (much), greatly, exceedingly'. warka (also ina warka) 'afterwards; behind, in the rear'.

LESSON THIRTY

30.1 The Syntax of the Infinitive

(a) Introduction

The Infinitive is a verbal noun, always masculine singular, that corresponds in English not only to the infinitive, but also to the gerund, as in kašādum '(to) arrive, (the) arriving'.

Moreover, English usage often requires that the Akkadian Infinitive be rendered by other de-verbal nouns, such as 'arrival' for $ka\check{s}\bar{a}dum$ or 'life' for $bal\bar{a}tum$. Such renderings must be decided on the basis of the surrounding context in each example.

The Infinitive behaves both nominally (i.e., as a noun) and verbally. As a noun, it has the properties of all other nouns in the language, viz., it may

- (1) occur in any case, nominative, accusative, or genitive (the latter after a preposition or after a bound form or ša); see below under (b) – (e); note that plural forms of infinitives do not occur;
- (2) take the adverbial endings -iš and -um; see under (f);
- (3) occur in the bound form before a genitive noun or pronoun; see under (g);
- (4) be modified by an adjective (masc. sg.); this is not common, except for the demonstrative adjective $ann\hat{u}m$, as in
 - epēšum annûm 'this action' (lit., 'this doing');
- (5) be modified by ša plus a genitive noun or by ša plus a relative clause; neither of these constructions is very common, but note the following examples:
 - ša plus genitive noun: kaspam ša mahārim ša ahīya šūbilā 'send (pl) the silver that my brother is to receive' (lit., 'the silver of the receiving of my brother'; for ša before the Infinitive see below under (e));
 - ša plus a relative clause: epēšum ša tēpušu ul damiq 'the action that you (ms) took is not appropriate' (lit., 'the doing that you did...').

Since the Infinitive is also verbal, it may have a subject or object (or both), either of which may be a noun or a pronoun. The Infinitive is also verbal in that it may govern adverbs and prepositional phrases. The constructions of the Infinitive with subject, object, and adverbial complements are discussed below under (g) and (h).

Although it is part of the verbal paradigm, the Infinitive, as just noted, is formally a noun, and so it does not express any tense, or take the Ventive or the subordination marker. The Infinitive is negated with $l\bar{a}$; examples are given below in (d), (e), and (g2).

As is true of the English gerund, the Akkadian Infinitive of a transitive verb is essentially voiceless; thus, for example, in tarād dayyānim 'the sending of the judge',

```

it is not clear without further context whether the judge did the sending (active voice, the judge as subject), or was sent (passive voice, the judge as object). Fortunately, the context usually resolves this ambiguity; examples appear under (g), below.

(b) Nominative Infinitive

The Infinitive in the nominative case is the subject of its clause. Such clauses are usually verbless or have a form of $ba\check{s}\hat{u}m$ as predicate:

```
erēšum qerub 'planting is near';
epēšum ul damiq 'the action (lit., the doing) is not good';
šūpušum kûm 'directing (the work) is up to you' (lit., 'causing to do is yours');
pahār sābim ul ibašši 'the assembling of the troop is not at hand'.
```

(c) Accusative Infinitive

The Infinitive in the accusative case is the direct object complement of a verb. Among the large number of verbs that may take the Infinitive in the accusative are le^{\circ}\hat{u}m 'to be able'; sem\hat{u}m 'to hear about'; nad\bar{a}num 'to allow'; qab\hat{u}m 'to order, command'; sap\bar{a}rum 'to write, order'; lam\bar{a}dum 'to learn (how to do)'.

```

Some examples:

apālam tele<sup>55</sup>î 'you (fs) can answer'; erēbam ul iddiššim 'he did not allow her to enter' (lit, 'entering he did not give to her');
```

ana bārîm nadānam ašpurakkum 'I wrote to you (ms) to give to the diviner' (for the prepositional phrase ana bārîm see under (h) below);

339

LESSON THIRTY

alāk bēlīya nakrum išemme 'the enemy will hear about my lord's travelling';

aššum alpim ša šâmam aqbûkum 'concerning the ox that I commanded you (ms) to buy' (lit., 'that I commanded to you the buying');

For additional examples, see below under (g) and (h). Some of these may also be constructed with ana or ina plus the Infinitive in the genitive; see the next section.

(d) Genitive Infinitive after a Preposition

The Infinitive may be governed by a wide range of prepositions. The most common of these by far are ana and ina.

ana usually expresses purpose or result, 'for the doing, (in order) to do':

ana kunnim ṭurdaššu 'send (ms) him here to verify (it)';
eqlum ana ṣabātim ibašši 'there is a field to be taken into possession';
ana târim pānīya aškun 'I decided (lit., I set my face) to return'; ana wašābim lā tanaddinīšum 'do not (fs) allow him to remain' (cf.
the example with an acc. Infinitive under (c) above).

ina is usually equivalent to a temporal clause, 'when/while/upon doing'; occasionally, it denotes means or instrument, 'by/through doing'; it is also used instead of the acc. Infinitive as the complement of many verbs, such as those involving completing/finishing/establishing:

ina sanāqim imūt 'he died upon arriving/when he arrived';
ṣābum ina alākim lupput 'the troop was delayed in coming';
ištu šipir nārim ina herêm tagdamru 'when you (ms) have finished the canal work, digging (it) out' (lit., 'in digging'; herûm 'to dig');
ina šarāqim ukannūšu 'he will be convicted of stealing'.

 $k\bar{\imath}ma$ may be used temporally, 'as soon as, immediately upon', or to express purpose:

kīma šemêm ana ṣēr bēlīya allakam 'immediately upon hearing, I will come to my lord';

kīma lā ragāmim epuš 'act (ms) so that there be no legal contest' (lit., 'act according to not contesting').

adi 'until':

adi târīya ina bītim šibā 'stay (pl) in the house until my return' (for the pronominal suffix, see under (g), below).

aššum 'concerning, for the purpose of':

aššum elêm aštaprakkum 'I have written to you (ms) about coming up'. Other prepositions that may govern Infinitives are ašar 'in/to the place of' (Mari only), balum 'without', ištu 'when, after', lāma 'before' (Mari):

ašar epēšim eppeš 'I will act where necessary' (lit., 'in the place of acting');

balum šâlīya illikam 'he came without asking me (or: without my asking)' (šâlum 'to ask'; for the pronominal suffix, see under (g)); ana ālīni ištu apālim nitūr 'we returned to our town after paying'; lāma alākīya annītam epšā 'do (pl) this before my coming'.

(e) Genitive Infinitive after a Bound Form or ša

The Infinitive is very frequent after a bound form or δa , as in ūm erēšim qerub 'the day of planting is near';

bītum ša epēšim 'a house to build/to be built' (lit., 'a house of building').

Note: $\dot{s}a$ must be used if the noun before the Infinitive would be the direct object of a finite form of the verb, as in the second example above, which corresponds to $b\bar{\imath}tam$ $ippe\dot{s}$ 'he will build a house'; exceptions occur when the Infinitive is negated (with $l\bar{a}$), as in ašar lā amārim 'a place that cannot be found' (lit., 'a place of not finding'; cf. ašram immar 'he will find the place').

Otherwise, viz., when the noun does not represent the direct object, either δa or the bound form of the noun may be used, as in the first example above, and in bīt erēbim or bītum ša erēbim 'a house to enter/be entered' (lit., 'a house of entering'; cf. ana bītim irrub 'he enters the house').

The Infinitive after a bound form or δa has a range of meanings. It may denote command, wish, or potential (e.g., 'of doing, for (the purpose of) doing' or 'what/which must/should be done, is needed/necessary/appropriate to do/for doing/to be done, can be done').

Note that these nuances correspond to those of the finite injunctive forms (Precative, Imperative, Prohibitive, Vetitive). Unlike other finite verbs, injunctive forms may not appear in relative clauses; the Infinitives in the following examples may be thought of as substitutes for injunctives in relative clauses. In other words, whereas the verb in $b\bar{\imath}tam$ $\bar{\imath}pus$ 'he built a house' may be nominalized (i.e., turned into a relative clause as modifier) as $b\bar{\imath}tum$ sa $\bar{\imath}pusu$ or $b\bar{\imath}t$ $\bar{\imath}pusu$ 'the house (that) he built', $b\bar{\imath}tam$ $l\bar{\imath}pus$ 'let him/may he build a house' may be nominalized as $b\bar{\imath}tum$ sa $ep\bar{\imath}sim$ 'a house that he must/should/could build' or 'a house that must/should/could be built'.

šumma mārum arnam kabtam ša ina aplūtim nasāḥim lā ublam 'if the son has not committed (babālum) a serious offense (arnum) so that he must be removed from the inheritance' (lit., 'a serious offense of removing from the inheritance'; cf. ina aplūtim lissuhšu 'he must remove him from the inheritance'; for the prepositional phrase ina aplūtim before the Infinitive, see (h) below);

akalšina ša adi Bābilim kašādim šurkib 'load (ms) food for them (f) to get/that they may get as far as Babylon' (lit., 'load their food of arriving as far as B.'; cf. adi B. likšudā 'may they get as far as B.'; for the phrase adi Bābilim before the Infinitive, see (h) below);

tuppi lā ragāmim anniam ušēzibūši 'they (m) made her make out this tablet of no (future) legal contest' (or 'this tablet according to which she may not contest'; cf. lā iraggam 'she may not contest'; note the adjective anniam modifying the acc. bound form tuppi).

ṣeḥram ša šapārim tīšu 'you (ms) have a youngster who could be sent/ whom you could send' (lit., 'a youngster of sending').

Another use of the Infinitive after \check{sa} or a bound form is to express a generic activity. In most such examples the Infinitive is negated and follows a bound form; often the negative may be translated 'without' (cf. §20.4(d)). Examples:

erṣet lā târim 'the land of no return/without return' (or 'from which one does not return'; a phrase denoting the underworld);

 $qabal\ l\bar{a}\ mah\bar{a}rim$ 'battle (qablum) that cannot be opposed' (or 'without opposition').

The Infinitive after δa may be from the same root as the finite verb:

ṣābī ša ṭarādim abī liṭrud 'may my father send the troops that are to be sent/can be sent' (or 'send the/whatever troops he can' or 'send the available troops'; lit., 'the troops of sending');

ṣēnī ša paqādim piqdanni 'provide (ms) me with the sheep that can be provided/that you can provide' (or 'the available sheep'; lit., 'the sheep of providing').

Frequently δa has no antecedent, and must be translated 'what, that which is to be ...' or 'enough to ...':

šumma šarrāqānum ša nadānim lā īšu 'if that thief does not have what is to be/must be given' (or 'anything/enough to give');

šumma ina bītīša ša akālim ibašši 'if there is in her house enough/ something to eat';

ša epēšim eppeš 'I am doing what can be done/is to be done'.

(f) The Infinitive with Locative -um and Terminative -iš

The Infinitive with the Locative-adverbial ending -um, often with -ma, is used in OB only to add emphasis to a finite verb of the same root:

tabālum tatbal 'you (ms) certainly took away';

ṭēmkunu šapārum-ma ul tašapparānim 'you (pl) do not send me your report'.

The Terminative-adverbial ending -iš occurs on Infinitives only in literary texts in OB (see §30.2, below); it is used in place of ana plus the gen. Infinitive, to express purpose:

amāriš palhat 'she is afraid to look'.

(g) The Infinitive with Subjects and Objects

Since they function as verbs, Infinitives may be construed with subjects and objects. Two basic constructions occur.

(1) The Infinitive, as a Bound Form, before its Subject or Object

In one construction the Infinitive is a bound form before a genitive noun or pronominal suffix, which expresses the subject or the object of the Infinitive. This construction must be used when the subject or object is a pronoun (the genitive pronominal suffixes — those attached to nouns — are used), and it is also common when the subject or object is a noun.

With Infinitives of intransitive verbs, the genitive noun or pronominal suffix is always the subject of the Infinitive: e.g.,

elê ṣābim ul ibašši 'the going up of the troop will not take place';
elûšu qerub 'his going up is near';
alāk bēlīya iqbûnim 'I was told about my lord's coming';
ṭēm alākīki šuprīm 'send (fs) me news of your coming';
ḥalāq nišīšu liškunū 'May they (the gods) decree that his people perish' (lit., 'decree the perishing of his people').
```

When the Infinitive is that of a transitive verb, the following genitive may be either the subject or the object of the Infinitive (as in $tar\bar{a}d$ $dayy\bar{a}nim$ 'the sending of the judge'; see under (a)).

Examples of transitive Infinitives with subject genitives:

âm ana maḥārim ša PN mudud 'measure (ms) grain for PN to receive' (lit., 'for the receiving of PN');

 $\hat{a}m$ $\check{s}a$ $leq\hat{e}ka$ $itbal\bar{u}$ 'they (m) carried off the grain that you (ms) were to take' (lit., 'the grain of your taking').

Examples of Infinitives with object genitives:

```
pat\bar{a}r\bar{\imath} qerub 'my release is near' (i.e., 'the releasing of me is near'); ab\bar{u}su nad\bar{a}ssu iqbiam 'his father commanded me to give it (ms)' (lit., 'commanded to me the giving of it');

suḥḥur kišādīya ul ele³³i 'I am unable to turn my neck' (lit., 'the turning of my neck');

 $s\bar{a}bam$ and $nas\bar{a}r$ $\bar{a}lim$ $us\bar{e}rib$ 'I sent in the troop to protect (for the protection of) the town';

LESSON THIRTY 343

ana parās warkatīša ina ālim wašib 'he is staying in town to investigate her case';

bēlni ana šūlîni išpuram 'our lord wrote to have us brought up' (Š Infin. of elûm).

(2) The Infinitive after its Subject or Object

The Infinitive may also, like a finite verb, follow its subject or object, which is then in the appropriate case. This construction is not used when the subject or object is a pronoun.

With a nominative Infinitive, this construction is rare; an example is ašar igisûm ina MN_1 ana $B\bar{a}$ bilim sanāqum qabû, ina MN_2 ana $B\bar{a}$ bilim lisniqam 'wherever the arrival of the igisûm-tax in Babylon in month₁ was ordered, let it (now) arrive in Babylon in month₂'.

Examples with an accusative Infinitive:

eqlam wuššuram ašpurakkim 'I wrote to you (fs) to release the field'; $b\bar{\imath}tam\ l\bar{a}\ s\hat{a}mam\ iqb\hat{\imath}um$ 'they (m) told him not to buy the house'.

Note: only an object (and/or adverbial complement; see (h)) may precede an accusative Infinitive; a subject follows the bound form of the accusative Infinitive (construction (1) above), as in $al\bar{a}k$ $b\bar{e}l\bar{t}ya$ $e\check{s}me$ 'I heard about my lord's going'.

When the Infinitive follows a bound form or $\check{s}a$, a direct object that precedes the Infinitive follows the bound form or $\check{s}a$, and thus, like the Infinitive, is in the genitive case:

ūm kaspim šaqālim iktašdanni 'the day for (of) weighing out the silver has reached me (i.e., has arrived)'; aššum tēm šikarim nadānim ša tašpuram 'concerning the report of giving out the beer, which you (ms) sent me';

ša êm apālim epšā 'do (pl) what is necessary to pay for the grain'.

As is true of the accusative Infinitive, the subject of an Infinitive after a bound form or $\check{s}a$ always follows the bound form of the Infinitive (construction (1)).

When the Infinitive follows a preposition, a noun subject or object may either precede or follow the preposition. When it precedes the preposition, it is in the appropriate case:

with a subject:

mû ina maqātim âm litēr 'when the water(-level) falls he must return the grain';

with an object:

tuppī anniam ina amārim alkam 'on seeing this tablet of mine, come (ms) here'.

Note the following rare example, from the prologue of CH, with both noun subject and noun object:

dannum enšam ana lā habālim 'so that (ana) the strong not oppress (habālum) the weak'.

Usually, if both subject and object are expressed, the subject is a pronoun:

kunukkī anniam ina amārīki 'when you (fs) see (on your seeing) this seal of mine';

šumma šamnum mê ina nadêka iṭbu 'if the oil, when you (ms) added water, sank' (lit., 'if the oil, in your putting water, sank (tebûm)').

When the subject or object noun follows the preposition, it is in the genitive, like the Infinitive:

with an object:

ana $kaspim\ naṣ\bar{a}rim\ l\bar{a}\ teggu$ 'do not (ms) be negligent about protecting the silver';

awīlam šuāti ina êm leqêm ukannūšu 'that man will be convicted of (ina) taking the grain'; ana wardīka šūlîm illik 'he went to fetch (bring up) your (ms) slave';

with a subject (examples not common):

aḥūki ana ṣābim alākim ana ṣērīšu išpuram 'your (fs) brother wrote me for the troop to go to him'.

(In some instances, the subject remains in the nominative:

 $k\bar{\imath}ma$ $aw\bar{\imath}l\hat{u}$ šunu $l\bar{a}$ $napark\hat{\imath}m$ 'so that $(k\bar{\imath}ma)$ those men not leave' $(napark\hat{\imath}m$, see §38.1).)

Thus, when the Infinitive is governed by a preposition, three constructions are possible;

'he went to buy the house'

may be rendered in any of the following ways:

bound form plus genitive ana šâm $b\bar{\imath}tim\ illik$ subject or object before the preposition $b\bar{\imath}tam\ ana\ šâmim\ illik$ subject or object between the preposition ana $b\bar{\imath}tim\ šâmim\ illik$ and the Infinitive

(h) The Infinitive with Adverbial Complements

In addition to being construed with subjects and object, Infinitives, as verbs, may also govern adverbial complements, i.e., adverbs and prepositional phrases; these may precede or follow the Infinitive.

LESSON THIRTY 345

Certain tendencies are observable in the placement of adverbial complements before or after the Infinitive:

when the Infinitive has no subject or object, or when it has a pronominal subject or object, adverbial complements usually precede the Infinitive, except when it is nominative;

when the Infinitive has a noun subject or object, adverbial complements tend to be placed immediately after the subject or object.

Nominative Infinitive (see (b) above):

wašāb aḥīka ina ālim šuāti ul damiq 'it is not good for your (ms) brother to live in that town' (lit., 'the living of your brother in that town is not good').

Accusative Infinitive (see (c) above):

ana GN $er\bar{e}bam$ ul ele^{3} 'I am unable to enter GN'; ana PN $nad\bar{a}nam$ $a\bar{s}purakkim$ 'I wrote to you (fs) to give (it) to PN'; $al\bar{a}k$ $ward\bar{\imath}sa$ ana GN agbi 'I ordered her slave to travel to GN'.

Infinitive dependent on a preposition (see (d) above); the adverbial complement governed by the Infinitive may appear before the preposition that governs the Infinitive:

ana ālim ina erēbim imūt 'he died upon entering the town';

ana bītim ina erēbīya luddin 'I would give (it) when I enter the house' (lit., 'upon my entering').

ana harranim ana waṣêm panīya aškun 'I decided to go out to the road'; between the preposition that governs the Infinitive and the Infinitive:

aššum ana ālim elêm aštaprakkum 'I have written to you (ms) concerning coming up to the town';

after the Infinitive:

ina elê šarrim ana Bābilim aqabbīšum 'when the king goes up to Babylon, I will speak to him';

ana ṭarād ṣuḥārim ana libbi mātim pānam iškunū 'they (m) decided to send the servant to the center of the land'.

Infinitive after δa or a bound form (see (e) above):

arnum kabtum ša ina aplūtim nasāḫim 'a serious offense (arnum) so that he must be removed from the inheritance' (lit., 'a serious offense of removing from the inheritance');

akalšina ša adi Bābilim kašādim šurkib 'load (ms) food for them (f) to get/that they may get as far as Babylon' (lit., 'load their food of arriving as far as B.').

30.2 OB Literary Diction

OB literary texts, which include royal inscriptions, myths, epics, hymns, prayers, laments, and incantations, exhibit in common a set of features that distinguish them from texts such as contracts, laws, letters, and omens. Some of these features are due to a tendency of the scribes to archaize, i.e., to make the texts appear to be older, and, presumably, more august. None of the features listed below is found consistently in literary works, even in individual texts; usually, they alternate with the everyday-speech forms found in non-literary texts. (Some of the features are also occasionally attested in non-literary texts of certain OB dialects.)

(a) Vowel contraction is sometimes not carried out, especially at the end of verbs III–weak: e.g.,

ib-ni-\dot{u}, i.e., ibni\bar{u} 'they (m) built' (for ibn\hat{u}); \dot{s}a ... \dot{u}-ma-al-li-\dot{u}, i.e., \dot{s}a ... umalliu 'which ... he handed over' (for umall\hat{u}).
```

(b) Vowel-harmony, by which α -vowels become e (§7.2), occasionally does not occur:

```
ep \bar{s} \bar{a} t \bar{u} \bar{s} u 'his deeds' (for ep \bar{s} \bar{e} t \bar{u} \bar{s} u).
```

(c) The prepositions ina, ana, and eli may lose their final vowel. The short forms in and, less often, an are found in OB royal inscriptions. Otherwise, in and an are proclitic, with regular assimilation of the n to the first consonant of the following word; the l of el is also sometimes assimilated. The resultant doubling is usually not indicated in the writing, however, so that the prepositions appear as i- and a- (and e- for el). When in and an occur before words beginning with vowels, the n may be written as part of the following word. Examples:

in šarrī (in royal inscriptions) 'among the kings';
i-li-bi-ša for il-libbīša 'within it (f)';
i-ni-li for in ilī 'among the gods';
a-pa-ni-ia for ap-pānīya 'toward me';
el kala ilātim 'more than all the goddesses';
e-ni-ši-i for en-nišī 'above the people';
elni 'above us'.
```

(d) The bound form of the sg. and the fem. pl. before a noun may end in -u, regardless of case; gen. forms ending in -i also occur:

```
nom. nabiu Anim 'the one called (nabûm 'to call', V. Adj.) by An'; acc. naḥbalu tiāmtim 'the net of the sea';
```

gen. mušarbi zikru Bābilim 'the one who makes great (Š Ptcpl.) the name (zikrum, gen.) of Babylon';

gen. ana šīmātu awīlūtim 'to humanity's fate (pl. of šīmtum)'; gen. ana siqri eṭlim 'at the young man's speech (siqrum)'.

The bound form before a suffix in the nom. and acc. may have a short a, even with nouns whose bound forms in prose end in a consonant:

```
nom. rigmašu 'his voice (rigmum)' (for rigimšu);
nom. zamāraša 'her song (zamārum)' (for zamārša).
```

(e) The genitive pronominal suffixes of the 2nd and 3rd persons may appear without their final vowels, especially on nouns in the nom. and acc., less often on gen. nouns. Of the singular forms, this is quite common with 3fs - δa , less so with the 3ms - δu , 2ms -ka, and 2fs -ki; the sing. short forms normally follow the appropriate case-vowel:

```
nom. libbuš 'her heart' (for libbaša);
acc. awātak 'your (ms) word' (for awātka).
```

Examples of shortened pl. suffixes:

The accusative suffixes (on verbs) are only rarely shortened (e.g., $-\check{s}un\bar{u}t$ for $-\check{s}un\bar{u}ti$, $-kun\bar{u}t$ for $-kun\bar{u}ti$).

- (f) Some polysyllabic feminine nouns have alternative bound forms: napšat nišī 'the life of the people' (in prose usually napišti); napšassu 'his life' (in prose usually napištašu).
- (g) The locative- and terminative-adverbial endings (§28.2–3) occur more frequently than in prose.
- (h) The prefix of 3fs verbs is rarely ta- (or te-, tu-) rather than i- (or u-); such forms thus have the same shape as the 2ms:

tattadin 'she has given'; tušatlim 'she granted' (Š šutlumum).
```

(i) A rare conjugational stem occurs, viz., the ŠD, which is not encountered in prose. The forms, which have both a prefixed š and doubling of the middle radical, are given in §38.3; the meaning of the stem is the same as that of the corresponding D or Š:

```
ušrabbi 'he made great' (= urabbi, ušarbi).
```

(j) Main clauses may be negated with $l\bar{a}$ rather than ul:

balāṭam ša tasaḥḥuru lā tutta 'the life you (ms) seek you will not find' (watûm (a) 'to find'). (k) Word order is freer in literary texts. In particular, in some poetic genres (see §33.3), verbs need not occur at the end of their clause (although they do in royal inscriptions, for which see the next section).

inūma ilū ibnû awīlūtam mūtam iškunū ana awīlūtim balātam ina qātīšunu issabtū 'When the gods made humanity, death they decreed for humanity; life they kept in their possession.'

30.3 OB Royal Inscriptions

Royal inscriptions are usually dedicatory texts addressed to a deity or deities for whom the king has rendered a service, such as the rebuilding or repairing of a temple, or the making of an offering. Often the individual sentences or clauses are very long, since they contain extended series of epithets (of both the deities and the king). But otherwise, they offer few problems, and serve as a convenient introduction to literary diction.

LESSON THIRTY 357

LESSON THIRTY-ONE

31.1 The N Stem: Sound Verbs; Verbs I–n; Verbs III–weak

As its name implies, this stem is characterized by an n before the root. In forms that have prefixes (Durative, Perfect, Preterite, Participle), this n stands before another consonant and is therefore assimilated. The other forms begin with na- (ne- in verbs with e).

(a) Sound Verbs

G theme:	a– u class	a class	u class	i class
Infinitive:	naprusum	nas $butum$	nas hurum	napqudum
Durative:	ipparras	iṣṣ $abbat$	is sahhar	ippaqqid
Perfect:	ittapras	ittas bat	ittas har	ittapqid
Preterite:	ipparis	iṣṣ $abit$	is saber	ippaqid
Pret. 3mp:	$ipparsar{u}$	i ṣṣ $abtar{u}$	$issahrar{u}$	$ippaqdar{u}$
Imperative:	napris	nas bit	nasher	napqid
Participle:	mupparsum	muṣṣa $btum$	mussa brum	muppaqdum bound form:	mupparis	mussabit	mussa her	muppaqid
Verbal Adj.:	naprusum	nas $butum$	nashurum	napqudum
V. Adj. base:	naprus	nas but	nashur	napqud

Note particularly the following features:

- (1) The N Stem, unlike the D and Š, is based on the G stem. Thus, the personal prefixes of the Durative, Perfect, and Preterite are i-, ta-, a-, ni- as in the G (as opposed to u-, tu-, etc., in the D and Š).
- (2) Further, the vowel class of an N verb depends in part on that of the corresponding G verb. If the G verb is a–u, a, or u class, the N is a–i class (as in the D and Š); if the G verb is i, the N also has i in both Durative and Preterite. Note that this means the N Preterite (and thus the Imperative as well) has i in all cases. In the N, the vowel of the Perfect is the same as that of the Durative, as in the G (and unlike in the D and Š), as in Dur. ipparras, Perf. ittapras. (E-type verbs may, as expected, exhibit e for a, as in Durative $i\check{s}\check{s}ebber$. An exception to the patterning of theme-vowels as presented here is the N of $ep\bar{e}\check{s}um$, which in addition to forms with the expected e–i pattern exhibits Durative, Preterite, and Perfect forms with theme-vowel u; see §32.1. Other exceptions occur in later dialects.)

- (3) When vocalic suffixes are added to the Preterite, syncope occurs: $3cs\ ipparis$, with Ventive ipparsam; $3mp\ ippars\bar{u}$, etc.
- (4) The base (and ms bound form) of the Participle is mupparis; the fs is mupparištum (s > š before t [§5.4]; bound form mupparsat).
- (5) In the Infinitive and Verbal Adjective, the vowel between R_2 and R_3 is u, as in all the derived stems.
- (6) Some confusion with the G stem is possible if doubling is not indicated in the script: e.g., i-pa-qí-id may be G Dur. ipaqqid, N Dur. ippaqqid, or N Pret. ippaqid.

(b) Verbs I-n

These present no difficulties in the Durative, Preterite, or Participle. In the Perfect, however, the n of the root is not assimilated. In the remaining forms (Imperative, Infinitive, Verbal Adjective), assimilation of the n of the root is apparently optional.

G theme:	a– u , a , or u class	i class
Infinitive:	naqqurum / nanqurum	naddunum / nandunum
Durative:	innaqqar	innadd in Perfect:	ittanqar	ittandin
Preterite:	innaqer	innadin
Imperative:	naqqer/nanqer	naddin / nandin
Participle:	munnaqrum	munnadnum
Verbal Adj.:	naqqurum / nanqurum	naddunum / nandunum
V. Adj. base:	naqqur/nanqur	naddun / nandun

(c) Verbs III-weak

The vowel of the Durative and Perfect is that of the corresponding G, but the Preterite (and thus the Imperative) normally has i. The poorly-attested Verbal Adj. base also has i (rather than u as in the sound verb).

G theme:	i	a	u	e
Infinitive:	$nabn\hat{u}m$	$nakl\hat{u}m$	namnûm	nešmûm / našmûm
Durative:	ibbanni	ikkalla	immannu	iššemme / iššamme
Perfect:	ittabni	ittakla	ittamnu	ittešme / ittašme
Preterite:	ibbani	ikkali	immani	iššemi / iššami
Imperative:	nabni	nakli	namni	$ne\check{s}mi/na\check{s}mi$
Participle: bound form:	mubbanûm mubbani	mukkalûm mukkali	mummanûm mummani	mušš ^e amûm muššemi muššami
Verbal Adj.: V. Adj. base:	nabnûm nabni	$nakl\hat{u}m \ nakli(?)$	namnûm namni(?)	nešmûm našmûm nešmi našmi(?)

(d) Below are full paradigms of the N stems of $par\bar{a}sum~(a-u), nad\bar{a}num$ (i), kalûm (a), and šemûm (e).

31.2 The Meaning of the N Stem

(1) Passive of active-transitive G verbs: e.g., isṣabbat 'he will be seized';

ittaškanū 'they (m) have been placed';
tuppum iššebir 'the tablet was broken'.

Note that the agent of a passive verb ('broken by someone') is not usually expressed in Akkadian.

N forms of $\check{sapa}rum$ and $qab\hat{u}m$ (and similar verbs) sometimes appear without a subject expressed but with a complement expressed by ana or a dative suffix; a smooth translation may require making the complement the subject in English:

ana awīlê šunūti aššum alākim ittašpar 'those men have been commanded to go' (lit., 'it has been commanded to those men to go');
aššum pūḥ eqlīya apālīya iqqabīkunūšim 'you (mp) were ordered to pay me my substitute field' (lit., 'it was ordered to you to pay').

(2) Middle. Middle verbs in English look like active transitive verbs, but take no object, as in 'the gate opened' (middle) vs. 'she opened the gate' (active transitive; the subject of a middle verb is the object of a corresponding transitive verb); compare

 $b\bar{a}bam\ ipte$ 'she opened the gate' and $b\bar{a}bum\ ippeti$ 'the gate opened' (or 'the gate was opened');

tuppam išebber 'he will break the tablet' and tuppum iššebber 'the tablet will break' (or 'will be broken').

There is a significant difference in meaning between finite N forms and predicative forms of the G Verbal Adjective. It may be said that the finite N forms of transitive G verbs turn G Verbal Adjectives into passive or middle action verbs ('is/was broken' \rightarrow 'gets/got broken, breaks/broke'): a finite N form connotes a process, an action (albeit passive), whereas a predicative G Verbal Adj. connotes only the condition or state resulting from the action of the G verb. Compare narûm šaţer 'the stela is/was inscribed', but narûm iššaṭṭar 'the stela will be/is being inscribed', narûm iššater 'the stela was inscribed'.

In the first example the construction in English is the verb 'to be' followed by an adjective, while in the second and third the verb in English is the passive 'to be inscribed', which describes an action. Another set of examples:

bābum peti 'the gate is/was open', but $b\bar{a}bum\ ippette$ 'the gate is being/will be opened' or 'the gate is opening/will open',

 $b\bar{a}bum\ ippeti$ 'the gate was opened' or 'the gate opened'.

(3) Rarely, the N is reflexive, as in nashurum 'to turn (oneself)'.

(4) The N stem of $ba\check{s}\hat{u}m$ means 'to come into existence, appear, become available'

N forms of other stative verbs are rare; those that do occur function in part like N forms of active verbs, providing fientive (action) counterparts to the G Verbal Adj. (see (2)), as in šumšu immassik 'his name will become bad'; cf. maskum 'bad', Verbal Adj. of a verb masākum that does not otherwise occur in the G.

Such forms are labeled "ingressive" in some grammars; they have essentially the same meanings as finite G forms (see §22.1, p. 221).

(5) A few verbs occur lexically in the N stem, i.e., have the N rather than the G as their basic form. Others occur very rarely in the G, but normally in the N. The Š stem is used as the causative of such verbs, as expected.

 $naprušum \ N$ (not in G)'to fly'; $\check{s}upru\check{s}um \ \check{S}$ 'to cause to fly, to rout'; $pal\bar{a}sum \ G \ (a-u)$ 'to see' (rare); $naplusum \ N$ 'to see, look at'.

31.3 The Genitive: Constructions and Functions

(a) Constructions

The two major means of subordinating one noun to another were presented early in this textbook:

- (1) The governing noun in the bound form (cf. §8.3): $m\bar{a}r$ šarrim.
- (2) The use of the determinative pronoun &angle a in apposition after the governing noun (&angle 2.3): $m\bar{a}rum \&angle a$ arrim. This construction may occur in any situation in which the bound form is used. There are, however, certain situations in which it is preferred, or in which it must be used:
 - (i) when there is more than one governing noun:mārum u mārtum ša šarrim 'the son and daughter of the king';
 - (ii) when there is more than one governed noun:
 - $eqlum\ ša\ dayy\bar{a}nim\ u\ ah\bar{\imath}\bar{s}u$ 'the field of the judge and his brother'

(unless the governed nouns are seen as a unit by the writer: $b\bar{e}l$ $\S{am}\hat{e}~u~ersetim$ 'lord of heaven and earth');

(iii) to clarify which noun an adjective modifies:

ina bītim ṣeḥrim ša mārim 'in the small house of the son', vs., e.g., ina bīt mārim ṣeḥrim in which ṣeḥrum could modify either bītum or mārum:

There are three other constructions to express a genitive relationship, none of which occurs frequently.

(3) δa plus genitive noun before the governing noun; δa in this construction must usually be translated 'worth, equivalent to':

ša šinā šiqil kaspim šamnam šūbilam 'send (ms) me oil worth two shekels of silver'.

This construction also occurs in poetry as a stylistic variant of the more common first two constructions.

(4) The addition of a 3rd person pronoun to the governing noun, a rare construction denoting marked determination of the governing noun; it is also rarely used when there is more than one governing noun. The suffix agrees in gender and number with the governed noun(s):

aḥūša ša šarratim 'the (very) brother of the queen';
ana maḥīrātīšunu ša kaspīšu u ṣibtīšu 'at the (very) value(s) of his silver and its interest'.

baqrūšunu u rugummûšunu ša mārī 'the children's claims and suits'.

(5) In poetry only (with very few exceptions), probably for stylistic reasons, the previous construction occasionally occurs with the governing and governed nouns reversed in order:

 $\check{s}a\ \check{s}arratim\ ah\bar{u}\check{s}a$ 'the queen's brother'; $\check{s}a\ ni\check{s}\bar{\imath}\ b\bar{e}l\bar{u}\check{s}ina$ 'the people's rulers'.

(b) Functions

The function or purpose of a noun (or pronoun) in the genitive dependent on another noun is to delimit, specify, or explain that noun more precisely in some way. Usually, the genitive relationship may be translated 'of', and most Akkadian examples correspond to English usage: e.g., to express possession: bēl bītim 'the owner of the house';

content: karpat karānim 'a jug (karpatum) of wine'; tēm eqlim 'the report of/about the field';

material: kakki hurāṣim 'a weapon of gold'.

Akkadian uses the genitive more frequently than does English, for example, to specify the material out of which something is made, or the nature, quality, or condition of something. In these and other instances, English normally prefers an adjective to a genitive noun; kakki hurāṣim, for example, may also be rendered 'a gold(en) weapon'. Other examples:

šībūt sarrātim 'false testimony' ('testimony of falsehoods');dayyān kīttim 'a just judge' ('a judge of justice').

A genitive of respect is sometimes found after a bound form adjective (cf. English 'swift of foot', 'hard of hearing'); examples are bēlum rapaš uznim 'an intelligent lord' (lit., 'a lord wide of ear'; note the poetic Ištar rapšat uznim 'the intelligent Ištar');

 $\bar{s}alm\bar{a}t \ qaqqadim$ 'the black-headed ones' (lit., 'the black ($\bar{s}almum$) ones (fp, referring to $ni\bar{s}\bar{u}$) with respect to the head', a common designation for the people of Sumer and Akkad);

 $saniq\ p\bar{\imath}\check{s}u$ '(someone) whose speech is verified' (lit., 'one proven with regard to his speech');

tuppum kanik Bābilim 'a tablet sealed in Babylon'.

In a very rare variation of this construction, found in literary texts, the adjective is not in the bound form but in the free form acc., regardless of its syntactic case:

rapšam uznim instead of rapaš uznim.

EXERCISES

A. VOCABULARY 31.

Verbs:

- belûm G (e) 'to go out, be extinguished'; bullûm D 'to put out, extinguish (fire), destroy'.
- habātum G (a–u) 'to rob, plunder'; naḥbutum N passive; note also habbātum (habbāt) 'robber'; hubtum (hubut) 'robbery'.

LESSON THIRTY-TWO

32.1 The N Stem: Verbs I-2; Verbs I-w; Verbs II-Weak

(a) Verbs I-2

In all N forms of these verbs, the initial radical \bar{j} is replaced by an n, which is not assimilated to a following radical. Thus, the forms look like N forms of verbs I–n. In verbs I–e, of course, a-vowels become e. Below are the N forms of $ah\bar{a}zum$ (a-u), $ez\bar{e}bum$ (i), $ep\bar{e}\check{s}um$ (e-u), and $en\hat{u}m$ (also III–i); note that finite N forms of $ep\bar{e}\check{s}um$ may have either the expected theme-vowels (e-i) or u between R_2 and R_3 .

Infinitive:	nanhuzum	nenzubum	nenpušum	nennûm
Durative:	innahhaz	innezzib	inneppeš/inneppuš	innenni
Perfect:	ittan haz	ittenzib	ittenpeš/ittenpuš	ittenni
Preterite:	innahiz	innezib	innepiš/innepuš	inneni
Imperative:	nanhiz	nenzib	nenpiš/nenpuš	nenni
Participle:	munnahzum	munnezbum	munnepšum	munnenûm
Verbal Adj.:	nanhuzum	nenzubum	nenpušum	nennûm
V. Adj. base:	nanhuz	nenzub	nenpuš	nenni(?)

In a very small group of verbs I–³, the ³ is preserved as a strong (regular) consonant throughout the N paradigm: e.g., $ad\bar{a}rum$ G (a–u) 'to fear'; na³durum N 'to be feared': Durative i³addar, Perfect itta³dar, Preterite i³adder, etc.

As usual, verbs originally I–y (see §8.1(c)) have forms corresponding to e-class verbs I– $^{\circ}$: e.g., Durative $innezzi\hbar$ 'he girds himself' ($ez\bar{e}\hbar um$ (I–y; i) 'to gird'); but forms without prefixes, such as the Verbal Adjective, have a long vowel rather than n before R_2 : $n\bar{e}zu\hbar at$ 'she is girded' (vs., e.g., $nenpu\check{s}um$).

(b) Verbs I-w

As far as N forms of these are attested, they are regular; thus, the w is doubled (-ww-) in the Durative and Preterite, the only forms known. The forms of $bab\bar{a}lum$ have -bb- rather than -ww-.

Durative: iwwallad ibbabbal
Preterite: iwwalid ibbabil

Occasionally, especially in later texts, -ww- is replaced by -²²-; thus, Durative $i^{22}allad$, Preterite $i^{22}allad$.

(c) Verbs II-Weak

These are poorly attested in the N paradigm. The Durative and Preterite forms resemble their G counterparts, but with doubling of the first radical ($\langle nR_1 \rangle$).

```
Durative: iddâk iqqīaš iššâm innêr iddukk\bar{u} iggiššū 3mp:
                                                                                         i\check{s}\check{s}amm\bar{u} innerrar{u}
Preterite:
                         [idd\bar{\imath}k/idd\bar{\imath}k^?] iqq\bar{\imath}\check{s} i\check{s}\check{s}\bar{a}m inn\bar{e}r 3mp:
                           [idd\bar{\imath}k\bar{u}/idd\bar{u}k\bar{u}^{2}] iqq\bar{\imath}s\bar{u} i\check{s}\check{s}\bar{a}m\bar{u} inn\bar{e}r\bar{u}
```

No Preterite forms of Verbs II—w are attested. Note that the Preterite forms of verbs II—a and II—e have the theme-vowel of the G verb, rather than i like the N Preterites of other verb types.

32.2 Noun Patterns

All native Akkadian nouns and adjectives (i.e., those that are not loans from other languages) may be described in terms of their root and a pattern (using R_1 , R_2 , R_3 , etc., or the paradigmatic root p–r–s; cf. §3.1). Thus, e.g., kalbum is a pars noun of the root k–l–b, šeriktum a pirist noun (or piris plus fem. t; with e < i) of the root š–r–k; $b\bar{e}lum$ a pars noun of the root b– 34 –l (or b– c –l, with $^c > \emptyset$). Most noun patterns are not classifiable with regard to meaning, but a few of them are, at least to some extent, and these are listed below, with examples. (Note: paradigmatic verbal noun patterns such as $p\bar{a}ris$ [the G Participle], $\check{s}uprus$ [the Š Infinitive and Verbal Adj.], are not included in the list.)

pirs nouns may frequently be associated with a passive nuance: e.g.,

```
*siprum 'message, task' (something sent, assigned; cf. *sapārum);
*izbum 'malformed foetus' (something abandoned; cf. *ezēbum);
*siqlum originally 'weight' (cf. *saqālum);
*pilšum 'breach' (cf. *palāšum);
*kiṣrum 'knot, constriction, payment' (cf. *kaṣārum).
```

The feminine counterpart of pirs is pirist:

```
isiḫtum 'assignment' (cf. esēḥum);
šeriktum 'gift' (cf. šarākum);
șibittum 'prison, imprisonment' (cf. ṣabātum);
qibītum 'speech' (cf. qabûm).
```

For roots II—weak and, usually, for roots III—weak, the pattern is $p\bar{s}$. For many roots I—w, the pattern is R_2iR_3t , i.e., a feminine noun without the initial w. Examples:

```
dīnum 'decision, judgment' (cf. diānum);
        šīmum 'price, purchase' (cf. šâmum);
        pītum 'opening' (cf. petûm);
        sibtum 'interest' (cf. waṣābum);
         biltum 'load, burden, tribute' (something carried; cf. babālum);
        ṣītum 'coming forth, produce' (cf. waṣûm).
purs nouns (pūs for roots II– and III–weak) are often abstracts of adjectival roots; the feminine counterpart is purust:
         šulmum 'well-being' (cf. šalāmum);
        rupšum 'width' (cf. rapāšum);
         mursum 'sickness' (cf. marāsum);
        tūbum 'goodness, satisfaction'; fem. pl. tūbātum 'gladness, voluntariness, friendly relations' (cf. țiābum);
        h\bar{u}dum 'joy' (cf. had\hat{u}m);
        puluhtum 'fear' (cf. palāḥum);
        nukurtum 'hostility, war' (cf. nakārum).
parVst, i.e., the feminine of Verbal Adjectives, is often used substantively, denoting an instance of the adjectival nuance, or its abstract:
         damiqtum 'good luck, favor' (cf. damāqum);
        lemuttum 'evil' (cf. lemēnum);
        maruštum 'difficulty' (cf. marāsum).
    From roots II–weak, the form is p\overline{V}st:
         qīštum 'gift' (cf. qiāšum);
        tābtum 'kindness' (cf. tiābum).
parrās nouns denote occupations or habitual activities:
         dayyānum 'judge' (cf. diānum);
        šarrāqum 'thief' (cf. šarāqum);
        errēšum 'cultivator, tenant farmer' (cf. erēšum b).
purussā<sup>2</sup> forms denote systematic, often legal, activities:
        purussûm 'legal decision' (cf. parāsum);
        rugummûm 'legal claim' (cf. ragāmum);
        uzubbûm 'divorce(-payment)' (cf. ezēbum).
ipris is a less common variant of pirs; certain ipris nouns occur only as plurals:
         ipterū (always pl.) 'ransom' (cf. paṭārum);
        imtû (always pl.) 'depletion, losses' (cf. maţûm). mapras(t) nouns denote place, instrument, or time, although they cannot be more precisely categorized. Some examples:

```
\label{eq:maskanum} \textit{maskanum} \textit{ `threshing floor, lot, location' (cf. $\it sak\bar{a}num)$;} \\ \textit{massarum} \textit{ `watch, garrison' (cf. $\it nasarum)$;} \\ \textit{m\bar{u}s}\hat{u}m\textit{ `exit, opening' ($\it *mawsa^2um$; cf. $\it wasam)$;} \\ \textit{m\bar{e}resum} \textit{ `cultivated land' (cf. $\it eresum$ b)}.
```

When the root contains one of the labial consonants b, m, or p, the m of the prefix is replaced by n:

```
narkabtum 'chariot' (cf. rakābum);
narāmum 'beloved' (cf. râmum);
našpakum 'storage area' (cf. šapākum);
nēmettum 'tribute, tax' (cf. emēdum).
```

taprās nouns are associated with the Gt stem (§33.1):

```
tamḫārum 'battle' (mitḫurum 'to oppose one another', Gt of maḫā-rum);
```

 $t\bar{a}h\bar{a}zum$ 'battle, combat' (cf. $ah\bar{a}zum$).

taprīs and taprist nouns are associated with the D stem:

talmīdum 'student' (cf. lummudum 'to teach');
tarbītum 'offspring' (cf. rubbûm 'to rear');
tēliltum 'purification' (cf. ullulum 'to purify');
têrtum 'command, order' (<*taw²ertum; cf. wu²²urum 'to commission').

32.3 Sumerian Loanwords

In addition to its lexical base inherited from common Semitic, Akkadian has a large number of loanwords from Sumerian. Nearly all such loans are nouns, although other parts of speech, such as the interjection gana 'come (on)!', are also sporadically attested.

The forms borrowed may be either discrete words or compounds in Sumerian:

```
agûm 'crown', Sum. a g a;
pišannum 'basket, box', Sum. p i s a n;
ekallum 'palace', Sum. é . g a l 'large (g a l) house (é)'; tupšarrum 'scribe', Sum. d u b . s a r (d u b 'tablet'; s a r 'to write').
```

Sumerian words ending in a vowel were usually borrowed into Akkadian as nouns with bases ending in a vowel; Sumerian final /a/ normally results in an Akkadian base in $-\bar{a}$:

```
kirûm (base kiri-) 'garden', Sum. kiri6;tappûm (base tappā-) 'partner', Sum. tab.ba (note also the Akkadian abstract tappûtum).
```

Sumerian words ending in a consonant usually appear in Akkadian with the final consonant doubled; less often, the vowel before the final consonant is lengthened instead. Examples:

kurrum 'kor measure', Sum. g u r;
parakkum 'sanctuary', Sum. b a r a g;
see also ekallum, pišannum, tupšarrum, above;
kārum 'embankment, harbor', Sum. k a r.

Sumerian had a number of phonemes not found in Akkadian, such as the nasal velar $/\tilde{g}/$ (English [ng]), as in sa \tilde{g} (\tilde{g}) a (i.e., sanga) = Akkadian $\tilde{s}ang\hat{u}m$ 'temple administrator'; words containing such phonemes may have byforms in Akkadian, as in hegallum or hengallum 'abundance', Sum. hé. g̃ á l'let there be'.

It will also be noted that Sumerian consonants transliterated as voiced (e.g., /b/, /g/) may appear in Akkadian as the voiceless counterpart (p, k, respectively), as in ekallum, kurrum, parakkum, etc. Other differences are the result of sound changes, especially vowel harmony, that operated in Sumerian after Akkadian had borrowed certain words:

siparrum 'bronze', Sum. z a b a r, earlier z i b a r.

Certain nouns that appear, on the basis of their logograms, to be Sumerian loans into Akkadian, are in fact Akkadian loans into Sumerian, with the Sumerian form serving in turn as a logographic writing in Akkadian:

 $man\hat{u}m$ 'mina' (cf. $man\hat{u}m$ 'to count') \rightarrow Sum. m a . n a; $tamk\bar{a}rum$ 'merchant' (cf. $mak\bar{a}rum$ 'to do business' [rare], $makk\bar{u}rum$ 'property') \rightarrow Sum. d a m . g a r a $_3$.

EXERCISES

A. VOCABULARY 32.

Verbs:

amārum G see Lesson 8; nanmurum N 'to be seen, found, inspected; to appear, occur; to meet (see one another)'.

dabābum G (u) 'to speak, talk, tell; to discuss; to plead (in court); to complain, protest'; Infinitive as noun: 'speech, statement; plea, lawsuit; rumor'; dubbubum D 'to complain (to), entreat, bother'.

LESSON THIRTY-THREE

33.1 The Gt Stem

(a) Form

(1) Sound Verbs

Infinitive: pitrusum Durative: iptarrasImperative: pitrasPerfect: Participle: iptatrasmuptarsumVerbal Adj.: Preterite: iptaras pitrusum Pret. 3mp: $iptars \bar{u}$ V. Adj. base: pitrus

The Gt stem has an infixed -t- between R_1 and R_2 .

Durative, Perfect, and Preterite. The prefixes are those of the G stem. The theme-vowel between R_2 and R_3 in all three forms (and in the Imperative) is that of the corresponding G Durative. The Gt Preterite for all verb types is identical in form to the corresponding G Perfect; thus, vowel syncope occurs when a vocalic ending is added: iptarsam, $iptars\bar{u}$. Whether a form is Gt Preterite or G Perfect can be determined only from context; it should be noted, however, that Gt forms are relatively rare. The Durative differs from the Preterite only in that, as usual, it has a doubled middle radical. The Perfect has two infixed -t-s.

The base (and ms bound form) of the Participle is muptaris; the fem. sg. is muptarištum ($s > \check{s}$ before t; see §5.4), bound form muptarsat.

The -t- of the Gt stem undergoes the same changes as the -t- of the Perfect: it is assimilated to a preceding d, t, s, s, or z, as in Durative iṣṣabbat (note that confusion with the N Durative is possible with this form).

In the forms without prefixes (Infinitive, Imperative, and Verbal Adj.), these consonants and the -t- undergo metathesis; thus, e.g.,

Infinitive: tişbutum Durative: issabbatImperative: tisbatPerfect: is satbatParticiple: mussabtumPreterite: is sabatVerbal Adj.: tisbutum Pret. 3mp: $issabt\bar{u}$ V. Adj. base: tisbut

The -t- is also assimilated when d, t, s, s, z, or even \check{s} is the middle radical and follows the -t- immediately, in the Infinitive, Imperative, and Verbal Adj.: e.g., hissas 'consider (ms)!' (Imperative, *hitsas; from hasasum (a–u)); issar 'guard yourself (ms)!' (Imperative, *(n)itsar; from nasarum); pissusum 'to anoint oneself' (Infinitive, *pitsusum).

After g, -t- becomes -d-, as in Perfect forms: e.g.,

Preterite $igder\hat{u}$ 'they (m) sued one another' $(ger\hat{u}m)$.

(2) Verbs I–n. In forms with prefixes, the n is assimilated to the following infix. In the remaining forms, in which n should stand first, it is omitted.

Infinitive:	it qurum
Durative:	ittaqqar	Imperative:	it qar
Perfect:	ittat qar	Participle:	muttaqrum
Preterite:	ittaqar	Verbal Adj.:	it qurum
Pret. 3mp:	$ittaqrar{u}$	V. Adj. base:	it qur

(3) Verbs III–weak. These offer no difficulties; note the III–e forms:

Infinitive: šitmûm Durative: Imperative: ištemme šitme Participle: Perfect: ištetme muštemûm Verbal Adj.: Preterite: išteme šitmûm ištemû V. Adj. base: šitmu Pret. 3mp:

(4) Verbs I- 2 . In forms with prefixes, the loss of 3 immediately before the -t- infix has resulted in the lengthening of the preceding vowel. The remaining forms begin with a (or e) rather than the i expected from the sound verb. The Gt of $al\bar{a}kum$, as might be expected, is irregular, an extra -t- replacing the long vowel of other I- 3 verbs (cf. the G Perfect ittalak).

I– a	I–e, III–weak		$al\bar{a}kum$
Infinitive:	athuzum	$etl\hat{u}m$	atlukum
Durative:	$ar{\imath} tahhaz$	$ar{\imath}telli$	ittallak
Perfect:	$ar{\imath} tathaz$	$ar{\imath}tetli$	ittatlak
Preterite:	$ar{\imath} tahaz$	$ar{\imath}teli$	ittalak
Imperative:	athaz	etli	atlak
Participle:	$mar{u}tahzum$	$mar{u}tel\hat{u}m$
Verbal Adj.:	athuzum	$etl\hat{u}m$	_
V. Adj. base:	athuz	etlu	_

(5) Verbs I–w. Apart from the Durative and Preterite of waṣûm, these are poorly attested in the Gt. With the exception of the Imperative, the forms resemble the Gt of verbs I–n (cf. the G Perfect of verbs I–w). Some of the forms, especially the Imperative, may belong rather to derivative roots, such as $tar\bar{a}dum$ and $tas\hat{u}m$ (cf. $bab\bar{a}lum$ and $tab\bar{a}lum$).

	I-w	I−w, II−ṣ, III−weak
Infinitive:	itrudum	i ṣṣ $\hat{u}m^{?}$
Durative:	ittarrad	ittaṣṣ i
Perfect:	ittatrad	[ittassi]

Imperative:	tarad?	taș i ?
Participle:	muttardum	$mutta$ ş $\hat{u}m$
Verbal Adj.:	itrudum	i ṣṣ $\hat{u}m^{?}$
V. Adj. base:	itrud	iṣṣu?

(6) Verbs II-weak. The Gt stem for these verbs is not well attested, apart from a few notable exceptions. The forms of $k\hat{a}num$, given below, represent a composite of attested forms of Verbs II-u (II-w). As representative of Verbs II-i (II-y) is presented the Gt of $ni\bar{a}lum$ G 'to lie down', which is also I-n; the Gt has the same meaning, but also, 'to lie with someone (sexually)'.

	II-u(w)	II-i(y)	$II-a(^{\circ})$
G:	$k\hat{a}num$	$niar{a}lum$	$\check{s}\hat{a}lum$
Infinitive:	$kitar{u}num$	$it\bar{u}lum/ut\bar{u}lum$	$\check{s}itar{u}lum$

Imperative:	[kitūn] [kitūnā]	itīl itīlā	šitāl šitālā
Participle: Verbal Adj.: V. Adj. base:	muktīnum kitūnum kitūn	$muttar{l}um \ [itar{u}lum] \ [itar{u}l]$	muštālum šitūlum šitūl

Note: The Gt Infinitive of $ni\bar{a}lum$ has a byform, $ut\bar{u}lum$, the result of irregular vowel harmony. The Gt stem of this verb is listed separately in the dictionaries.

(b) Meaning

The Gt is less common than the other derived stems, and occurs for only a rather small percentage of Akkadian verbal roots. Further, among the roots in which the Gt is found, the number of attestations is usually not large, with a few important exceptions. The main functions of the Gt are indicated below (following Streck 2003, Kouwenberg 2005). The examples given here should be learned.

(1) Reciprocal:

mitgurum 'to agree (with one another), come to an agreement';
mithurum 'to meet/face/confront/oppose one another, to correspond (to one another), be of equal size';
mithusum 'to fight, go to war' (i.e., 'to strike one another)';
ittulum (natālum) 'to look at/face/point toward one another';
ritkubum 'to mate; to lie upon/against one another';
tisbutum 'to grasp one another, quarrel; to join/connect with one another'; Verbal Adj. tisbutum 'connected, joined, engaged'.
```

(2) Reflexive. This nuance is less common, but note

piššušum 'to anoint oneself'; šitūlum 'to ponder, deliberate, reflect'; also reciprocal, 'to consult,
     take counsel; to question'.
```

(3) Ingressive. With some verbs of motion, the Gt has an ingressive function; that is, it specifies the beginning of the motion.

```
atlukum 'to start going, be off';
issûm (wasûm) 'to set out, depart'.
```

(In earlier grammars, the Gt of these verbs of motion was said to be "separative," e.g., atlukum as 'to move away'; but the ingressive force is more likely.)

(4) Other. Some Gt verbs do not fall under any of the above: $it^3udum \ (na^3\bar{a}dum)$ 'to heed, watch carefully'; tizkurum/tisqurum 'to speak' (used like the G in literary texts). $etl\hat{u}m$, Gt of $el\hat{u}m$, only in the phrase $ina\ X\ etl\hat{u}m$ 'to forfeit X'.

33.2 The Transitive parsāku Construction

It has been seen that all verbal roots have a Verbal Adjective (§4.3), the meaning of which is determined by the semantic nature of the root: passive for transitive verbs, resultative for active intransitive verbs, and descriptive for stative verbs. The Verbal Adjective may occur attributively, with markers of gender, number, and case to agree with the modified noun (§4.2), or as a predicate, with an enclitic subject pronoun suffixed to the base of the adjective (§22.1).

Transitive verbs may exhibit a second construction that is identical in form to the predicative Verbal Adjective construction (i.e., $pars\bar{a}ku$, $pars\bar{a}ta$, $pars\bar{a}ti$, paris, parsat, etc.), yet transitive rather than passive, as in šīmam maḥrātunu 'you (mp) are in receipt of the purchase price';

mišil mana kaspam kaliāku 'I have half a mina of silver in reserve';
ṭuppaka našû 'they (m) have your (ms) tablet in their possession'.

Although such transitive constructions are identical in appearance to the predicative Verbal Adjective construction, the base of these forms is not the Verbal Adjective. In fact, the base paris- of the transitive forms has no independent existence, and does not occur attributively (with case endings, etc.); the transitive forms occur only with the suffixed subject pronoun ($pars\bar{a}ku$, paris- ϕ , etc.), as predicates of their clauses. What the transitive $pars\bar{a}ku$ forms do share with the predicative Verbal Adjectives is the predication of a condition or state rather than a process (i.e., of 'being' rather than 'becoming'). Just as in $u\check{s}ib$ 'I sat down = became seated' vs. $wa\check{s}b\bar{a}ku$ 'I am/was seated', an analogous relationship obtains between transitive $pars\bar{a}ku$ forms and the Preterite, Durative, and Perfect forms that correspond to them:

amhur 'I received' vs. transitive mahrāku 'I am in receipt of'.

Compare the following sets of examples:

bītam iṣbat 'she took possession of the house';
bītam iṣabbat 'she will take possession of the house';
bītam iṣṣabat 'she has taken possession of the house';
but bītam ṣabtat 'she is/was in possession of (i.e., owns) the house'.
aššatam īḥuz 'he took a wife, got married';

aššatam iḫḫaz 'he will take/is taking a wife, he will get/is getting married';

 $a\check{s}\check{s}atam\ \bar{\imath}ta\check{h}az$ 'he has taken a wife, has gotten married';

but aššatam ahiz 'he has/had a wife, he is/was married'.

While examples of the transitive $pars\bar{a}ku$ construction are attested with many transitive verbs, it is common only with a relatively small group of verbs that for the most part denote holding, grasping, or seizing, especially the following (see the examples given above):

aḥāzum: aḥīz 'he has, is in possession of';
leqûm: leqi 'he is in receipt of, has';
maḥārum: maḥir 'he is in receipt of, has';
našûm: naši 'he has in his possession, carries, bears responsibility for';
sabātum: sabit 'he is in possession of, has, owns, is occupied/busy with'.

Although transitive $pars\bar{a}ku$ forms are indistinguishable in form from predicate Verbal Adjectives, there is seldom any ambiguity as to which of the forms is intended in any given context: simply put, if there is a direct object present, a $pars\bar{a}ku$ form is the transitive variety; otherwise, a $pars\bar{a}ku$ form is the familiar predicate Verbal Adjective (cf. English, where the absence or presence of a direct object may mark a verb as middle or transitive: 'he turned' vs. 'he turned the page'):

bītum ṣabit 'the house is/was owned (is/was held in possession)'; bītam ṣabit 'he owns/owned (is/was in possession of) the house'.
```

šīpātum maḥrā 'the wool is/was received';
šīpātim maḥrā 'they (f) are in receipt of the wool'.
```

In grammars of Akkadian in which the predicate Verbal Adjectives are called "statives", transitive $pars\bar{a}ku$ forms are termed active statives.

33.3 Akkadian Poetry

The principles of composition of Akkadian poetry are still not fully understood. What is presented here relies heavily on Buccellati 1990. Examples are from the OB version of Gilgamesh, tablet II (Pennsylvania tablet; see the Supplementary Reading beginning on p. 475).

Poetic lines (verses) regularly end in a trochee, that is, a stressed syllable followed by an unstressed syllable:

tammaršū-ma taḥaddu átta 'you will see him and rejoice; eṭlūtum unaššaqū šēpī́šu 'the young men will kiss his feet' (i 20–21).

Exceptions to this convention are

(a) words in which the final syllable is ultraheavy as the result of vowel contraction; these ultraheavy vowels may be considered to contain a virtual trochee; thus, e.g., in the following example, $\check{s}ad\hat{u}$ is thought of and used as though [$\check{s}ad\check{u}\check{u}$]; ina ṣēri iwwalid-ma urabbīšu šad \hat{u} 'he was born on the steppe, and the hill-country raised him' (i 18–19);

(b) proper names.

Apart from the requirement of a trochee at the end of a line, Akkadian poetry is based not on patterns of word stress or length of syllables or number of syllables (unlike, for example, Greek, Latin, or much English poetry), but rather on syntactic stress units. The building blocks of the system are, in increasing order of size:

Word: Words may be classified as metrical or non-metrical; non-metrical words are prepositions, particles (including negative adverbs), δa , and coordinating conjunctions, while all other words are metrical.

Foot: A foot has one major stress (accent). Feet may be simple or complex; a simple foot has one metrical word and any number of non-metrical words. Each of the following constitutes a simple foot; note that the number of syllables may vary considerably:

sī 'she' (ii 30);
ummī 'my mother' (i 3);
ina birīt eṭlūtim 'among the young men' (i 5);
teddiraššū-ma 'you (ms) will embrace him' (i 22).
```

A complex foot has two metrical words and any number of non-metrical words. The most common constituents of a complex foot are a bound form and its genitive (as in the first example below), but other combinations are also possible, such as a noun and adjective, a verb and its object (second example), a subject and its verb. Any of these combinations, including a genitive chain, may, depending on the requirements of the poetic context, constitute two simple feet rather than one complex foot.

kakkab\bar{u} \check{s}am\bar{a}^{\bar{j}} 'the stars of the sky' (i 6); p\hat{a}\check{s}a \bar{\imath}pu\check{s}am-ma 'opened her mouth' (ii 9).
```

Colon: Cola may contain one or two feet. Odd cola contain one simple foot:

```
inaṭṭal 'he looks' (iii 4);
```

u ippallas 'he sees' (iii 5); other examples appear below.

Even cola contain two feet, one of which is normally simple and the other of which may be simple or complex; in the examples below, the symbol \cup joins the two constituents of complex cola:

simple – simple:

*Uruk mātum 'the land of Uruk' (i 10);

*kīma muti ibašši 'he becomes like a groom' (iii 27);

simple – complex:

*ibbašûnim-ma kakkabū šamā³ī 'the stars of the sky appeared' (i 6); complex – simple:

*aššāt šīmātim irahhi 'he mates with lawful wives' (iv 24).
```

Verse: A verse (or poetic line) usually consists either of two even cola or of three odd cola; other possibilities occur much less often.

```
two even cola:
```

```
Uruk mātum paḥer elīšu 'the land of Uruk was gathered over it' (i10); iššī-ma īnīšu ītamar awīlam 'he looked up, and saw a man' (iv 2–3); eṭlum pīšu īpušam-ma issaqqaram ana Enkidu 'the young man opened his mouth to speak to Enkidu' (iv 12–13);

three odd cola:

akalam iškunū maḥaršu 'food was placed before him' (iii 3); iptēq-ma inaṭṭal u ippallas 'he squinted? to look and see' (iii 4–5); šikaram ana šatêm lā lummud 'he was not used to drinking beer' (iii 8–9).

other: note the following verse of even – odd – even cola:

šam $h\bar{a}k\bar{u}$ -ma_attanallak ina bir $\bar{i}t$ eṭl \bar{u} tim ibbaš \hat{u} nim-ma _kakkab \bar{u} šam \bar{a} \bar{i} 'as I walked around grandly? among the young men, the stars of the sky appeared' (i 4–6).

Larger Units: Verses usually constitute elements in larger poetic units; two verses (poetic lines) comprise a couplet; three comprise a tercet. Less commonly a single verse (line) may stand alone (called a monostich). Still larger units, stanzas, are more difficult to identify.

A poetic text is usually written on a tablet such that a line of text does not contain more than one verse (poetic line) or parts of more than one verse. Thus, the beginning of a verse corresponds to the beginning of a line of text; verses may take up one or two (less often three) lines of a tablet. (See the examples cited above.)

Finally, it is important to note that normal Akkadian word order is not always (or even frequently) followed in poetic texts. In fact, poets often varied the word order deliberately, to create certain effects:

šamnam iptašaš-ma awīliš iwwi ilbaš libšam kīma muti ibašši 'he anointed himself with oil, becoming human, he put on a garment, becoming like a groom' (iii 24–27).

In this couplet, the first verse is Object–Verb : Adjunct–Verb, while the second is Verb–Object : Adjunct–Verb.

33.4 OB Hymns and Prayers

Several types of literary texts sharing similar structure and content may be considered under the general rubric of hymns and prayers. Hymns are essentially texts in which a deity is praised by an anonymous devotee. (One OB hymn, a beautiful literary work praising Ištar, is presented in the exercises of this and the following two lessons.) Prayers include a lovely work addressed to the 'gods of the night' by a diviner (Lesson 38, exercises), laments and penitential psalms, and petitions to gods (see Lesson 36, exercises). Similar to these are incantations against demons, diseases, and the like.

 - $i-ni-\check{s}i$ for $in-ni\check{s}\bar{\iota}$ or, less likely, $in-i\check{s}\check{s}\bar{\iota}$ (cf. line 4).

LESSON THIRTY-FOUR

34.1 The Gtn Stem

(a) Form

From each of the major stems (i.e., G, D, S, N) is derived a stem characterized by an infixed -tan- between R_1 and R_2 (called Gtn, Dtn, Stn, Ntn, respectively). In each of these stems, the n of this morpheme appears only in the Durative form. All forms of all verb types (except II—weak) have a doubled middle radical. Below are the forms of the Gtn stem for the various verb types.

(1) Sound Verbs

Infinitive:	pitarrusum	Imperative:	pitarras
Durative:	iptanarras	Participle:	muptarrisum
Perfect:	iptatarras	Verbal Adj.:	pitarrusum
Preterite:	iptarras	V. Adj. base:	pitarrus

The personal prefixes are those of the G (and Gt and N).

The theme-vowel for all finite forms is that of the corresponding G Durative; thus, iptanarras, imtanahhas, iptanaqqid, imtanaqqut.

The Gtn Preterite for any verb is formally identical to the corresponding Gt Durative.

The -t- of the infix, as expected, is assimilated to a preceding d, t, s, s, z; after g, the -t- becomes d. Examples:

issanahhur, işşanabbat, iṭṭanarrad, izzanakkar; igdanammar.

(2) Verbs I–n. As in the Gt, the n of the root is assimilated in forms with prefixes (i.e., when the n appears immediately before the -t- of the infix), and lost entirely in the forms in which it would stand first.

Infinitive: itaddunum Imperative: itaddin
Durative: ittanaddin Participle: muttaddinum Perfect: ittataddin Verbal Adj.: itaddunum Preterite: ittaddin V. Adj. base: itaddun

(3) Verbs III–weak. As usual, these offer no problems; presented here is the Gtn paradigm of $ban\hat{u}m$; in verbs III–e, of course, a > e.

Infinitive:	bitannûm	Imperative:	bitanni
Durative:	ibtananni	Participle:	$mubtann \hat{u}m$
Perfect:	ibtatanni	Verbal Adj.:	$bitann\^um$
Preterite:	ibtanni	V. Adj. base:	bitannu

(4) Verbs I–². As in the Gt, forms with prefixes have a lengthened vowel before the infix to compensenate for the loss of the 3 , while the remaining forms begin with a (or e); the Gtn of $al\bar{a}kum$, like its Gt, has -tt- rather than a lengthened vowel in forms with prefixes.

	I–a	I– e	I–e, III–weak	$alar{a}kum$
Infinitive:	atahhuzum	eteppušum	$etell \hat{u}m$	atallukum
Durative:	$ar{\imath} tana b baz$	īteneppeš	$ar{\imath} tenelli$	ittanallak
Perfect:	$ar{\imath} tata b baz$	īteteppeš	$ar{\imath} tetelli$	ittatallak
Preterite:	$ar{\imath} ta b b a z$	īteppeš	$ar{\imath}telli$	ittallak
Imperative:	$ata \underline{h} \underline{h} az$	$eteppe \check{s}$	etelli	atallak
Participle:	$mar{u}tabbizum$	mūteppišum	$mar{u}tell\hat{u}m$	muttallikum
Verbal Adj.:	atahhuzum	eteppušum	$etell \hat{u}m$	atallukum
V. Adj. base:	atahhuz	eteppuš	etellu	atalluk

(5) Verbs I– w. As in the Gt, Gtn forms of verbs I–w resemble those of verbs I–n (i.e., with assimilation of w to the -t- of the infix in forms with prefixes, and with loss of initial w in the other forms).

	\mathbf{I} – w	I– w , III – w eak
Infinitive:	it abbulum	ita ş $\hat{s}\hat{u}m$
Durative:	ittanabbal	ittanassi
Perfect:	it tatabbal	ittataș i
Preterite	ittabbal	itta s s i
Imperative:	itabbal	ita ș i
Participle	muttabbilum	$mutta$ ş \hat{s} $\hat{u}m$
Verbal Adj.:	itabbulum	itaṣṣûm
V. Adj. base:	it abbul	itaṣṣu

(5) Verbs II-weak. Verbs originally II-w and II-y are poorly attested in the Gtn; finite forms with vocalic suffixes exhibit the familiar doubling of the final radical (cf. G $ik\hat{a}n \sim ikunn\bar{u}$), while the Infinitive and Verbal Adj. have -yy- for the middle radical. In most forms of verbs that were originally II- 3 , the middle 3 is treated as a strong consonant

(although it may not be indicated in the writing, as in $\dot{s}i$ -ta- \dot{u} -lum for Infinitive $\dot{s}ita^{23}ulum$); in some forms, if the vowel on either side of the - 23 - is the same, there may be contraction (writings may be ambiguous, as in $i\dot{s}$ -ta-na-(a-)al for Durative $i\dot{s}tana^{23}al$ or $i\dot{s}tan\hat{a}l$). Below are the attested Gtn forms of verbs II–w (e.g., $k\hat{a}num$), II–y ($qi\bar{a}\dot{s}um$), II– $^{2}(a)$ ($\dot{s}\hat{a}lum$) and a verb II–weak and III–weak, $\dot{s}e^{3}\hat{u}m$ 'to seek' (G like $le^{3}\hat{u}m$; see §21.3(h)) that often occurs in the Gtn with the same meaning.

Infinitive:	kitayyunum	$qitayyu \v sum$	šita⁵³ulum	šite " ûm
Durative: 3mp:	iktanân iktanunnū	iqtanīaš iqtaniššū	$i\check{s}tana$ $^{\circ\circ}al/i\check{s}tan\hat{a}l$ $i\check{s}tana$ $^{\circ\circ}alar{u}/i\check{s}tanallar{u}^?$	ištene ^{∋∋} i / ištenê ištene [∋] °û
Perfect:	?	?	?	?
Preterite	$iktar{u}n^?$	$iqtar{\imath}\check{s}$	$i\check{s}ta$ $^{\circ\circ}al$	ište⁵³i
3mp:	$iktunnar{u}$	$iqti$ š $ar{u}$	$i\check{s}ta$ $^{\circ\circ}alar{u}$	$i\check{s}te^{\circ\circ}\hat{u}$
Imperative:	?	?	$\check{s}ita$ $^{\circ\circ}al$	šite ^{ɔɔ} i/šite ^{ɔɔ} e
Participle	?	?	mu š $ta^{\circ\circ}ilum$	mušte⁵⁵ûm
Verbal Adj.:	[kitayyunum]	[qitayyušum]	$[\check{s}ita^{\circ\circ}ulum]$	$[\check{s}ite^{\imath\imath}\hat{u}m]$
V. Adj. base:	[kitayyun]	[qitayyuš]	$[\check{s}ita^{\circ\circ}ul]$	$[\check{s}ite^{\circ\circ}u]$

(b) Meaning

The Gtn and other -tan- stems have an iterative force; they express repeated, habitual, or continuous action. Gtn forms are extremely frequent, and it is likely that they could be formed at will from any G verb. Some examples:

aštanapparakkim 'I keep writing to you (fs)';
teštemme 'you (ms) heard over and over, constantly';
ištatakkan 'she has placed repeatedly';
mitaqqutum 'to fall again and again'.
```

In certain instances, they may have a distributive force:

 $limtahhar\bar{u}$ 'they (m) should each receive'.

Some examples of the -tan- stems denote the continuation or repetition of an activity until the desired effect is produced:

šuteṣṣī-ma šamaššammī šūbilam 'produce (waṣûm Štn) and dispatch the sesame to me' (AbB 10 204:12–13);

 $\check{s}e^{3}\hat{u}m$ G 'to seek, search, look for'; $\check{s}ite^{33}\hat{u}m$ Gtn, lit., 'to look, search repeatedly' (i.e., until something is found).

Verbs of motion in the Gtn, in addition to the iterative force, may have an ambulatory nuance:

atallukum 'to be in motion, walk about, run around; to live, act'.

The Gtn of adjectival verbs may be augmentative, as in irtabbi 'he grew ever greater, grew greater and greater'; iṣṣeneḥher 'it gets smaller and smaller' (ṣeḥērum 'to become small').

Certain other Gtn verbs may sometimes require a translation differing somewhat from the usual G meaning:

atappulum (apālum) 'to answer, pay repeatedly'; also 'to be responsible for, answer for'; itabbulum (babālum) 'to carry repeatedly'; also 'to manage, direct, organize';

itaššûm (našûm) 'to bear continuously'; also, 'to support, take care of, provide for (someone)'.

34.2 The Partitive Use of ina

The preposition ina may be used partitively, that is, with the meaning 'out of', as in ina êm ša ina qātīkunu ibaššû âm ana bīt Šamaš idnā 'give (mp) grain to the Šamaš temple out of the grain at your disposal'.

In some instances, ina must be rendered 'any of, some of'. Such a phrase occasionally functions as the subject or object of its clause, as in the following examples:

ina aḥḥīša illakūnim-ma iraggumū, šunū-ma ippalū '(should) any of her brothers come and sue, it is they who will pay';

ina eqlim kirîm u bītim ul inaddiššum 'he will not give him any of the field, orchard, or house'.

EXERCISES

A. VOCABULARY 34.

Verbs:

ṣiārum G, rare apart from Verbal Adj. ṣīrum (ṣīr-) 'august, outstanding, first-rank, excellent'.

 $\check{s}e^{\jmath}\hat{u}m$ G (i or e; conjugated like $le^{\jmath}\hat{u}m$, see §21.3(h)) 'to seek, search, look for'; $\check{s}ite^{\jmath\jmath}\hat{u}m$ Gtn frequently used instead of G.

wapûm G (i) 'to appear, become visible'; šūpûm Š 'to proclaim (someone's fame), announce, promulgate (a decree)'; Verbal Adj.

Nouns:

adānum (also adannum; bound form adān, adanni; pl. adānātum, adannātum) 'a specified period of time; a specific date'.

LESSON THIRTY-FIVE

35.1 The Dt Stem

(a) Form

(1) Sound Verbs

Infinitive: putarrusum Imperative: putarris

Durative: uptarras Participle: muptarrisum

Perfect: uptatarris Verbal Adj.: putarrusum

Preterite: uptarris V. Adj. base: putarrus

The Dt stem is based on the forms of the D, with the insertion between R_1 and R_2 of an infixed -t- or -ta-.

The prefixes of the finite forms are those of the D (and Š), i.e., u-, tu-, nu-.

As in the D (and Š), the Durative has a between R_2 and R_3 , while the Preterite, Perfect, and Imperative have i. The Dt Preterite is formally the same as the D Perfect for all verb types. As usual, the Infinitive and Verbal Adjective have u between R_2 and R_3 . The Infinitive, Verbal Adjective, and Imperative also have u between R_1 and R_2 , differing in this respect from the corresponding forms of the Gtn, which have i between R_1 and R_2 . The Dt Participle has the same form as the Gtn Participle (and the Dtn Participle; see below).

The -ta- infix undergoes the usual changes after sibilants, dentals, and g:

ûm ussannaq 'the grain will be inspected'; ligdammirū 'they (m) should be used'.

(2) Verbs I–n. As in the Gt and Gtn stems, the n of the root is assimilated in forms with prefixes, and lost entirely in the forms in which it would stand first (Infinitive, Verbal Adjective, Imperative); the latter resemble the corresponding forms of roots $I-^{3}$ and roots I-w.

Infinitive: utakkurum Imperative: [utakker]
Durative: uttakkar Participle: muttakkerum Perfect: uttatakker Verbal Adj.: utakkurum Preterite: uttakker V. Adj. base: utakkur

(3) Verbs III-weak. Forms from roots other than III–e present no difficulties. In forms from roots III–e, a-vowels may either all remain a or all change to e (except for the usual endings), as in the D stem. Below are Dt forms of $mal\hat{u}m$ and $red\hat{u}m$.

Infinitive:	$mutall\hat{u}m$	rutaddûm/ruteddûm
Durative:	umtalla	urtadda / $urtedde$
Perfect:	umtatalli	urtataddi/urteteddi
Preterite	umtalli	urtaddi/urteddi
Imperative:	mutalli	rutaddi/ruteddi
Participle	$mumtall\hat{u}m$	$murtadd \hat{u}m/murtedd \hat{u}m$
Verbal Adj.:	$mutall\hat{u}m$	$rutadd \hat{u}m / rutedd \hat{u}m$
V. Adj. base:	mutallu	rutaddu/ruteddu

(4) Verbs I–². As expected, forms with prefixes have a lengthened vowel before the infix to compensate for the loss of the 3 ; the remaining forms lack any vestige of the initial consonant, and simply begin with u. In verbs I–e, as in verbs III–e (see 3, above), a-vowels either all remain a or all become e (except for the usual endings).

	I–a	I–e	I– w
Infinitive:	utahhuzum	utappušum / uteppušum	utaššurum
Durative:	$ar{u}tahhaz$	$ar{u}tappareve{s}/ar{u}teppereve{s}$	$ar{u}ta$ šš ar
Perfect:	$ar{u}tatahhiz$	$ar{u}tatappiar{s}$ / $ar{u}teteppiar{s}$	$ar{u}tata\check{s}\check{s}er$
Preterite:	$ar{u}tabbiz$	$ar{u}tappiar{s}$ / $ar{u}teppiar{s}$	$ar{u}t$ ašše r
Imperative:	utahhiz	utappiš / uteppiš	utaššer
Participle:	$mar{u}tabbizum$	$mar{u}tappi$ šu m / $mar{u}teppi$ šu m	$mar{u}ta\check{s}\check{s}erum$
Verbal Adj.:	utahhuzum	utappušum / uteppušum	utaššurum
V. Adj. base:	utahhuz	utappuš/uteppuš	utaššur

- (5) Verbs I– w. In forms with prefixes, the w is lost before the t of the infix, and the vowel of the prefix is lengthened; in the remaining forms, the initial w is lost. All forms therefore have the same shape as the corresponding forms of roots I– 3 , as the paradigm above shows.
- (6) Verbs II–weak. These are patterned on the corresponding D forms (§29.1), with -t- inserted after the initial radical in forms with prefixes (-ta- in Perf.), and -ut- in the Infinitive, Verbal Adjective, and Imperative. As expected, the final radical is doubled whenever a vocalic ending appears.

Infinitive:	kutunnum
Durative:	uktān	Imperative:	kutīn
Dur. 3mp:	uktannū	Imper. pl.:	kutinnā
Perfect:	uktatīn	Participle:	muktinnum
Perf. 3mp:	uktatinnū	Verbal Adj.:	kutunnum
Preterite:	$uktar{\imath}n$	V.Adj. +3ms:	$kutar{u}n$

+3fs:

kutunnat

(b) Meaning

The Dt stem is used as the passive of the D, less often as a reciprocal or reflexive of the D. Thus, the Dt serves with respect to the D as both the N and the Gt serve with respect to the G. Some examples:

Pret. 3mp: $uktinn\bar{u}$

uštallamū 'they (m) will be compensated' (šalāmum);
awâtūya lā uttakkarā 'my words may not be altered' (nakārum); nišū ūtellilā 'the people became purified' (or, 'purified themselves'; elēlum).
```

Theoretically, Dt verbs may be formed from any root that occurs in the D stem; in fact, however, Dt verbs are relatively infrequent. There are, for example, very few Dt verbs attested for roots in which the D stem has the same meaning as the G (where the N is available for the passive and the Gt for the reciprocal).

The verb $\check{s}uta^{""}\hat{u}m$ (root $\check{s}-"$ —weak) 'to be idle' is unusual in that it occurs only in the Dt; it appears only in OB letters, where it is common.

35.2 The Dtn Stem

The Dtn is the iterative form of D verbs. The Durative of the Dtn is marked with the typical -tan- infix: uptanarras. In all other forms, however, the Dtn is identical with the Dt stem given above.

Infinitive:	putarrusum	Imperative:	putarris
Durative:	uptanarras	Participle:	muptarrisum
Perfect:	uptatarris	Verbal Adj.:	putarrusum
Preterite:	uptarris	V. Adi. Base:	putarrus

Apart from Durative forms, whether a given form is Dt or Dtn must be determined on the basis of the context. As a general rule, the Dtn occurs less frequently than the Dt (the Dtn is also relatively less common than the Gtn); further, Dtn forms normally will have a direct object, whereas Dt forms normally will not. Some examples:

awâtīya uktanallamakkim 'I will keep showing you (fs) my words'; $z\bar{\imath}m\bar{\imath}ya$ uttakker \bar{u} 'they (m) kept altering my features ($z\bar{\imath}m\bar{u}$)'; uttanarr \bar{u} 'they (m) keep sending back'.

35.3 Interrogative Sentences

Sentence questions, in which no interrogative pronoun or adverb occurs (such as mannum 'who?', mati 'when?'), normally differ from assertions only in that the word that is the focus of the question (often the verb) receives additional stress. This extra stress is often, though not necessarily, indicated in the script by an extra vowel-sign, as in

- LÚ.MEŠ an-nu-tum A.ŠÀ.MEŠ i-ṣa-ab-ba-tu-ú ú-ul i-ṣa-ab-ba-tu-ú, i.e., $aw\bar{\imath}l\hat{u}$ $ann\hat{u}tum$ $eql\bar{e}tim$ $iṣabbat\hat{u}$ ul $iṣabbat\hat{u}$? 'Should these men take possession of the fields (or) should they not take possession?';
- i-na ki-ma i-na-an-na e-re-šum i-na qá-ba-al e-re-ši-i-im a-na KÁ. DINGIR.RA^{ki} ta-al-la-ka-nim, i.e., ina kīma inanna erēšum; ina qabal erēšîm ana Bābilim tallakānim? 'Right now is the (time of) cultivating; will you (pl) come to Babylon in the middle of the cultivating?';
- rēqet ekletum would mean 'Darkness is far away' (rēqum 'distant'); but the extra vowel sign in re-qé-e-et ek-le-tum (Gilgameš X 14) denotes a question: rēqêt ekletum? 'Is darkness far away?'.

Note in the first example that the negative is ul, as in main clause statements, whereas $l\bar{a}$ occurs after the interrogative words (§20.4).

EXERCISES

A. VOCABULARY 35.

Verbs:

- $bat\bar{a}qum\ G\ (a-u)$ 'to cut off, deduct; to cut through, pierce; to divide; to stop work'; $buttuqum\ D=G$; $butattuqum\ Dt$ passive; $nabtuqum\ N$ passive.
- $hat\hat{u}m$ G (i) 'to make a mistake, fail, miss; to commit an offense, trespass' (cf. $h\bar{\iota}tum$).
- mašûm G (i) 'to forget, neglect'; mitaššûm Gtn 'to forget constantly, be forgetful'; šumšûm Š causative; namšûm N passive.

- $naq\hat{u}m$ G (i) 'to pour (out, as a libation), offer, sacrifice'; note $niq\hat{u}m$ (niqi-; also $n\bar{\imath}qum$, bound form $n\bar{\imath}q$ -) 'offering, sacrifice'.
- $\underline{sam\bar{a}dum} G(i)$ 'to tie, bind, attach; to yoke, harness; to make (something) ready'; $\underline{summudum} D = G(cf. simdatum)$.
- šanûm a G (i) 'to do twice, double, again' (in hendiadys); Verbal Adj. šanûm 'second, other' (see Vocab. 16); šunnûm D 'to repeat, tell; to count'; šutannûm Dt passive of D (cf. šinā 'two').
- šanûm b G (i) 'to change (intrans.), become different, strange';
 šunnûm D 'to change, alter' (trans.); šutannûm Dt passive of D.
- $\check{s}eb\hat{u}m$ G (e) 'to become satisfied, sate oneself (with: acc.)'; $\check{s}ubb\hat{u}m$ D 'to satisfy, please (someone with something: double acc.)'.

 $\check{s}uta^{22}\hat{u}m$ Dt (only) 'to be idle, lazy (about: ana/dat.); to relax'.

Nouns:

gišimmarum (fem. and masc.; gišimmar; pl. gišimmarātum; log. gišGIŠIMMAR; Sum. lw.) 'date palm'.

 $ibrum\ (ibir;\ pl.\ ibr\bar{u})$ 'person of equal status, colleague, friend'. $k\bar{a}sum\ (masc.\ and\ fem.;\ k\bar{a}s;\ pl.\ k\bar{a}s\bar{a}tum\ and\ k\bar{a}s\bar{a}n\bar{u})$ 'cup, goblet'. $napharum\ (naphar)$ 'total, sum; totality, all' (cf. $pah\bar{a}rum$).

Adverbs:

appūna, appūnā-ma 'moreover, besides, furthermore'.

kī maṣi (interrogative adverb and relative adverb) 'how much/many'; how(ever) much/many'.

mati (also ina mati) 'when?'; matī-ma 'when?; ever'; with negative: 'never'.

šattam 'this year'.

LESSON THIRTY-SIX

36.1 The Št Stems

There are two Št stems, with different meanings: the Št-passive and the Št-lexical (see below under (b)). Formally, the two stems differ only in the Durative, and are identical for all other forms.

(a) Form

The forms are, naturally, based on the corresponding Š stem. The infixed -t- (or -ta-) stands between the \check{s} and R_I . As in the Š (and D), the Durative forms have a as the theme-vowel, whereas the Preterite, Perfect, and Imperative have i. The Št Preterite is formally identical with the Š Perfect.

As noted above, the two Št stems are distinguished only in the Durative. The Durative of the Št-passive is patterned after that of the Š, and simply has -t- inserted after the -š-; the Durative of the Št-lexical has a doubled middle radical, like the G and Gt Durative (see under (b), on the meaning).

Given below are the Št paradigms of $par\bar{a}sum$, of the I-n verb $nad\bar{a}num$, and of the III-weak verb $mal\hat{u}m$. For verbs III-e, the change of a-vowels to e is optional (e.g., from $red\hat{u}m$: Infinitive $\check{s}utard\hat{u}m$ or $\check{s}uterd\hat{u}m$; Durative Št lex. $u\check{s}taradda$ or $u\check{s}teredde$).

	Sound	I– n	III–weak
Infinitive:	$\check{s}utaprusum$	$\check{s}utaddunum$	$\check{s}utaml\hat{u}m$
Durative Št pass.:	$u\check{s}tapras$	uš t a dd a n	$u\check{s}tamla$
Durative Št lex.:	$u\check{s}taparras$	$u\check{s}tanaddan$	$u\check{s}tamalla$
Perfect:	uštatapris	$u\check{s}tataddin$	$u\check{s}tatamli$
Preterite:	$u\check{s}tapris$	$u\check{s}taddin$	$u\check{s}tamli$
Imperative:	$\check{s}utapris$	$\check{s}utaddin$	$\check{s}utamli$
Participle:	muš $taprisum$	muš $taddinum$	muštamlûm
Verbal Adj.:	šutaprusum	$\check{s}utaddunum$	$\check{s}utaml\hat{u}m$
V. Adj. base:	šutaprus	$\check{s}utaddun$	$\check{s}utamlu$

In verbs I^{-3} and I^{-w} , the Durative forms of the two Št stems, like the rest of the paradigms, are identical. Št forms of verbs I^{-w} have a or e vowels according to the corresponding Š forms. Below are the Št paradigms of $ah\bar{a}zum$, $e\bar{s}\bar{e}rum$, $bab\bar{a}lum$, and $was\hat{u}m$ (also III– weak).

	I-a	I-e	I–u	v
Infinitive:	šutāḫuzum	šutēšurum	$\check{s}ut\bar{a}bulum$	šutēṣûm
Durative:	$u\check{s}ta\check{h}\check{h}az$	ušteššer	uš $tabbal$	ušteșșe
Perfect:	uštat $ar{a}$ hiz	uštetēšer	u š t a t $ar{a}bil$	uštetēși
Preterite:	ušt $ar{a}$ hiz	uštēšer	u š $tar{a}bil$	uštēṣi
Imperative:	$\check{s}utar{a}hiz$	šutēšer	$\check{s}utar{a}bil$	šutēṣi
Participle:	mu š $tar{a}hizum$	muštēšerum	muštābilum	muštēṣûm
Verbal Adj.:	šutāḫuzum	šutēšurum	$\check{s}utar{a}bulum$	šutēṣûm
V. Adj. base:	$\check{s}utar{a}huz$	šutēšur	$\v{s}ut\bar{a}bul$	šutēṣu

Št forms of verbs II–weak are rare; the following forms are attested for a few roots:

Infinitive: $\underbrace{sutakunnum}$ Durative: $\underbrace{u\check{s}tak\bar{a}n}$ 3mp: $\underbrace{u\check{s}takann\bar{u}}$ Preterite: $\underbrace{u\check{s}tak\bar{i}n}$ 3mp: $\underbrace{u\check{s}takinn\bar{u}}$ Participle: $\underbrace{mu\check{s}takinnum}$

The few attested Št forms of verbs originally II—² have strong ².

(b) Meaning

(1) Št-passive

The Št stem with the shorter Durative, uštapras, serves as the passive of the Š stem and is therefore called the Št-passive (sometimes simply Št¹). This is by far the less frequent of the two Št stems. Examples:

šutalputum 'to be destroyed';

 $\check{s}uterd\hat{u}m$ 'to be conducted, caused to flow';

šutāpûm/šutēpûm (wapûm) 'to be made/become visible, famous; to be proclaimed; to shine forth';

 $\check{s}ut\bar{e}\hat{s}\hat{u}m$ ($wa\hat{s}\hat{u}m$) 'to be brought out'.

(2) Št-lexical

The Št stem with the longer Durative form, uštaparras, has a wide range of uses and meanings. Because many of these are unpredictable, this form is termed the Št-lexical (or Št²).

One use of the Št-lexical is as the causative of the Gt stem, as in *sutamgurum 'to bring to agreement'; mitgurum Gt 'to come to agreement'; *sutamhurum 'to cause to compare oneself with, compete with, rival'; mithurum Gt 'to face one another, be of equal size, correspond'; šutaṣbutum 'to collect, assemble, keep together, attach; to quarrel' (i.e., 'to cause to grasp one another'); tiṣbutum Gt 'to grasp one another';

The Št-lexical also functions as the reflexive of the Š, as in šutēpušum (epēšum) 'to get busy, active' (šūpušum Š 'to direct'); šutamruṣum 'to concern oneself, take trouble, labor' (šumruṣum Š 'to make sick'):

 $\begin{tabular}{ll} \it §\it utaddunum~(nad\bar{a}\it num)~`to~intermingle, discuss'~(\it §\it uddunum~\Breve{S}~`to~collect');\\ \it §\it uterd\^um~`to~continue, resume'~(\it §\it urd\^um~\Breve{S}~`to~conduct, lead');\\ \end{tabular}$

 $\check{s}ut\bar{e}\hat{s}\hat{u}m$ 'to escape' ($\check{s}\bar{u}\hat{s}\hat{u}m$ 'to let out'); also 'to fight with one another'.

Finally, the Št-lexical serves as a catch-all stem, the meanings of some forms having little obvious derivational relationship with the Š or the Gt of the roots in question. The meanings of these must be learned individually, since they are not readily classifiable.

šutāwûm 'to discuss, consider, ponder' (cf. atwûm Gt 'to speak, discuss'); šutēmudum (emēdum) 'to bring into contact, join, unite, add' (causative of nenmudum N);

šutēšurum (ešērum) 'to proceed; to thrive, prosper; to set right, put in order, provide justice; to guide properly; to send; to make prosper';

šutakunnum (kânum) 'to justify, examine' (Mari); šutamlûm 'to assign, add, provide in full';

šutamţûm 'to be in short supply';

šutassuqum (nasāqum) 'to put in order, prepare'; it may be that this verb derives from nasākum rather than nasāqum (all writings are ambiguous); šutashurum 'to surround on all sides';

šutašnûm 'to double, give twice as much'; in hendiadys, 'to do again'.

Some verbs exhibit forms of both Št stems, as illustrated by $\check{s}uterd\hat{u}m$ and $\check{s}ut\bar{e}\check{s}\hat{u}m$ above. Further, while the distinction between the Durative forms of the two Št stems is generally observed, there is occasionally some confusion of the forms; e.g., both $u\bar{s}tanaddan\bar{u}$ and $u\bar{s}taddan\bar{u}$ for 'they (m) discuss'.

36.2 The Štn Stem

The Štn serves as the iterative stem of Š verbs.

In sound verbs, verbs I-n, and verbs III—weak, the forms of the Štn are identical to those of the Št listed above, with the important exception of the Durative (cf. the Dt and Dtn). The Štn Durative has the form uštanapras, with the characteristic -tan-. For verbs I-n, with the assimilation of the n of the root, the resulting form is identical to the Št-lexical Durative.

	Sound	I- n	III–weak
Durative Štn:	uštanapras	uš t a n a d da n	uštanamla

In verbs I– $^{\circ}$ and verbs I–w, all Štn forms differ from the corresponding Št forms, in that R_2 is always doubled and preceded by a short vowel in the Štn, rather than single and preceded by a long vowel as in the Št.

	\mathbf{I} – \boldsymbol{a}	I-e	I–u	v
Infinitive:	šuta h huzum	šuteššurum	$\check{s}utabbulum$	šuteṣṣûm
Durative: Perfect:	uštanahhaz uštatahhiz	ušteneššer ušteteššer	uštanabbal uštatabbil	ušteneșșe uštetessi
Preterite:	ustatatitiz uštahhiz	ušteššer	uštabbil	ušteșși ušteșși
Imperative:	šuta h hiz	šuteššer	šutabbil	šuteșși
Participle:	muštahhizum mušteṣṣûm	mušteššerum	muštabbilum
Verbal Adj.: V. Adj. base:	šutaḫḫuzum šutaḫḫuz	šuteššurum šuteššur	šutabbulum šutabbul	šuteșșûm šuteșșu Štn forms of verbs II-weak occur too infrequently to present a paradigm.

36.3 Oaths

Statements made under oath in Akkadian exhibit a special grammar that sets them apart from ordinary statements. Two types of oath may be distinguished according to the time frame of the activity about which the oath is taken: assertory oaths refer to the past (or the present); promissory oaths refer to the future.

Assertory oaths (referring to the past) normally have as their predicate either a Preterite verb or a verbless clause (including a predicate Verbal Adjective). Promissory oaths (referring to the future) usually have a Durative verb as predicate.

Both assertory and promissory oaths may be positive (assertory 'I did do X', promissory 'I will do X') or negative (assertory 'I did not do X', promissory 'I will not do X').

Three means of expressing an oath occur in OB texts. In the most common, the predicate is a verb or predicate adjective with the subordination marker -u (on forms on which -u may appear); the absence of δa or any conjunction governing the verb marks this construction unambiguously as an oath. In negative oaths, the negative is $l\bar{a}$. Predicates in this construction sometimes have a non-coordinating -ma for emphasis. Some examples:

Assertory:

umma šunū-ma: "kirûm pānûm burru; ina ilim telqû" 'thus they (m) (said): "the previous orchard was confirmed ($b\hat{a}rum$ D V. Adj. $b\bar{u}r$); you (ms) took (it) under (an oath to) a god" ';

kiam lizkurū: "dā'ik PN lā $\bar{\imath}$ dû; anāku lā ušāhizu; u bašītam ša PN lā elqû, lā alputu" 'they (m) must swear as follows: "I do not know the murderer of PN; I myself did not incite; further, I did not take (or even) touch PN's property" ';

Promissory:

ina maḥar awīlê annûtim kiam iqbû umma šunū-ma: "nīš šarrim ana dayyānī nillakū-ma" 'before these men they (m) said as follows: "by the life of the king we will go to the judges" ';

PN itma: "ana PN2 $l\bar{a}$ araggamu" 'PN swore, "I will not contest against PN2" '.

Another common construction, used only for positive oaths, has the asseverative particle $l\bar{u}$ (§29.3); predicates do not bear the subordination marker.

Assertory:

 $kaspam\ \check{s}u\bar{a}ti\ ana\ ummi\bar{a}nim\ ab\bar{\imath}\ l\bar{u}\ ut\bar{e}r$ 'my father did return that silver to the lender';

 $b\bar{e}l$ $b\bar{i}tim$ $n\bar{i}s$ ilim izakkaršum-ma: "itti buseka busuya $l\bar{u}$ $halq\bar{u}$ " 'the owner of the house will swear for him by the life of the god: "along with your goods, my goods were indeed (also) lost" ';

PN $ina\ b\bar{a}b$ DN $kiam\ izkur\ umma\ š\bar{u}$ -ma: " $l\bar{u}\ m\bar{a}r$ PN₂ $an\bar{a}ku$ " 'in the gate of DN, PN swore as follows: "I am indeed the son of PN₂" ';

Promissory:

The third construction is the least common in OB texts, but becomes the sole means of expressing an oath in Akkadian dialects of the first millennium. It is essentially the protasis of a conditional sentence, without an apodosis expressed. The understood apodosis is 'may I be cursed, if ...'. The logic of the construction dictates that a positive oath must contain a negative ($l\bar{a}$), while a negative oath must lack a negative: to express 'such-and-such shall happen', one writes 'if such-and-such does not happen(, may I be cursed)'; for 'such-and-such must not happen', one writes 'if such-and-such does happen(, may I be cursed)'.

ina šaptīšu kiam iššakin umma šū-ma: "šumma aḥī Purattim gulgullātim lā umalli" 'the following was on his lips: "I will fill the banks of the Euphrates (Purattum) with skulls (gulgullātum)" ' (lit., "if I did not fill the banks of the Euphrates with skulls, …"); šumma ṣibûtki lā ētepuš 'I will carry out your (fs) wish (ṣibûtum)' (lit., 'if I have not carried out your wish, ...').

- ⁴¹ lizziz 'may he stand forth' (see §37.2).
- ⁴³ -ma at the end of the text clearly does not function as a conjunction; its precise sense is elusive, but it may mark the end of its clause.

LESSON THIRTY-SEVEN

37.1 The Ntn Stem

Corresponding to the N is the iterative Ntn stem. As is true of the N, the personal prefixes of the Ntn are those of the G (i-, ta-, a-, ni-). The theme-vowel in all finite forms is that of the corresponding N Durative (see §31.1). The Ntn Preterite is identical to the N Perfect in form. For reasons that are unclear, some Ntn forms have the same meaning as (or, occur instead of) Gtn forms, i.e., are active rather than passive.

	Sound	I -n	III–weak
Infinitive:	it a prusum	it and unum	$itabn\^um$
Durative:	ittanapras	ittan and in	ittanabni
Perfect:	it tata pras	it tat and in	ittatabni
Preterite:	ittapras	ittandin	ittabni
Imperative:	itapras	it and in	itabni
Participle:	muttaprisum	muttandinum	$muttabn\hat{u}m$
Verbal Adj.:	it a prusum	it and unum	$itabn\^um$
V. Adj. base:	itaprus	it and un	itabnu

Note that in verbs I-n, the n of the root is not assimilated.

Verbs I–², as in the N (§32.1(a)), have forms in which the initial radical $^{\circ}$ is replaced by n; in some forms this n is assimilated to R_2 . Only Durative and Preterite forms of the Ntn stem are attested:

I-a	т т
1-0	I-e

Durative: ittananhaz/ittanahhaz ittenenpeš/itteneppeš
Preterite: ittanhaz/ittahhaz ittenpeš/itteppeš

Ntn forms of verbs I–w and of verbs II–weak are not attested.

37.2 The Irregular Verb izuzzum

This verb, which means 'to stand, be standing', was originally a II–w verb, * $z\hat{a}zum$ b (a), that appeared primarily in the N stem, thus Durative $izz\hat{a}z$, Preterite $izz\bar{\imath}z$ (see §32.1c). A number of the forms were reinterpreted by speakers, and a partly irregular paradigm resulted. In the standard modern grammars and dictionaries of Akkadian, the basic forms are listed as belonging to the G stem (rather than the original N), and vowel length is not indicated before the final radical (thus, Durative izzaz rather than $izz\hat{a}z$, etc., although the writing iz-za-a-az is common). All forms, regardless of tense, have a doubled final z before a vocalic ending, except in the "G" Preterite, where it is optional (more common in later texts), and in the "G" Participle (which has a prefix mu-).

G Infinitive: izuzzum or uzuzzum

Durative: izzaz, tazzaz, $3mp izzazz\bar{u}$, etc. Perfect: ittaziz, tattaziz, $3mp ittazizz\bar{u}$, etc. Preterite: izziz, tazziz, $3mp izziz(z)\bar{u}$, etc.

Imperative: iziz, pl $izizz\bar{a}$

Participle: muzzizum or *muzzazum*Verbal Adj.: with 3ms nazuz, 3mp nazuzzū

Note that izuzzum is an a-i verb, and that, contrary to expectation, the Perfect has the theme-vowel of the Preterite rather than that of the Durative (cf. D and Š verbs).

Note the byforms of the Participle and of the Infinitive. The G Verbal Adj. nazuz is rare, occurring only in the predicative construction and only in literary texts; in prose, the Durative is frequently found where the predicate Verbal Adj. might be expected (referred to in some Akkadian grammars as a "preformative Stative").

(Other forms are rare or unattested.)

(Other forms are rare or unattested.)

Š Infinitive: šuzuzzum

Durative: $u\ddot{s}zaz$, $tu\ddot{s}zaz$, $3mp\ u\ddot{s}zazz\bar{u}$ Perfect: $u\ddot{s}taziz$, $tu\ddot{s}taziz$, $3mp\ u\ddot{s}tazizz\bar{u}$ Preterite: $u\ddot{s}ziz$, $tu\ddot{s}ziz$, $3mp\ u\ddot{s}zizz\bar{u}$

Imperative: šuziz, pl. šuzizzā Participle: mušzizzum

Verbal Adj.: with 3ms šuzuz, 3mp šuzuzzū

Št Durative: uštazzaz

(Other forms are rare or unattested.)

Štn Durative: $u \dot{s} tanazzaz$, 3mp $u \dot{s} tanazzazz\bar{u}$

(Other forms are rare or unattested.)

(A very rare Infinitive form, nazzazum/nanzazum, which looks like it belongs to a new N stem, also appears in a few OB literary texts.)

LESSON THIRTY-EIGHT

38.1 Quadriradical Verbs

It was noted in §3.1 that a few roots have four radicals. With rare exception, these do not occur in the G stem, but have instead the N as their basic stem; causatives are formed with the Š stem, and the iterative Ntn and Štn stems are also attested. Most have either l or r as their second radical. A quadriradical of fairly high frequency is nabalkutum N (a) 'to jump, to rebel'; šubalkutum Š causative.

Quadriradical roots in which the last radical is weak, i.e., verbs IV—weak, are also attested. As expected, in verbs IV—e, α -vowels become e. Examples:

 $napark\hat{u}m$ N (u) 'to cease, stop working'; $nehels\hat{u}m$ N (e) 'to slip'; $\check{s}uhels\hat{u}m$ Š causative.

The irregular verb $m\bar{e}lulum$ 'to play' is derived from a quadriradical root II—weak (itself derived from a noun with prefix ma-, from a root 3 3–l–l, originally *h –l–l). Forms of this verb that have prefixes (Durative, Preterite, and Participle attested) are conjugated as though N stem forms of a verb $^*mel\bar{e}lum$ (cf. the N as the basic form of other quadriradicals, above); forms without prefixes (Infinitive, Imperative), however, begin with the initial radical m:

Infinitive: mēlulum

Durative: immellel, 3mp immellel \bar{u} Imperative: $m\bar{e}lil$

Perfect: ? Participle: mummellumPreterite: immelil, $3mp\ immell\bar{u}$ bound form: mummelil

Note also the following iterative form:

Durative: ittenemlel (AbB 10 55:22).

38.2 Special Features of Geminate Verbs

Geminate verbs are those in which the second and third radicals are identical. The only unusual feature noted about such verbs thus far is the base of the Verbal Adjective of stative verbs: whereas the Verbal Adj. of an active verb such as $mad\bar{a}dum$ is regular, madid- 'measured', that of a stative verb, such as $dan\bar{a}num$, has no vowel between R_2 and R_3 , dann- 'strong'.

Certain geminate roots in which the second and third radicals are l or r have N stem forms that differ from those of other verbs. In particular, the Infinitive and Verbal Adj. have the middle radical doubled, and all forms with prefixes (Durative, Perfect, Preterite, and Participle) have the third radical doubled before vocalic endings (cf. izuzzum, §37.2). Imperative forms of these verbs are not attested. Forms of nagarrurum N 'to roll around':

Infinitive: nagarrurum Imperative: —

Iteratives of these verbs are conjugated like other Ntn verbs (§37.1).

Causatives of the roots described in the preceding paragraph may also have the middle radical doubled in the Infinitive and Verbal Adj. (šugarrurum 'to roll (trans.)'), but also in forms with prefixes, as in Pret. ušgarrir (for expected ušagrir); all such examples may be classified as ŠD forms, for which see the next section.

38.3 Rare Stems: ŠD; Nt; R; others

In addition to the G, D, Š, and N stems (and their -t- and -tan- forms) a number of other verbal stems are attested; each is of limited or rare occurrence.

(a) The ŠD Stem

In form the ŠD stem combines the features of both the Š and the D, namely, a prefixed \check{s} and doubled middle radical. For most roots the occurrence of the ŠD stem is restricted to literary texts, where it may replace either the D or the Š stem, apparently for poetic effect. Attested forms are the following:

Infinitive: šuparrusum

Durative: ušparras Imperative: —

Perfect: — Participle: mušparrisum

Preterite: ušparris Verbal Adj.: —

As noted above under §38.2, causative forms of certain geminate roots in which the second and third radicals are l or r are conjugated like ŠD verbs; they are not restricted to literary texts, however. (The verbs $\check{s}ugarrurum$ 'to roll' and $\check{s}uparrurum$ 'to spread out (trans.)' are listed as such separately in AHw.)

Two common verbs that may be noted here are šukênum 'to bow down, prostrate oneself' and šupêlum 'to change, exchange'. In dialects of Akkadian that are phonologically more conservative than OB, these verbs are conjugated as though ŠD forms of roots II–² (Infin. *šuka*²²*unum* or *šuke*²²*unum*; Pret. *uška*²²*in*; Participle *muška*²²*inum*). In OB, however, the medial ² has been lost, and their conjugation is reminiscent of the simple Š stem of verbs II–³ (cf. §29.1(b)), except for the Infinitive. The verb šupêlum also occurs in a passive -t- stem.

Infinitive:	šukênum	šupêlum	$[\check{s}ut(e)p\hat{e}lum^?]$
Durative:	uškên	ušpêl	uštepêl
3mp:	u š k e n n $ar{u}$	$u\check{s}pellar{u}$	u š t e p e ll $ar{u}$
Perfect:	_	u š t e p $ar{e}l$ / u š t e p $ar{i}l$	_
3mp:	_	$u\check{s}tep^{ar{e}}/_{ar{\iota}}lar{u}$	_
Preterite:	uškēn / uškīn	ušpēl / ušpīl	$[u\check{s}tepar{e}l/u\check{s}tepar{\imath}l]$
3mp:	uškēnū / uškīnū	ušpēlū/ušpīlū	$[u\check{s}tepar{e}lar{u}/u\check{s}tepar{i}lar{u}]$
Imperative:	?	?	?
Participle:	muškēnum/	mušpēlum /
	mu š k $ar{\imath}$ num	mušpīlum
Verbal Adj.:	_	_	_

(b) The Nt Stem

An Nt stem probably occurs for a few verbs, mostly in later dialects; OB examples are rare. Attested forms of the Nt are identical to corresponding Ntn forms (Durative forms are not attested). The meaning is reciprocal in some cases, such as the Nt of <code>emēdum</code> 'to join one another'; perhaps ingressive in the Nt of the N verb of motion <code>naprušum</code> 'to fly', Nt 'to fly off, take flight' (cf. the ingressive Gt for G verbs of motion), Ntn 'to fly around'; similar to the Gt in the Nt of zakārum (i.e., 'to speak').

(c) The R Stem

+ 3fs:

parussat

A few verbs occur in a stem in which the third radical is reduplicated, called the R stem (following Whiting 1981). As in the N, the prefixes of finite forms are those of the G verb (i-, ta-, a-, ni-). The following paradigm may be pieced together from attested forms of this stem:

Infinitive: parusisum or parususum, as in namušišum, šahururum later purassusum, as in šuḥarrurum Durative: iprassas, as in $i\check{s}harrar$ (later $u\check{s}harrar$, 3mp $u\check{s}harrarr\bar{u}$) Perfect: iptarsas, as in ittamšaš (root $n-m-\check{s}$; later $u\check{s}taqallil$) iprasis, as in $i\check{s}qalil$ (later $u\check{s}qallil$, $3mp\ u\check{s}qallil(l)\bar{u}$) Preterite: Imperative: (later šugammim) Participle: Verbal Adj.: parussum (also $par^i/usisum$; later purassusum) V.Adj.+3ms: parus (also parusis, parusus; later purassus)

The R stem was no longer productive by the OB period; only the following verbs have finite forms in this stem in OB:

```
namušušum R (lexical texts only) 'to die'; cf. namāšum G 'to move';
šahururum R 'to be(come) completely inactive, paralyzed (with fear)';
*šaqululum R 'to become suspended, hang'; cf. šaqālum G 'to hang, weigh';
*šaqumumum R 'to become completely still, silent'.
```

Already in OB, and more commonly in later dialects, the last three of these were reanalyzed as ŠD forms of geminate roots (h-r-r, q-l-l, q-m-m), and finite forms were provided with the u-, tu- set of prefixes. Unlike in other ŠD verbs, however, the final radical of these was doubled before a vocalic ending in the Durative and (probably) Preterite.

A few other roots exhibit the Verbal Adjective of this stem (not all occur in OB):

da²ummum 'dark, gloomy' (cf. da²āmum 'to become dark'); nawurrum 'brilliant, bright' (cf. nawārum 'to shine, be bright'); rašubbum 'glowing, fearsome' (cf. rašābum 'to glow'); šalummum 'brilliantly radiant'.
```

As suggested by the examples cited here, the R stem connotes an intensification of the meaning of the root. Many of the forms express qualities of deities or other numinous qualities; *šaqululum, however, appears to provide a passive or intransitive sense of the corresponding G verb.

(d) Forms with Reduplicated Middle Radicals

A very small number of verbs are written with an extra CV-sign that reduplicates the middle radical. Examples of G, D, and Š verbs, and of some of the -t- and -tan- stems of these, are attested. They all exhibit the insertion, before R_2 in the unaugmented form (G, Gtn, Dt, etc.), of $-R_2a$ -; examples of G forms are:

```
i-ša-pa-ap-pa-ar-né-ti (Mari) 'he will command us' (šapārum); la ta-na-za-zi-iq (Mari) 'do not worry (ms)' (nazāqum);

It is not clear whether these rare examples are to be interpreted as grammatically acceptable forms (if so, they may be labelled Gr, Gtnr, Dr, Dtr, Šr, etc., stems, although other grammars and AHw use other sigla, including simply R, which has been reserved here for the stem with reduplicated R_3 ; see under (c)), or whether most are scribal errors (in the first example above, the first pa erroneously written by a scribe who intended to indicate the doubling of the middle consonant, and so wrote -ap-pa-, but forgot to erase the first pa; in the second example, za for intended az, i.e., a CV sign for VC, a not-uncommon error).

A few "Dtr" forms, i.e., Dt verbs with reduplicated middle radicals, seem unlikely to be scribal errors. These occur in the Durative, Preterite, and Imperative; the contextual meanings of the forms indicate that the Dtr serves as a reflexive and reciprocal of the D.

Dur. nuttamamma 'we will adjure one another' (tamûm);

Pret. $\S a...nuktalallimu$ 'which... we showed to one another' (kullumum); $n\bar{\imath}\S il\bar{\imath} uzzakakkir\bar{\imath}$ (Mari) 'they(m) adjured one another' ($zak\bar{a}rum$); $\bar{\imath}telelli$ 'it raised itself' ($el\hat{\imath}m$; in dictionaries under Infin. $utlell\hat{\imath}m$);

Impv. utlelli 'be raised!' $(el\hat{u}m)$; in dictionaries under Infin. $utlell\hat{u}m$).

38.4 OB Myths and Epics

Of the OB works of narrative literature, unfortunately much more remains lost than has been recovered. Fewer than a dozen myths and epics are attested, and none of these is complete. Most also exist in a later version or versions (in Standard Babylonian; see Appendix D), which allow a fuller understanding of the plot; most may also be related to earlier Sumerian literary works. The following is an incomplete list of attested OB myths and epics.

Anzû: The bird-god Anzû steals the 'tablets of destiny' (or 'decrees': tuppāt šīmātim) from Enlil, throwing the universe into disarray; a champion god — Ningirsu in the OB version (from Susa), Ninurta in the SB version — must defeat Anzû. (Pritchard, *ANET*³ 111ff., 514ff.)

Atrahasīs, in OB Atram-hasīs (for watram-hasīs 'pre-eminent in understanding'; see §31.3, end): A three-tablet myth detailing the creation of humanity and the origin of various human customs, divine irritation at the noise created by the ever-increasing number of people, the sending of plagues and finally a great flood, and the rescue of Atra-hasīs by the god Ea. An exemplary edition, Atra-Ḥasīs: the Babylonian Story of the Flood, with introduction, transliteration, translation, notes, and a glossary, was published in 1969 by W. G. Lambert and A. R. Millard (Oxford).

Etana: Etana, a king who longs for a son (and dynasty), rides an eagle to heaven on a quest for the plant of birth. (Pritchard, *ANET*³ 114ff., 517ff.)

Gilgameš: The king of Uruk, Gilgameš, oppresses his people and in response to their cries the gods send an equal, Enkidu, as a companion to Gilgameš. The two share adventures until Enkidu falls ill and dies. Gilgameš mourns bitterly, and then begins a quest for eternal life. The second tablet of the OB version of Gilgameš appears as Supplementary Reading immediately following this Lesson.

Girra and Elamatum. Only the last of seven tablets is preserved, in a recently-published OB version. (Walker 1983.)

An underworld myth about Ereškigal and Ningišzidda, known only from one OB text from Ur. (Gadd, UET 6 no. 398.)

A fragmentary myth about the birth and youth of Sin. (Römer 1966.)

- ¹ This letter lacks a salutation.
- ² DU+DU = LAH5; MÁ.LAH5 = $mal\bar{a}hum$.
- ³ At the end read uš!(A.NA)-qé-el-pí; for $\check{s}uqelp\hat{u}m$ see CH §240, above.
- $^{4-7}$ An indirect quote, all dependent on $k\bar{\imath}ma$ 'that', which in turn is governed by iqbiam in line 8.
- ⁶ ù here resumes the kīma clause following the two relative clauses and may be rendered 'however' ('that that boat, which ... and ..., you however have now assigned ...'); the sign after GiŠ is ÙR; GiŠ.ÙR = gušūrum (Sum. lw.) 'beam, log'.
- ⁷ massartum here, 'safekeeping'.
- ¹⁰ GIŠ.ÙR GIŠIMMAR.HI.A the plural marker modifies GIŠ.ÙR.
- ¹⁶ For Ù at the beginning, read ki!-ma!.
- H. A prayer of a diviner, to the gods of the night (von Soden, ZA 43 1936 306–7; English translations in Pritchard, ANET 391; Foster 2005 207–8; English versification in Ferry 1990).

 - The reading of the fourth sign is uncertain. If -sú, note palāsum G (rare) 'to see', pullusum 'to occupy, divert' (cf. naplusum). If -lu, note palālum G (i) 'to watch over, guard', pullulum (otherwise unattested) = G? (Livingstone 1990).
 - wašrum a Verbal Adj., meaning uncertain; perhaps from a rare G stem of the root for wuššurum, hence 'released into place'; the word is replaced by nadûm 'situated' in parallel texts.
 - $sikk\bar{u}rum~(sikk\bar{u}r;$ pl. $sikk\bar{u}r\bar{u})$ 'bar, door-bolt'.
 - šērtum (pl. šērētum) 'ring' (Livingstone 1990).
 - ³ habārum G (u) 'to be noisy'; Verbal Adj. habrum 'noisy'. *šaqumumum R 'to become completely still, silent'.
 - $ed\bar{e}lum\ G\ (i)$ 'to lock'; $uddulum\ D=G$.
 - Note the unusual separation of the adjective $pet\hat{u}m$ from the modified noun $b\bar{a}bum$.
 - ⁵ i-li is an error for the expected nom. pl. (cf. line 14). ištarum (pl. ištarātum) 'goddess' (cf. Ištar).

^{1d}GIŠ is the OB writing for Gilgameš.

²šunatum an uncommon byform of šuttum (pl. šunātum) 'dream'.

 $^{3\}bar{s}\bar{a}t$ frozen f. sg. of the determinative pronoun $\dot{s}a$ (which was originally declinable); $m\bar{u}\dot{s}um$ and $mu\dot{s}\bar{\iota}tum$ (pl. $mu\dot{s}i\bar{a}tum$) 'night(time)'; $ina~\dot{s}\bar{a}t~mu\dot{s}\bar{\iota}t\bar{\iota}ya$ 'during that of my night', i.e., 'in my dream'.

 $_{\tilde{a}m\bar{a}hum}^{4}$ G (u) 'to grow thickly, thrive; to flourish; to attain great beauty or stature'; Verbal Adj. $_{\tilde{a}mhum}^{4}$ ($_{\tilde{a}muh}^{4}$) 'luxuriant; prosperous, majestic'.

 $^{^5}paz\bar{a}rum~G~(i)$ 'to hide oneself' (?; but this verb is otherwise unattested in the G; the D puzzurum means 'to hide (trans.)'). Another possible reading of this damaged form is ib- $^{\text{\tiny T}}bi$ -ru-nim^-ma from $eb\bar{e}rum~G~(i)$ 'to cross, pass over'.

 $^{^{6}}kakkabum$ (pl. $kakkab\bar{u}$) 'star'.

 $⁷n\hat{a}\check{s}um$ G (a-u) 'to move, begin moving' (intrans.); $nu\check{s}\check{s}um$ D 'to move, set in motion' (trans.); it is possible to read the form here, $un\bar{\imath}ssu$, either as \acute{u} -ni- $i\check{s}$ -su (a morphographemic writing, §18.4) or as \acute{u} -ni- $i\check{s}$ -su (with $I\check{S}=i\check{s}$).

⁸ el-ti-i²(AH) for elte³i.

⁹UNUG^{ki} the city of Uruk.

¹⁰našāqum G (i) 'to kiss'; nuššuqum D = G.

 $¹¹p\bar{u}tum$ ($p\bar{u}t(i)$) 'forehead, front'; ina $p\bar{u}t$ (prepositional phrase) 'opposite'.

 $56\hat{e}rum$ (I–° and II–e; Pret. $i^{3}\bar{e}r$; see §21.3(d)) 'to become awake, alert'; Verbal Adj. $\bar{e}rum$ ($\bar{e}r$) 'awake, alert, watchful'.

⁵⁷i $št\bar{e}n$ here perhaps 'a certain' (George 2003: 185).

⁵⁸bīt emim is literally 'father-in-law's house', but here denotes 'wedding'.

 $^{^{59}}$ This reading suggested by George (2003: 186) would be $saq\bar{a}rum$ Dt Pret., 'was summoned'.

⁶⁰ulsum~(ulus) 'rejoicing, exultation'; $ulsam~ep\bar{e}sum~$ 'to make love' (cf. $el\bar{e}sum~$ in iii 20).

⁶¹Note the use of the absolute form as a vocative or PN.

 $⁶²ak\bar{a}\check{s}um~G~(u)$ 'to go, move'; the D $ukku\check{s}um$ usually means 'to drive away', but $ukki\check{s}\bar{\iota}$ here apparently means 'bring (the man here)'.

 $^{^{63}}lu \cdot u\dot{s}$ - $\dot{s}u$ unclear; the following emendations have been suggested: $lu \cdot u\dot{s}$ -me, $lu \cdot u\dot{s}$ - $si \cdot a(-am)$.

 $^{64\}bar{\imath}kussum-ma$ (see n. 62); read either $i-ku-u\check{s}-su-um$, a morphographemic writing (§18.4), or $i-ku-u\acute{s}-su-um$.

 $103r\hat{a}dum~G~(u)$ 'to shake, quake'. Another possible reading is ir-tu-ut: $rat\bar{a}tum~G~(u)$ 'to tremble, shake'. Neither verb is common.

¹⁰⁴uzzum (uzzi; pl. uzzātum) 'anger, rage'.

 $¹⁰⁵n\hat{e}^{3}um$ G (II–e, third radical 3 usually written; see §21.3(k)) 'to turn, turn away, loosen' (trans.); $irtam\ n\hat{e}^{3}um$ 'to turn away, withdraw'.

¹⁰⁶*rīmtum* 'wild cow' (cf. rīmum 'wild bull').

¹⁰⁷ supūrum 'sheep-fold, pen'.

¹⁰⁸Ninsunna (Sum. nin-sún.a(k) 'lady of the wild cow') the mother of Gilgameš.

¹⁰⁹Akkadian literary texts did not have titles (such as "Gilgameš"); rather, they were known by their opening words (incipits). The three words $\bar{s}\bar{u}tur$ eli $\bar{s}arr\bar{\iota}$ began the OB text of Gilgameš (i.e., Tablet I, line 1). Lines 34'-35' here, which are written after a separation line, comprise a colophon, a notice to the reader that this is 'Tablet 2 of $\bar{S}\bar{u}tur$ eli $\bar{s}arr\bar{\iota}$ '.

 $^{110 \}bar{s} \bar{u} \bar{s} um$ (absolute form $\bar{s} \bar{u} \bar{s} (i)$) '60'; i.e., 240 (lines on the tablet).

GLOSSARY OF AKKADIAN WORDS

Presented here are all words that appear above in the Lesson vocabularies, in examples, and in the Supplementary Reading.

Adjectives are listed under the masc. nom. sg., with the base given in parentheses. Verbal adjectives (including substantivized forms) and participles are listed under the infinitive of the verb.

For nouns, it should be assumed that forms with t before the case-ending are feminine, all others masculine, unless specifically indicated otherwise. The bound form, if known, is given in parentheses immediately following the main entry; the bound form before suffixes, if it differs from that before nouns, follows the latter after the siglum "sf." Plural forms are listed if known. Logographic writings are normally cited only if they have appeared in the lessons and readings above.

Verbs are listed under the G infinitive, unless the G stem is unattested, in which cases cross-references will direct the reader to the main entry. The themevowels of the G stem appear in parentheses. All stems in which a root commonly occurs are given, regardless of whether all such stems have been encountered in the lessons and readings above. The stems are listed in the following order: G, Gt, Gtn, D, Dt, Dtn, Š, Št (pass. or lex.), Štn, N, Ntn. The Gtn, Dtn, Štn, and Ntn stems are given only if they exhibit a meaning not easily predictable from their common iterative function.

Cross-references to forms appearing in this glossary that are derived from a common root are cited at the end of entries, as follows: the siglum "¬" appears after entries of verbs or other basic forms, and directs the reader to all other derivatives of the root in the glossary; the siglum "cf." appears after all other entries, and directs the reader to the verb or other basic form of the root.

Words are listed alphabetically, as follows:

$$a,\,b,\,d,\,e,\,g,\,b,\,i,\,y,\,k,\,l,\,m,\,n,\,p,\,q,\,r,\,s,\,s,\,\check{s},\,t,\,t,\,u,\,w,\,z.$$

Note especially that y is counted alphabetically as j; j is ignored in alphabetization. The following hypothetical list will illustrate the order of entries differing only in vowel length: babum, $bab\bar{u}m$, $bab\bar{u}m$, $b\bar{a}b\bar{u}m$, $b\bar{a}b\bar{u}m$, $b\bar{a}b\bar{u}m$, $bab\bar{u}m$, $bab\bar{u}$

Signs encountered in the lesson exercises are listed here as they are in the lessons, in their OB lapidary, OB cursive, and Neo-Assyrian forms. They are presented according to their forms in OB cursive script; as in some other lists of OB cursive signs, they are ordered by the following sequence of wedge types: \leftarrow ; \leftarrow or \prec ; \uparrow . This sequence is applied successively to the whole sign. Thus, all signs beginning with one horizontal wedge appear before signs beginning with two horizontal wedges (one on top of the other), which in turn appear before signs beginning with three and then four horizontals. Thereafter come the signs beginning with an angled wedge or Winkelhaken, then signs beginning with two, then three, then four of these. And finally, signs beginning with one vertical wedge, then two, and so on, are listed. Within each of these groups, signs in which the first wedge or group of wedges is followed by a horizontal (and then two horizontals, etc.) precede signs in which the first wedge or group of wedges is followed by an angled wedge or Winkelhaken, etc. For the most part, this list follows the order of the "List of Signs" in Hermann Ranke, Babylonian Legal and Business Documents from the Time of the First Dynasty of Babylon, chiefly from Sippar (BE 6/1; Philadelphia, 1906).

An alphabetical cross-index of sign values immediately follows this list (pp. 575–76); the cross-index is keyed to the numbers in the left-hand column below.

ALPHABETICAL CROSS-INDEX OF SIGN VALUES

For most Ce values, see under the corresponding Ci value. VC and CVC signs in which the final C may be voiced, voiceless, or emphatic are listed only once, under the value with the final C voiced; thus, e.g., for utone should look under ud, for daq one should look under dag, etc.

The numbers are keyed to the preceding Sign List.

APPENDIX A: SYSTEMS OF DATING

Many Mesopotamian texts, particularly contracts, bear the date on which they were written. In Old Babylonian texts, a complete date formula appears as

{ITI [Month-Name] + UD.[x].KAM + MU [Year-Name]}

as in:

ITI a-ia-ru-um UD.3.KAM MU g^{is} GU.ZA d-sar-pa-ni-tum 'month (of) Ayyarum, day 3, year "the Ṣarpānītum throne (was installed)" ' (the date of CT 8 22b = Schorr, VAB 5, no. 77, a contract that appears in exercise H of Lesson 22).

In some dates only the month and year or only the year alone appeared. As the example above indicates, years were given names in the OB period. The modern reader must consult a list of year names to identify a given date-formula; the year name gisGU.ZA dṣar-pa-ni-tum, for instance, is the twelfth year of Ḥammurapi. The year names may be quite lengthy, and are usually written in Sumerian. As other examples the date-formulae for Ḥammurapi years 1–4 may be given:

MU ḫa-am-mu-ra-pí LUGAL.E 'year Ḥammurapi became king' MU NÍG.SI.SÁ KALAM.MA IN.GAR 'year he established justice in the land'

MU ^{giš}GU.ZA BARAG MAḤ ^dNANNA KÁ.DINGIR.RA^{ki} MU.UN. NA.DÍM 'year he installed the throne and august dias of Nanna of Babylon'

MU BÀD GÁ.GI.A BA.DÙ 'year the wall of the gagûm was built'

A convenient collection of year names may be found in the article "Datenlisten" in RLA. (In later periods in Babylonia, dates are identified by the regnal year of the king, as in MU.5.KAM RN 'year 5 of king RN'. In Assyria, years were named after important royal officials, in a fixed order; a given year was called 'the limmum (eponymy) of PN'.)

The names of the months of the year varied from one period to another and from region to region. Occasionally they are written syllabically, as in the example given above; usually, however, they are given logographically, or even in abbreviations (e.g., the first sign only) of the full logogram. Below are the most common month names for OB texts, with their modern equivalents.

APPENDIX B: WEIGHTS AND MEASURES

Mesopotamian systems of weights and measures differed from one place to another and from one time to another. Below are presented the systems used in the OB period for expressing weight, distance, area, volume, and capacity. For more detail on these and on other systems, see the article by M. Powell in RLA vol. 7 (1987–90), pp. 457–517.

Measurements are almost invariably rendered logographically. Although many of the Akkadian terms for the units of measurement are known, and although the meaning of a given formulation is rarely in doubt, nevertheless the actual Akkadian pronunciation may usually not be determined with any certainty. Attempts at normalizing constructions involving measurements, therefore, are not generally recommended (except for simple expressions such as 5 GÍN KUG.BABBAR im-hu-ur for hamšat šiqil kaspam imhur 'he received five shekels of silver'; see §23.2(b2)).

- GUR units '1' to '9' are written with horizontal wedges ("tens" with Winkelhaken), without the GUR sign. Note also, however, writings such as 5 §E GUR for (nom.) $\hat{h}am\tilde{s}at$ kur $\hat{u}m$ '5 kor of barley'; cf. (f), below. (p)
- $p\bar{a}num/parsiktum$ amounts are written with the signs given in the table above, without the PI sign. (C)
- BÁN amounts are written as indicated in the table above.
- (g (e)
- SILA₃ amounts are written with the regular number signs with the SILA₃ sign.
- The GUR sign is often added at the end of the expression, as a kind of determinative indicating that the preceding signs constitute an expression of capacity; see above, under (b), and below, the last example. Œ
 - A frequent convention for transliterating writings of this type is simply to write the relevant numbers, separated by commas, with '0' for missing units; see the examples. (g)

APPENDIX C: HISTORICAL AKKADIAN PHONOLOGY

As noted in the Introduction, Akkadian is a member of the Semitic language family. Although it is the earliest attested, it has, by the OB period, undergone a more radical development in its phonological system than that exhibited by any other Semitic language until the modern period. Thus, for example, while Common Semitic may be reconstructed with thirty distinct consonants, OB has only twenty; while Common Semitic has three vowel qualities, OB has four. (At least some of these developments may be ascribed to the influence of Sumerian.) A knowledge of early Semitic phonology and of the historical development of Akkadian phonology is often helpful in understanding the processes observed in individual dialects like Old Babylonian.

1. Consonants

The Common Semitic complement of consonants may be represented as follows (vd = voiced; vl = voiceless; em = emphatic; approx. = approximants):

		stop	s	af	frica	ites	fr	icati	ves	approx.	nasals
	vd	vl	em	vd	vl	em	vd	vl	em	vd	vd bilabial	b	p								w	m
interdental							ð	θ	$\dot{\theta}$
dental	d	t	ţ							r	n
alveolar				^{d}z	$^t\!s$	^t ș		s lateral						ś		ś		l
palatal										у
velar	g	k	q				ģ	į	х
pharyngeal							С	ķ
glottal)						h

The syllabary of Old Akkadian, the earliest attested period of the language, is unfortunately ambiguous, and it is difficult to determine how many of these thirty consonantal phonemes had been lost to mergers and other changes by that period. (It is clear, however, that more consonants remained distinct than in OB [Hasselbach 2005]; see below.) In OB, the following developments have occurred:

(a) Common Semitic * δ and * d z merged to z:

* δ ak \bar{a} rum > zak \bar{a} rum 'to remember'; * 3 u δ num > uznum 'ear';

* d zam \bar{a} rum > zam \bar{a} rum 'to make music'; * c a d z \bar{a} bum > ez \bar{e} bum 'to leave'.

(b) Common Semitic *h and *x merged to h (Huehnergard 2003):

*hamisum > hamšum 'five'; *sahānum > šahānum 'to be warm';

*xapārum > hepērum 'to dig'; *raxāṣ́um > rahāṣum 'to wash'.

(c) Common Semitic * t s, * s s, and * $^\theta$ merged to s :

```
*'ṣarāḫum > ṣarāḫum 'to cry out'; *ra'ṣāpum > raṣāpum 'to pile up';
*ṣ́amādum > ṣamādum 'to bind'; *'arṣ́atum > erṣetum 'earth';
*Ḥiprum > ṣuprum 'fingernail'; *naḤārum > naṣārum 'to watch'.
```

(d) Common Semitic *s, * \acute{s} , and * θ merged to \check{s} , while Com. Sem. * ts was deaffricated to s (as were Com. Sem. * $^dz > z$ and * $^ts > s$ [see (a, c)]):

```
*sakānum · šakānum 'to place'; *nasāqum · našāqum 'to kiss';
*šapatum · šaptum 'lip'; *caśarum · ešerum 'ten';
*θalāθum · šalāšum 'three'; *waθābum · wašābum 'to dwell';
*tsadārum · sadārum 'to arrange'; *rakātsum · rakāsum 'to bind'.

In Old Akkadian, *θ remained distinct from *s/$; *θ was written witl ŠA, ŠI, ŠU (as in ú-ša-ab for earlier *yuθθab 'he dwells') while *s/$

In Old Akkadian, * θ remained distinct from *s/s; * θ was written with ŠA, ŠI, ŠU (as in \acute{u} - $\acute{s}a$ -ab for earlier * $yu\theta\theta ab$ 'he dwells') while *s/s was written with SA, SI, SU (as in sa-ap-ta-su for earlier * $\acute{s}ap(a)t\bar{a}$ -su 'his lips (dual)'). (For Old Akkadian, von Soden in his Grundriss, Syllabar, and AHw writes Com. Sem. * θ as \check{s} and Com. Sem. * s/\acute{s} as \acute{s} .)

(e) Four of the Common Semitic "guttural" consonants, , *h, *h, *c— i.e., the two glottal consonants and the two pharyngeals, respectively— gradually merged and were lost in most environments. These are referred to by Assyriologists as $^{2}_{1}$ through $^{2}_{4}$, respectively. Two of these consonants, *h and *c ($^{2}_{3-4}$), colored neighboring a vowels to e before they were lost. (See §6.1.)

It is likely that in at least some dialects of Old Akkadian these consonants had not yet merged or been lost completely.

Another "guttural" consonant, * \acute{g} , referred to as $^{5}_{5}$ by Assyriologists, was rare in early Semitic; its reflexes in Akkadian are varied: sometimes lost (occasionally with the change of a > e, as with 3 ₃₋₄), sometimes retained as 3 , and sometimes retained as h (Kogan 2001):

(f) Common Semitic *w — sometimes referred to as ${}^{\circ}_{6}$ — was lost at the end of syllables (unless followed by another w, as in nuwwurum 'to brighten'), with compensatory lengthening of the preceding vowel; the diphthong *aw became \bar{u} (probably \bar{o} in some dialects of Babylonian for a time [Westenholz 1991]):

*suwrid > s\bar{u}rid 'send down (ms)!'; *mawtum > m\bar{u}tum 'death'. In late OB (§24.4) and later dialects, initial w is also lost, as in wašib > ašib 'is seated (m)'.
```

(g) Common Semitic *y — sometimes referred to as ${}^{3}7$ — was also lost at the end of syllables (unless followed by another y, as in $dayy\bar{a}num$ 'judge'), with compensatory lengthening of the preceding vowel; the diphthong *ay became $\bar{\iota}$ in Babylonian (but \bar{e} in Assyrian dialects: $b\bar{e}tum$ 'house'). Initial *y was also lost by the OB period (perhaps not in Old Akkadian); initial *ya- became i-:

```
*rabiytum > rabītum 'great (fs)'; *baytum > bītum 'house';
*yupaḥḥar > upaḥḥar 'he gathers'; *yasarum > išarum 'straight'.
```

(h) Initial m (except for mu-) dissimilated to n in forms with a labial radical (Barth's Law; §32.2):

```
*markabtum > narkabtum 'chariot'; *mapharum > napharum 'total'.
*mam<sup>t</sup>sarum > namsarum 'sword';
```

(i) In words and roots originally containing two Common Semitic emphatic consonants, one of the emphatics dissimilated to its non-emphatic voiceless counterpart (Geers' Law): t became t in forms that also contained q or s (from t, t, t, or t, in forms with both t and t, the one that came first dissimilated, t to t and t to t.

```
*$\square$ab\bar{a}tum \cdot \square$ab\bar{a}tum \cdot \text{to seize}'; \qquare qat\bar{a}rum \cdot ka\bar{a}rum \cdot \text{to tie}'; \qquare qat\bar{a}rum \cdot qat\bar{a}rum \cdot \text{to smoke}'; \qquare \square qat\bar{a}qum \cdot \text{sia}qum \cdot \text{to be narrow}'.
```

(j) *n assimilates to a following consonant, except in some instances when it is the second root consonant (§5.1):

```
anti > atti 'you (fs)'; taddin-ma > taddim-ma 'you *tan@ur > tassur 'you (ms) guarded'; (ms) gave and ...';

but candzum > enzum 'she-goat'.
```

(k) Conversely, n, and sometimes m, may appear as the result of the nasalization of double consonants, usually voiced dentals; thus, e.g., expected -dd- appears as -nd- or -md-. This phenomenon is sporadically attested before the OB period, is occasionally found in some OB dialects, and becomes more common in latter phases of Babylonian. The most common examples are Durative forms of $nad\bar{a}num$:

inaddin may also appear as i-na-an-di-in, i-na-am-di-in, i-nam-di-in.

(l) Several consonants assimilate to the feminine ending t (§5.4); d and t assimilate completely, while s, s, and z become s:

```
masc. paqdum, fem. paqittum < *paqidtum 'entrusted';
masc. baltum, fem. balittum < *balittum 'alive';
masc. parsum, fem. parištum < *paristum 'separated';
masc. marşum, fem. maruštum < *maruştum 'sick';
mazzaštum, also written mazzaztum 'position' (from izuzzum).
```

(m) The the infix -t- of the Perfect and of the Gt and Dt stems assimilates completely when immediately before or after the consonants d, s, s, t, and z (§§17.1, 33.1) and when immediately before \check{s} (but not when after \check{s}). The infix -t- becomes -d- after g.

iddamiq \( *idtamiq \) 'it has improved'; \( \bar{h}iddulum \( *\bar{h}itdulum \) 'to become knotted';
issa\( hur \( *\bar{i}\) ista\( hur \) 'she has turned'; \( \bar{h}\) issas \( *\bar{h}\) itsas \( *\bar{h}\) itsas 'consider(ms)';
i\( s\) isa\( bar \( *\bar{i}\) itaad \( *\bar{i}\) itaad \( *\bar{i}\) itaad \( *\bar{i}\) itaad \( *\bar{i}\) taad 'she has sent';
i\( zzakar \( *\bar{i}ztakar \) 'he has mentioned';
i\( stakan \) 'she has placed', but \( pi\) i\( sum \( *\bar{p}it\) i\( sum \( *\bar{p}it\) i\( sum \( *\bar{p}it\) i\( sum \( sum \) 'so anoint oneself';
i\( sum ar \( *\bar{i}stamar \) 'he has finished'.
```

(n) The combination of a stem-final dental or sibilant (d t t s s z š) and \check{s} of the third person pronominal suffixes resulted in -ss- (§§11.1, 18.2):

- (o) Stem-final b and, less often, p assimilated to enclitic -ma (§7.4): irkab ma > irkam ma 'he rode and ...'.
- (p) In late OB texts and in later dialects, mimation was lost when word-final (retained before -ma and pronominal suffixes; see §24.4(a)):

šarrum > šarru; išpuram > išpura, but išpuram-ma; eqlētum > eqlētu; ašpurakkum > ašpurakku.

(q) For the benefit of individuals who have studied other Semitic languages, the chart on p. 590 presents the OB consonants along with their Proto-Semitic antecedents and the reflexes of the latter in the other major ancient languages.

2. Vowels

Common Semitic may be reconstructed with three vowel qualities, each occurring either long or short, as in classical Arabic: a, \bar{a} , i, \bar{i} , u, \bar{u} . A number of developments vis-à-vis Common Semitic are attested in all Akkadian dialects:

(a) Contraction of the diphthongs *aw and *ay; as noted above, *aw became \bar{u} (probably \bar{o} in some early dialects of Babylonian) while *ay became \bar{t} in Babylonian and \bar{e} in Assyrian (also in Old Akkadian [Hasselbach 2005]):

*\theta awrum \rightarrow \check{s}\bar{u}rum 'bull';

*baytum > Bab. bītum, Ass. bētum 'house'.

(Note also forms such as *śayimum > Bab. šīmum, Ass. šēmum 'decreed' and *kawinum > *kayinum > Bab. kīnum, Ass. kēnum 'true'; further, perhaps, *yiśayyam > išīam 'he decrees' and *yitawwar > Ass. itūar > Bab. itâr 'he returns'.)

(b) Initial *ya- became yi-; subsequently (after the Old Akk. period), the initial y was lost:

```
*yadum > yidum > idum 'arm';
*yasarum > yišarum > išarum 'straight'.
```

(c) Short final *a and *u were lost; final *i remained in the Old Akk. period, but was also lost thereafter:

bound form sg. nom. *kalbu, acc. *kalba both > *kalb (then > *kalab), vs. gen. kalbi (in Old Akk.; later also > kalab) 'dog of';

bound pl. nom. * $^3il\bar{a}tu \rightarrow il\bar{a}t$, but gen.-acc. ($^3)il\bar{a}ti$ (in Old Akk.; later also $\rightarrow il\bar{a}t$) 'goddesses of';

dual nom. * c aynāna, gen.-acc. * c aynayna $\rightarrow \bar{\imath}n\bar{a}n$, $\bar{\imath}n\bar{\imath}n$ (Ass. and Old Akk. $\bar{e}n\bar{a}n$, $\bar{e}n\bar{e}n$) 'eyes'; predicative verbal adjective, 3ms *paqida > paqid 'is assigned'.

Apparent exceptions are the prepositions ana and ina and the subordination marker -u.

This rule means that, apart from the exceptions just mentioned, all final vowels in OB originate as long vowels; see (k) below.

(d) Final consonant clusters created by the preceding change were resolved by the insertion of an anaptyctic vowel; in Bab. the inserted vowel echoed the preceding vowel, while in Ass. it was usually α :

```
*kalb > kalab (Bab. and Ass.) 'dog of';
*rigm > Bab. rigim, Ass. rigam 'voice of';
*puhr > Bab. puhur, Ass. puhar 'assembly of'.
```

Syncope: the last of a sequence of two or more non-final short (e) vowels in open syllables was deleted (except optionally before l and r; §4.1):

```
*rapasum > rapšum 'wide (ms)', vs. rapaš (bound form/predicative);
*rapasatum > rapaštum 'wide (fs)';
but *'akalum akalum /aklum 'food';
     *sikarum > šikarum 'beer'.
```

* α was pronounced [e] before and after h and c (and, occasionally, \dot{g}); in Bab., but not in Ass., \bar{a} was likewise pronounced [\bar{e}]. With the subsequent merging and loss of the gutturals (see 1 (d), above), e (and \bar{e}) achieved phonemic status:

```
*^{c}a^{d}zib \rightarrow {^{c}ezib} \rightarrow ezib 'he having left (ms)';
*taḥpus > *teḥpuš > tēpuš 'you (ms) did'.
*a also often became e in words containing Common Semitic *3 and a sonorant, especially *n or *r: *°arśatum > (°)erṣatum > erṣetum 'earth';
*ra^{3}sum \rightarrow *re^{3}šum \rightarrow resum 'top'.
The change *a \rightarrow e did not operate across certain morpheme boundaries, so that, e.g., in the accusative marker -am, in the plural marker $-\bar{a}$, and in the ventive marker -am, $a(\bar{a})$ remained unchanged:
```

```
*qamham > *qemham > qēmam 'flour' (acc.);
*yaptaḥā > *yipteḥā > ipteā 'they (f) opened';
*'algaham > *'algeham > elgeam 'I brought hither'.
```

(g) *i also had an allophone [e], which occurred before r and h (§7.1); in some, but not all, instances, this merged with [e] from a (see (f), above).

```
tṣaģira > ṣaḥer (> ṣeḥer) 'it (m) is small';
*taθabbir > tašabber (> tešebber) 'you (ms) break'.
```

(h) Babylonian vowel harmony: * $a(\bar{a})$ became $e(\bar{e})$ in words containing e or \bar{e} (§7.2):

```
*^c a^d z \bar{a} bum > *^c e z \bar{a} bum > e z \bar{a} bum \text{ (Ass.)} > e z \bar{e} bum \text{ 'to leave'};
*talqah > *talqeh > talqe (Ass.) > telqe 'you (ms) took';
saģira > ṣaḥer (Ass.) > ṣeḥer 'it (m) is small';
*taθabbir > tašabber (Ass.) > tešebber 'you (ms) break'.

This sound change was restricted by the same morpheme boundaries that prohibited *a > e in (f).

Not infrequently, forms in which no e appeared also underwent a change $*a(\bar{a}) > e(\bar{e})$ as a result of the presence of e in other derivatives of the same root: e.g.,

```
*p\bar{a}tihum \rightarrow *p\bar{e}tihum \rightarrow p\bar{e}t\hat{u}m 'opening' (ptcpl ms);
*\theta ab\bar{a}rum \rightarrow \check{s}eb\bar{e}rum 'to break'.
```

(i) Assyrian vowel harmony: unstressed short a in an open syllable was assimilated to a following vowel:

```
/šarrat-/: nom. šarrutum, gen. šarritim, acc. šarratam 'queen'; /taṣbat-/: taṣbat(\bar{a}) 'you (ms, -\bar{a} pl) seized', taṣbutu 'you (ms) seized' (subord.), tasbit\bar{i} 'you (fs) seized'.
```

(j) Vowel contraction (§6.1(c)): sequences of vowels — which arose with the loss of the guttural consonants, w, and y — generally contracted to ultralong versions of the original second vowel; exceptions are $\bar{a}+i/\bar{\iota}$ > \hat{e} in all Bab. dialects, and the non-contraction of the sequences ia and ea (either vowel long or short) until late in the OB period. (In Old Akkadian and for most of the history of Assyrian, no vowel contraction took place.)

```
*yabniyū > ibniū > ibnû 'they (m) built';

*tabniyī > tabnî 'you (fs) built';

*tabniyā > tabniā 'you (pl) built';

*banāyum > *banāum > banûm 'to build' (nom.);

*banāyim > *banāim > banêm 'to build' (gen.).
```

- (k) As noted above under (c), original short final vowels were lost early in the history of Akkadian. Thus, with the exception of the prepositions ana and ina and the subordination marker $\cdot u$, all final vowels that remain in dialects such as OB are originally long vowels. It is likely that all such vowels, except for contracted long vowels (\hat{v}), were pronounced short when word-final. The various Assyriological reference works do not represent these vowels consistently in their transcriptions. Final long vowels may be classified into several groups, in addition to those that are long as the result of contraction:
 - (1) Morphologically long vowels inherited from Common Semitic. These are marked long (\bar{v}) in the present textbook and in W. von Soden's standard grammar (GAG) and dictionary (AHw), but are unmarked in CAD; they include:

the markers of the masc. pl. on nouns $(-\bar{u}/-\bar{\iota})$ and the markers of the dual $(-\bar{a}/-\bar{\iota})$:

- nom. šarrū, gen.–acc. šarrī 'kings' (probably pronounced [šarru], [šarri], but with suffixes, e.g., [šarrū-ni], [šarrī-šunu]);
- nom. $\bar{\imath}n\bar{a}$, gen.–acc. $\bar{\imath}n\bar{\imath}$ 'eyes of' (probably pronounced [$\bar{\imath}$ na], [$\bar{\imath}$ ni], but with suffixes, e.g., [$\bar{\imath}$ nā-ka], [$\bar{\imath}$ nī-ša]);

the markers of the 2fs and of the second and third plural on finite verbs:

- taprus-ī, iprus-ū, iprus-ā, taprus-ā (probably pronounced [taprusi], [iprusu], [iprusa], [taprusa], but with suffixes, e.g., [taprusī-šu], etc.).
- (2) Common Semitic final vowels of variable length ("anceps vowels"), primarily in pronominal endings. These were usually retained in Akkadian, although some are omitted in certain dialects (especially in poetry). When word-final they are transcribed without a length mark by most Assyriologists; when not final they are transcribed variously unmarked (in CAD) or with a macron (elsewhere, including this textbook):
 - Com. Sem. $-s\bar{u}$ 'his'/'him' > Akk. $-s\bar{u}$ (but, e.g., $\bar{t}mur-s\bar{u}-ma$);
 - Com. Sem. $-sun\bar{u}$ 'their (m)' > Akk. -sunu (but, e.g., $itt\bar{\iota}-sun\bar{u}-ma$ 'with them'; this appears as -sun in some dialects see §30.2(e));
 - Com. Sem. $-\bar{a}t\bar{a}$ 'you (ms)' \rightarrow Akk. $-\bar{a}ta$, as in $damq-\bar{a}ta$ (but $damq\bar{a}t\bar{a}-ma$; this appears as $-\bar{a}t$ in some dialects).
- (3) Vowels long from compensatory lengthening with the loss of a following consonant (guttural, w, y). When word-final they are transcribed without a length mark by most Assyriologists; when not final they are transcribed variously unmarked (in CAD) or with a macron (elsewhere, including this textbook):
 - * $nimla^{\circ} > niml\bar{a} = nimla$ 'we filled', but $niml\bar{a}$ -ma;
 - * $tukarrah > tukarr\bar{a} = tukarra$ 'you (ms) lessen', but $tukarr\bar{a}$ -ma:
 - * $niptah \rightarrow nipt\bar{e} = nipte$ 'we opened', but $nipt\bar{e}$ -ma;
 - * $tamnuw > tamn\bar{u} = tamnu$ 'you (ms) counted', but $tamn\bar{u}$ -ma;
 - * $tabniy > tabn\bar{\imath} = tabni$ 'you (ms) built', but $tabn\bar{\imath}$ -ma;
 - * $rabiya \rightarrow rabiy \rightarrow rab\bar{\imath} = rabi$ 'is great (3ms)', but $rab\bar{\imath}$ -ma;
 - $*^{\epsilon}adiy > ad\bar{\imath} = adi$ 'up to', but $ad\bar{\imath}ni$ 'until now'.

APPENDIX D: STANDARD BABYLONIAN

As has already been mentioned in the Introduction to this textbook (pp. xxvi–xxvii), Standard Babylonian (SB) was a purely literary language, an artificial creation of scribes of the late second and the first millennium, in which they attempted to reproduce the grammatical forms of Old Babylonian poetry to write the great sacred and royal literature of the period. Although it is based on Old Babylonian, Standard Babylonian also exhibits forms that betray the influence of the scribes' colloquial dialects, Neo- and Late Babylonian. Assyrian scribes too used Standard Babylonian for literary and monumental texts, and their works show as well sporadic traces of Assyrian forms.

In German the term that corresponds to Standard Babylonian is Jungbabylonisch (abbr. jB), literally 'young Babylonian'. A thorough, linguistically-sophisticated description of SB grammar, especially of the morphology and syntax, is Brigitte Groneberg's Syntax, Morphologie und Stil der jungbabylonischen "hymnischen" Literatur (2 volumes; 1987).

In what follows only major differences from Old Babylonian grammar are presented.

1. Orthography

- (a) Many more CVC signs are regularly used: e.g., $\mathbb{H}II$, with the values lag/k/q and $\check{s}id/t/t$. Some OB CV and VC signs take on additional, CVC values: e.g., UD = tam, par, pir, lah, lih, $hi\check{s}$; ME = $\check{s}ib/p$.
- (b) (i) The U-sign (4) is used often, although it does not replace U (\square) completely; one finds, e.g., both ib-nu-u and ib-nu-u.
- (ii) The PI-sign (4 F-), used for wa/we/wi/wu passim in OB texts and for pi/pe only in southern OB documents, is commonly used for pi/pe (and only rarely for w+vowel) in SB.
 - (iii) Two other frequent signs are $\check{s}\check{u}$ (\Tilde{I}) and $\check{s}\check{a}$ (the NÍG-sign, $\Tilde{\forall}$).

- (c) A number of CVm signs take on CV values: e.g., $TUM = tu_4$, UD = tam and ta_5 .
- (d) There is a specific sign to represent aleph ($^{\circ}$): $^{\Delta}$ P $\overline{+}$. Some Assyriologists transliterate this sign simply $^{\circ}$, while others assign it the values $^{\circ}a$, $^{\circ}e$, $^{\circ}i$, $^{\circ}u$, a° , e° , i° , u° : e.g., $\check{s}a^{\circ}-a-lu$ or $\check{s}a^{\circ}a-a-lu$ for $\check{s}a^{\circ}\bar{a}lu$ 'to ask'; $\check{s}\check{a}-\dot{a}-il$ or $\check{s}\check{a}-\dot{a}-il$ for $\check{s}a^{\circ}il$ 'is asked (m)'; $na-\dot{a}-du$ or $na-a^{\circ}-du$ for $na^{\circ}du$ 'pious (ms)'.
- (e) There are a number of specific signs for the emphatic consonants: e.g., \square KIN, also qi/qe; further, KUM is used with the value qu; GÍN is used with the value tu.

2. Phonology

- (a) The loss of mimation noted for late OB texts in §24.4(a) is reflected more regularly: $\delta arru/\delta arri/\delta arra$; iddina 'she gave to me'; -ku 'to you (ms)'. Although CVm signs often still appear word-finally, -Vm signs usually do not: e.g., $\delta ar-ru$ or $\delta ar-rum$ (which may also be read $\delta ar-ru$) for nom. sg. $\delta arru$ (OB $\delta arrum$); $\delta ar-ra-tu$ or $\delta ar-ra-tu$ (UB $\delta arratum$). When not the final consonant, i.e., before -ma or pronominal suffixes, mimation is not lost: iddinam-ma; iddinakkum-ma.
- (b) The contraction of the vowel sequences ia, ea, attested already in late OB (§24.4(b)), is normal: $qibiam \rightarrow qib\hat{a}$ 'say (ms) to me'; $i\check{s}me\bar{a} \rightarrow i\check{s}m\hat{a}$ 'they (f) heard'.
- (c) \check{s} usually appears as l before the dentals d, t, \dot{t} : e.g.,

OB iktašdam > SB iktalda 'she arrived here';

OB taštakan > SB taltakan 'you (ms) have placed';

OB aštur > SB altur 'I inscribed'.

It was noted in §5.4 that in OB s, s, and z normally become s before the feminine ending -t, as in maruštum, the fem. of marsum 'sick'. In SB this s usually appears as l:

SB marşu, fem. marultu 'sick';

OB pirištum 'secret matter' (from parāsum) > SB piriltu;

OB mazzaštum (also mazzaztum, from izuzzum) 'position' $\rightarrow manzaltu$

OB išsi / issi '(s)he called' appears in SB as either issi or ilsi.

(d) Initial w is lost (also rarely in late OB texts; see §24.4(c)):

```
OB wardum > SB ardu 'male slave';
OB walādum > SB alādu 'to give birth'.
```

Within a word, i.e., between vowels, OB w is written as m:

```
OB awīlum > SB amīlu 'man';
OB uwaššar > SB umaššar 'he releases'.
```

The existence of $uma\check{s}\check{s}ar$ gives rise to forms such as the Infinitive $mu\check{s}\check{s}uru$, with an initial m- rather than the expected simple loss of the OB initial w- (OB $wu\check{s}\check{s}urum$).

(e) Double consonants, especially the voiced dentals -dd- and -zz-, are often nasalized, i.e., $\rightarrow -nd$ -, -nz- (see Appendix C 1 (j)): inaddin > inandin 'she gives';

```
mazzaštum > manzaltu 'position';
abbi > ambi 'I named'.
```

(f) In the D and Š Preterite, Perfect, and Precative, the a of the second syllable sometimes undergoes partial assimilation to the i or e of the following syllable, appearing as e:

```
ušaknis › ušeknis 'he subjugated';

uptaḥḥer › upteḥḥer 'I have gathered';

lilabbiš › lilebbiš 'let him clothe'.
```

(g) m plus the infix -t- usually become -nd-:

as OB wuššurum is replaced by SB muššuru (see d, above), the OB Perfect ūtaššer is replaced by umtaššer, which appears as undaššer (or, with (f), above, as undeššer).

(h) In verbs II–³, the aleph often appears as a strong consonant:

```
OB s\hat{a}lum but SB s\hat{a}^{\bar{j}}\bar{a}lu 'to ask';
OB is\bar{a}l (written i-s\hat{a}-al) but SB is^{\bar{j}}al (written is-al) 'she asked'.
```

(i) Many Assyrian vocalisms occur; see Appendix E, below.

3. Morphology

- (a) The case endings on nouns are no longer strictly adhered to; in particular:
 - (i) The accusative is often replaced by the nominative; the genitive is also occasionally replaced by the nominative:

OB $aw\bar{a}tam\ iqbiam = SB\ am\bar{a}tu\ iqb\hat{a}$ 'she said a word to me'.

(ii) Sometimes no case-ending at all appears:

 $tukallam\ n\bar{u}r$ 'you (ms) show the light' $(n\bar{u}ru(m)$ 'light').

(iii) The ending for nouns in the plural is often the oblique $-\bar{\imath}$ or $-\bar{e}$ (the latter from Assyrian; see App. E, 2 (b2)), even when the noun is nominative; this is especially true for the bound form:

šarrē mātāti illikūni 'the kings of the lands came'.

(iv) The ending for nouns in the dual is often the nominative \bar{a} , even when the noun is oblique; the dual also appears on words for parts of the body that are not paired:

oblique $\bar{sepa}\bar{su}$ 'his feet'; $ki\bar{sa}d\bar{a}\bar{su}$ 'his neck'.

(b) As in OB literary texts (see §30.2(f)), a number of feminine nouns exhibit different bound forms than they do in OB prose; e.g., napištu 'life', bound form napišti (as in OB) or napšat.

- (c) (i) The plural demonstrative pronouns $\check{s}un\bar{u}ti$ and $\check{s}in\bar{a}ti$ (§6.3) are replaced by $\check{s}u\bar{a}tunu$ (or $\check{s}\hat{a}tunu$) and $\check{s}u\bar{a}tina$ ($\check{s}\hat{a}tina$), respectively.
- (ii) As in OB literary texts (§30.2(e)), the genitive pronominal suffixes may appear without their final vowels:

šalamtaš for šalamtaša 'her corpse'; niṭilšun for niṭilšunu 'their (m) glance'.

- (iii) $-\dot{s}u$ and $-\dot{s}a$ are sometimes not distinguished.
- (d) The regular plurals of ilu 'god' and $\check{s}arru$ 'king' appear as $il\bar{a}n\bar{u}$ / $il\bar{a}n\bar{i}$ and $\check{s}arr\bar{a}n\bar{u}$ / $\check{s}arr\bar{a}n\bar{i}$ (see §20.2).
- (e) The terminative-adverbial ending $-i\check{s}$ (§28.2) takes on a comparative nuance (equivalent to $k\bar{\imath}ma$ with the genitive) in addition to its OB uses:

iliš 'like a god'.

(f) Verbs III–weak all tend to become III–i:

imnu or imni 'she counted'; ikla or ikli 'he prevented'.

- (g) The ventive occurs frequently, but often without a clear function.
- (h) The predicative form of the adjective with 3fs subject -at may take the subordinate marker -u:

OB ša wašbat but SB ša ašbatu 'who (f) is resident'.

(i) Many Assyrian forms occur; see Appendix E, below.

APPENDIX E: ASSYRIAN PHONOLOGY AND MORPHOLOGY

See the Introduction (p. xxvi) for a review of the Assyrian dialects. Only major features that contrast with their Babylonian counterparts are listed here. A detailed treatment of Old Assyrian is K. Hecker, Grammatik der Kültepe-Texte (1968); for Middle Assyrian see W. Mayer, Untersuchungen zur Grammatik des Mittelassyrischen (1971); and for Neo-Assyrian, see J. Hämeen-Anttilla, A Sketch of Neo-Assyrian Grammar (2000).

1. Phonology

(a) There are no vowel contractions until Neo-Assyrian, thus, e.g.,

```
Bab. d\hat{a}ku(m) = \text{Ass.} \quad du\bar{a}ku(m) 'to slay'; rub\hat{u}(m) 'rub\bar{a}u(m) 'prince'; rab\hat{u}(m) 'rapiu(m) 'large'.
```

(b) a and e are compatible in the same word; thus there is no change of a (\bar{a}) to e (\bar{e}) because of the presence of an e-vowel elsewhere in the word:

```
Bab. er\bar{e}bu(m) = \text{Ass.} er\bar{a}bu(m) 'to enter'; te\check{s}emme/ ta\check{s}amme 'you (ms) hear'; ta\check{s}amme (never te\check{s}emme) b\bar{e}l\bar{e}tu(m) b\bar{e}l\bar{a}tu(m) 'ladies'.
```

(c) There is, however, a different rule of vowel harmony in effect in Assyrian dialects: short a in an open, unaccented syllable assimilates to the vowel in the following syllable; thus, e.g., the declension of 'queen' is:

nom. $\check{s}arrutu(m)$ gen. $\check{s}arritim / \check{s}arrete$ (see d, below) acc. $\check{s}arrata(m)$ while the Preterite of $sab\bar{a}tu(m)$ 'to seize' has the following forms:

 $\begin{array}{lll} & 3 \text{ms} & i \not \text{sbat} \text{ (as in Bab.)} \\ & \text{but} & 2 \text{fs} & t a \not \text{sbit} \overline{\imath} \text{ (vs. Bab. } t a \not \text{sbat} \overline{\imath} \text{)} \\ & 3 \text{mp} & i \not \text{sbut} \overline{u} \text{ (vs. Bab. } i \not \text{sbat} \overline{u} \text{)} \end{array}$

(d) Assyrian loses mimation at about the same time as Babylonian; i.e., OA has mimation, later dialects, MA and NA, do not. With the loss of mimation, the word-final sequence -im becomes -e (viz., in the genitive singular, the oblique plural of fem. nouns and all adjectives, the ventive for the plural, and the 3fs and 2fs dative suffixes):

OB	$\check{s}arratim$	OA	$\check{s}arritim$	MA	$\check{s}arrete$
	$rab\hat{u}tim$		$rabiar{u}tim$		$rabiar{u}te$
	$illikar{u}nim$		$illikar{u}nim$		$illikar{u}ne$
	išpuršim		išpuršim		išpurše
	išpurakkim		išpurakkim		išpurakke

(e) The Common Semitic diphthong *ay becomes \bar{e} in Assyrian, not $\bar{\iota}$ as in Babylonian; e.g.,

Bab. $b\bar{\imath}tu(m)$, but Ass. $b\bar{e}tu(m)$ 'house'.

(f) From MA on, the infix -t- tends to become -t- after q:

OB iqtabi OA iqtibi MA iqtibi

(g) From MA on, initial wa- becomes u- (rather than a- as in Bab.):

OB/OA wardum SB ardu MA urdu $was\bar{a}bum$ $as\bar{a}bu$ $us\bar{a}bu$

2. Morphology

(a) Pronouns

(1) Many Assyrian pronouns differ from their Babylonian counterparts; among the most important are:

		Babylonian	Assyrian
independent subject:	1cs	$n\bar{\imath}nu$	$nar{e}nu$
	3ms	$\check{s}ar{u}$	$\check{s}ar{u}t$
	3fs	šī	$\check{s}ar{\imath}t$
enclitic subject:	1cp	$-ar{a}nu$	$-\bar{a}ni~(marṣ\bar{a}ni~`$ we are sick')
accus. suffix:	2mp	$-kunar{u}ti$	-kunu
	2fp	$-kinar{a}ti$	-kina
	3mp	-šunūti	-šunu
	3fp	- $\check{s}inar{a}ti$	-šina

(b) Nouns

(1) The bound forms of nouns of the pirs and purs type have an anaptyctic α -vowel:

```
uznu(m) 'ear': Bab. uzun, but Ass. uzan; \check{s}ipru(m) 'message': Bab. \check{s}ipir, but Ass. \check{s}ipar. (For kalbu(m) 'dog', both Bab. and Ass. have kalab.)
```

- (2) The oblique plural of masculine nouns ends in $-\bar{e}$ (vs. Bab. $-\bar{i}$):
 - Bab. $ana\ b\bar{e}l\bar{\imath}$ 'to the lords', but Ass. $ana\ b\bar{e}l\bar{e}$.
- (3) The nominal abstract ending, $-\bar{u}t$ in Bab. (§14.4), is -utt in Ass.: Bab. $\check{s}arr\bar{u}tu(m) = \mathrm{Ass.}\ \check{s}arruttu(m)$ 'kingship'.

(c) Numbers

(1) The base of the ordinal numbers, parus- in Bab. (§23.2(c)), is paris-in Assyrian.

(d) Verbs

(1) The 3fs prefix of verbs is ta- rather than i- as in Bab. (except, in Old Assyrian only, when the subject is inanimate, in which case the prefix is i- as in Bab.); thus, the 3fs and the 2ms have the same form:

tallik 'she went' or 'you (ms) went'.

(2) The Precative in Assyrian always takes the form of the Preterite, plus a prefixed l-. The 1cp has $l\bar{u}$ rather than i. Thus:

	Babylonian	Assyrian
$parar{a}su(m)$	liprus	liprus
bullutu(m)	liballit	luballit
$(w)ab\bar{a}lu(m)$	libil	lubil
$parar{a}su(m)$	luprus	laprus
bullutu(m)	luballit	luballit
$(w)ab\bar{a}lu(m)$	lubil	lubil
$par\bar{a}su(m)$	$i\ niprus$	$l\bar{u}$ $niprus$
$par\bar{a}su(m)$	liprus	$l \bar{u} \ taprus$
	bulluṭu(m) (w)abālu(m) parāsu(m) bulluṭu(m) (w)abālu(m) parāsu(m)	parāsu(m) liprus bulluţu(m) liballiţ (w)abālu(m) libil parāsu(m) luprus bulluţu(m) luballiţ (w)abālu(m) lubil parāsu(m) i niprus

(3) There is a special ending for subordinate forms, -ni, in addition to the ending -u. In Old Assyrian, -ni is attached to any form that, because it has another ending already, cannot take the ending -u (these are the forms that remain unmarked for the subordinative in Babylonian). From MA on, -ni is added even to forms that are already marked with -u. -ni is added at the end of the form, following even pronominal suffixes (but not the particle -ma).

	main clause	subordinate clause
	OB/OA	OB	OA	M/NA
Pret. 3ms	iprus	ša iprusu	ša iprusu	ša iprusū-ni

(4) A number of verbs exhibit different theme-vowels in Assyrian than they do in Bab.; e.g., balāṭum 'to live' is (u) in Bab. (iballuṭ-ibluṭ) but (a) in Ass. (iballaṭ-iblaṭ); emādum 'to impose', epāšum 'to do', and erābum 'to enter' are all (a-u) verbs (see under (6) below for epāšum).

- (5) The Gt Infinitive and Verbal Adjective have the form pitarsum, vs. Babylonian pitrusum.
- (6) In the D and Š Imperative, Infinitive, and Verbal Adjective, where Babylonian has u in the first syllable, Assyrian has a:

APPENDIX F: HEBREW AND OTHER SEMITIC COGNATES TO THE LESSON VOCABULARIES

This set of cognates is intented primarily for students of Biblical Hebrew, who generally constitute a large percentage of learners of Akkadian. Thus, if an Akkadian word has an obvious Biblical Hebrew cognate, that Hebrew cognate is always listed, and, usually, no additional Semitic cognates are given. If there is no certain cognate in Biblical Hebrew, cognates in other Semitic languages are given when known. Akkadian words that are loans from Sumerian are noted as such, and of course those do not have Semitic cognates, although a few of them may in turn have been loaned from Akkadian into other Semitic languages (these are marked with \rightarrow). Some Akkadian words that are not Sumerian loans nevertheless also have no certain Semitic cognates, the word or root apparently having been lost in West Semitic; these are noted below with a long dash (—).

This list includes only the Akkadian words that appear in the lesson vocabularies; thus, the additional words that appear in the readings are not given. The words are listed in alphabetical order; each word is followed by a number in parentheses indicating the lesson vocabulary in which the word is given. Glosses are not given for the Akkadian words, since the glosses are easily accessible in the lesson vocabularies and in the Glossary (pages 485ff.). Likewise, no gloss is given for a Hebrew cognate if the meaning is substantially the same as that of the Akkadian word. If the Hebrew word has a different meaning, it is glossed; in these cases, the siglum "cf." is used, to indicate that the Hebrew word does not have the same meaning as the Akkadian word. "Cf." is also used when a Hebrew cognate exhibits a different underlying pattern than the Akkadian word. Cognates in other Semitic languages are glossed, and again "cf." is used, in this case to indicate a form other than a Hebrew cognate.

Many of the cognates listed below already appear in von Soden's Akkadisches Handwörterbuch (AHw). Other cognates have been proposed by other scholars, and these scholars have been cited where appropriate. But it should be noted that this list is not intended to be complete, and I have undoubtedly overlooked many additional suggestions.

For the correspondence between Akkadian consonants and those of Hebrew and other Semitic languages, see the chart on p. 590.

This list of cognates is also available online at eisenbrauns.com. A version that presents the words by lesson may be found at http://utexas.academia.edu/JohnHuehnergard.

šumum (8): cf. BH $\Box \psi \check{s}\bar{e}m$; Aram. $\check{s}om$. $\check{s}up\hat{e}lum$ (38): cf. probably BH $eq p\bar{a}^cal$ 'to do, make' (Speiser, JCS 6 [1952]: 90–92).

 \check{sut} - $r\bar{e}\check{sim}$ (23): from $\check{s}a$ and $r\bar{e}\check{s}um$; the sg. $\check{s}a$ $r\bar{e}\check{s}im$ \to BH סְּרִים $s\bar{a}r\hat{i}s$ 'official, eunuch'.

*šuta*³³ $\hat{u}m$ (35): cf. Syr. ³ $e\check{s}t(a^c)^ci$ 'to play'.

tabālum (22): secondary root from w/babālum.

takālum (16): secondary root from earlier wakālum; cf. Arab. wakala, OSA wkl, Eth. tawakkala 'to (en-) trust'.

 $t\bar{a}h\bar{a}zum$ (34): from $ah\bar{a}zum$.

tamûm (13): secondary root from earlier wamûm; cf. Aram. yəmi/ imā 'to swear'.

tappûm (13): Sum. lw.

tarāṣum (27): cf. Aram. təraṣ 'to direct, straighten'.

tarbaşum (27): from rabāşum 'to lie down'; cf. BH רֶבִץ $r\bar{a}bas$.

 $t\hat{a}rum$ (9): cf. perhaps BH קּד $t\bar{a}r$ (root twr) 'to explore'.

 $teb\hat{u}m$ (16): cf. Ug. tb^c 'to leave, depart', Arab. $tabi^ca$ 'to follow', Aram. $taba^c$ 'to look for, require'.

terhatum (18): cf. Ug. trh 'to marry a wife' (\leftarrow Akk.?).

têrtum (16): derived from wârum.

 $t\bar{\imath}bum$ (24): from $teb\hat{u}m$.

tukultum (36): from takālum.

 $t\bar{a}bum$ (4): BH מוֹב $t\hat{o}b$.

tarādum (6): cf. MH קרך tārad, Ug. trd, Syr. trad, Arab. tarada, all 'to drive away, expel'; cf. perhaps also BH קרַר tārad 'to drip continually'.

tēmum (7): cf. BH שַּׁשֵׁ taʿam 'taste, discernment'.

tehûm (11): —.

 $ti\bar{a}bum$ (9): BH אוב $t\hat{o}b$.

 $t\bar{u}bum$ (37): see $t\bar{a}bum$, $ti\bar{a}bum$.

tuppum (2): Sum. lw.

tupšarrum (23): Sum. lw.; → BH מָּבְּּיִר tipsār '(an official)' (Jer 51:27; also קיבְרֵין tapsərayik Nah 3:17).

น (1): าุ wə-.

 \bar{u} (16): BH אוֹ \hat{o} .

ubānum (23): cf. BH อุธิ bōhen.

ul(a) (4): probably from $u+l\bar{a}$, and thus corresponds to BH ห่ว $w\partial -l\bar{o}^{\circ}$; but cf. also BH אׁכ al.

ullânum (28): from ullûm 'that, distant' (see §6.3, end; related to BH ⊓; । ∂ēlle 'these').

ûm (13): if correctly read (and not a Sum. lw. šeum), cf. perhaps BH יַּד hay 'alive' (root originally *hyw; Cavigneaux 1989).

umma (15): earlier (Old Akk.) en-ma; cf. perhaps BH הַן $h\bar{e}n$, הַּבּה $hinn\bar{e}$.

ummānum (9): cf. perhaps Cent. Sem.
*camm-, BH מַם cam 'clan, people, kin, kinsman'.

ummiānum (25): —; → Aram., BH אָּמָן ommān 'artist' (Song 7:2), perhaps also מַׁלְּמַלוֹן āmôn (Prov 8:30). ummum (2): BH אַם $\bar{e}m$.

 $\bar{u}mum$ (8): BH יוֹם $y \hat{o} m$.

 $un\bar{u}tum$ (30): cf. BH אָנִי , אָנִי ${}^{\circ}$ \check{o} $\hat{n}i(y\bar{u})$ 'ship(s)' (‹ 'vessel(s)'), perhaps also Aram. $m\bar{a}({}^{\circ})n\bar{a}$ 'vessel, utensil'.

uznum (2): BH אֹנֵן ōzen.

waklum (34): from wakālum 'to trust' (rare); see takālum.

walādum (11): BH יֵלֵי yālad.

 $wap\hat{u}m$ (34): cf. BH הּוֹפְּינֵ $\hbar \hat{o}p\hat{a}a^c$ (Hi. of yp^c) 'to shine', or יָפָּה $y\bar{a}p\bar{a}$ 'to be (-come) fair'?

warādum (15): BH יָרֵד yārad.

warāqum (29): cf. BH יֶרֶק yereq 'green (-ness)', etc.

wardum (1): --.

 $ward\bar{u}tum$ (20): from wardum.

warhum (19): BH יְרֵת yerah, יָרָת $y\bar{a}$ - warka (29), warkānum (32): from a lost noun *warkum, biform of warkatum.

warkatum (16): cf. BH יֶרֶךְ yerek/ yārēk 'thigh; side'.

warki (17), warkītum (14), warkûm (29): from *warkum; see warka.

wârum (29): --.

 $waṣ\bar{a}bum$ (15): AHw compares BH יַּכַּף $y\bar{a}sap$ (also Aram., OSA ws^3f ; irregular Akk. $s, b \sim WS^{*t}s, p$).

waṣûm (21): BH יָצָא $y\bar{a}ṣ\bar{a}$ יַּ wašābum (10): BH יַשֵּׁב yāšab.

watārum (10): cf. BH נוֹחֵר nôtar (Ni. of ytr) 'to be left (over)'.

watûm (36): cf. Arab. wātā(y) 'to come to, upon', Sab. causative hwtw 'to bring back' (unless these are biforms of 'tw 'to come').

 $w\bar{e}dum$ (28): cf. BH יחָד yahad 'unity', יחָד $y\bar{a}h\hat{i}d$ 'solitary'.

(w)uššurum (25): cf. perhaps Egyptian Aram. hwšr 'to send'; connect with ešērum?

 $zab\bar{a}lum$ cf. BH סְבֵּל $s\bar{a}bal$ 'to carry, bear' (Akk. s > z before b).

 $zak\bar{a}rum$ (19): BH $z\bar{a}kar$.

 $zak\hat{u}m$ (7): BH $z\bar{a}k\bar{a}$.

 $zaq\bar{a}pum$ (18): BH אָקָן $z\bar{a}qap$ (Pss 145: 15, 146:8).
