PREFACE

The present volume is a key to the exercises in my A Grammar of Akkadian (HSS 45). Answers to nearly all of the exercises in the thirty-eight lessons are included. It must be emphasized that most sentences, and even phrases, admit of several possible translation variants, and it has not been possible to list them all; the student should be aware of, and allow for, such variation.

Once again it is my pleasant duty to thank a number of individuals who have reviewed parts of the key in its formative stages, and who have saved me from many errors: Patrick Durusau, Esther Flueckiger-Hawker, Daniel A. Foxvog, Matthias Henze, Eugene C. McAfee, Kathryn Slanski, Matthew W. Stolper, Neal H. Walls, Chris Woods, and Norman Yoffee.

I have taken advantage of the publication of this Key to provide as well a list of errata in the Grammar that have come to my attention. The errata appear immediately following this preface. (Most of these errata have been corrected in later printings of the Grammar, but it has seemed best to reprint the list here for those with copies of the first printing.)

* * * * *

In the second, revised printing of the Key, I have corrected a number of errors brought to my attention by Christopher Frechette, Michael Patrick O'Connor, and especially Avi Winitzer, to whom I express my sincere thanks.

Cambridge, Mass., June 2000

* * * * *

The second edition of the Key provides the opportunity to correct additional errors and ambiguities, many of them brought to my attention by Benjamin Thomas and Avi Winitzer, and especially by Michael Patrick O'Connor; I am very grateful to them for taking the time to send these corrections and suggestions for improvement.

Carlisle, Mass., July 2005

* * * * *

A new printing of this Key makes possible the correction of various errors and unclear translations that have escaped notice heretofore. I am particularly indebted to Lesley Adye and Benjamin Studevent-Hickman for bringing many of these to my attention.

Thanks to Jim Eisenbraun and Andrew Knapp, a list of the corrections made in this printing appears at eisenbrauns.com.

Sîn-muballit again laid claim against Anum-bānī for the orchard; they went to the judges, and when the judges sent them to the city and the witnesses, the previous witnesses of Mār-Amurrim said, “In the gate of Ninmar Anum-bānī swore, ‘I am the son,’” and so they confirmed the field and estate to Anum-bānī. Sîn-muballit may not bring suit again. He swore by the life of Šamaš, Marduk, and King Ḥammurapi. (Witnesses.)

Speak to the men whom Marduk keeps healthy; thus the overseer of the merchants and the judges. May Šamaš and Marduk keep you healthy forever. Concerning the inheritance of the nadītum of Šamaš that Narām-ilīšu the brother of Ibbi-Šamaš took and over which the Dūrītes went to court with Ibbi-Šamaš: We looked at their statements and on the basis of the inheritance documents that Ibbi-Šamaš has we made a judgment for Ibbi-Šamaš. Further, because the Dūrītes went to court for what was not their affair, on the basis of the decree document that/because they had laid claim to what was not theirs, a penalty was imposed on them. Further, we had them make out a sealed document concerning not making another claim (lit., for not returning and not claiming). Heed that sealed document.

Speak to the man; thus Ibni-Amurru. May Šamaš and Marduk keep you healthy forever. Be well, be healthy. May the god who protects you treat you well. I wrote you about your well-being; may your well-being be lasting before Šamaš and Marduk. Your son Qīš-Amurrim wrote me as follows: “The granary at the entrance to the gate of Iddin-Eštar was broken into and grain was taken. I pressed a slave woman, and the slave woman (said): ‘He took x grain twice ...’”

Speak to my lord; thus Adrakatum, your servant. Concerning the silver about which Iddin-Sîn sued me and my lord granted us a hearing; I arrived/succeeded, but the men who know the matter, who are in the service of Mut-bisir, are not in residence; they went with Sumu-ṭābi, and I have not yet gone into the matter. Now my lord wrote me about said silver, and I respected my lord’s message and weighed out six shekels of silver, assets of my children who live with me; the remainder is four shekels of silver. Let him come and go into (it) with Mut-Bisir’s children. Moreover, concerning my house: Iddin-Annu got the better of me, and I was evicted from my house, and he was allowed to move in. If it pleases my lord, may my lord not cause me grief (lit., give my heart to becoming ill); may my house be returned to me. Even though my father and mother did not hand over the field and orchard to me, it is only my lord that I can ask; may my lord give instruction that the field and orchard be released to me. The house I entered in adoption has been leased on a palace lease.” My lord’s tablet (instructing you) to give a house came to you, so why was he not satisfied, so that he complains? What from ancient times no kings among the kings had done, I verily did greatly for my lord Šamaš. The name of this wall is “By-the-command-of-Šamaš-may-Ḥammurapi-have-no-rivals.” In my good reign, which Šamaš summoned, I verily removed the workers of Sippar, the ancient city of Šamaš, from corvée duty for Šamaš. Verily I dug its canal; I verily set up (a) continual water (supply) for its districts. I verily heaped up prosperity and abundance. I verily brought about joy for the people of Sippar, so that they invoke blessings for my life. I verily did what is pleasing to my lord Šamaš and my lady Ayya. I verily placed in the people’s mouths the daily invoking of my good name like a god(’s), which will not be forgotten forever.

Speak to Sîn-iddinam; thus (says) Hammurapi. Ilšu-ibbi the merchant, the foreman of five, informed me thus, as follows: "I gave Sîn-magir the governor thirty kor of grain and have his tablet; for three years I have continually asked him for it but he will not give me the grain"; thus he informed me. Check his tablet, let the grain and its interest be collected from Sîn-magir, and give (it) to Ilšu-ibbi.

Speak to Sîn-iddinam, the merchant community of Sippar, and the judges of Sippar; thus (says) Samsu-ilūna. I have been told that the fishermen's boats keep going down to the great meadow and the Šamkānum meadow and catching fish. I have sent a courier; as soon as he has reached you, ... the fishermen's boats that are catching fish in the great meadow and the Šamkānum meadow. Moreover the fishermen's boats must no longer go down to the great meadow and the Šamkānum meadow.

Speak to Šamaš-ḥāzīr; thus (says) Hammurapi. Ilī-ippalsam the shepherd informed me thus, as follows: "Four years ago Eteḫ-pī-Marduk took from me a field of three būr, which is sealed to me in a document of my lord, and he has been taking its grain. I also informed Sîn-iddinam but it has not been returned to me." Thus he informed me. I have sent a message to Sîn-iddinam; if, as this Ilī-ippalsam has said, Etel-pī-Marduk four years ago took and has been using a field of three būr that is sealed to him by the palace, there is nothing more grievous than this. Investigate (pl) the circumstances of that matter well, and return the field to Ilī-ippalsam according to the document that was sealed to him by the palace. Further, establish by the divine standard the grain that Etel-pī-Marduk took from that field for four years, and give (it) to Ilī-ippalsam the shepherd. And send me a report of that case.

Warad-Sîn son of Sîn-gamil against Ili-awīlim son of Ili-ūrī, after his father Ili-ūrī and his mother Duššuptum had died, over a one-mūšar lot that Duššuptum had bought from his uncle Warad-Amurrim and a half-mūšar house that Duššuptum had bought from Warad-Sîn — Warad-Sîn brought suit against Ili-awīlim, and said as follows: “When your mother Duššuptum made the house, she went into my property ...; also, as for the half-mūšar house that she bought from me, my house is over-large; I will check it for you,” he said. Ili-awīlim assembled the men from the district who know them and the men from their district considered their words and, because the house was sold twenty years ago, as far as it could be checked for him, they spoke in accord with Warad-Sîn; for the excess of his house they made Ili-awīlim agree to one shekel of silver per seven and a half “shekels” of house in excess of the one mūšar and one shekel of silver per five and a half “shekels” of house that exceeded the half mūšar upon checking, and they gave two shekels of silver to Warad-Sîn. He is paid for the excess of his house. His heart is satisfied. In future Warad-Sîn will not bring suit against Ili-awīlim for the excess of the one and a half mūšar of property. Speak to Ruttum; thus Marduk-nāšir. May Šamaš and Marduk keep you well forever. The grain that has become available should be counted by the Šamaš seah and sealed in your presence. I have been writing to you ten times if once about sending Babātum and her servants; you have not answered me. You kept enlarging your loss. Moreover, you keep looking for another loss. Send Babātum, Lagabītum-balāssu and Abī-libluṭ that I may renew my efforts. When will my words please you? By never complying with me you keep enlarging the loss. Speak to my director; thus Nūr-Amurrim. May Šamaš and Marduk keep you well forever. Since Marduk-nāšir, whom I sent to you, was delayed, I have sent you Rabūt-Sīn. Five tablets of the state scribe have come. I wrote to them as follows about driving in a peg at the 24-iku field held by Mār-eršetim: “You have been in residence for one month to assign a subsistence plot of a rēdūm. Is the subsistence plot of the military scribe to be assigned, that you drive a peg in the field of the military scribe for a rēdūm?” They wrote to the land-registry officer Attā; he came with a rope and a rēdūm to Lammayya and I put him under the king’s oath, but I did not allow him to stretch out the rope or drive in the peg. They gave order to hand me over for security(?), as follows: “The king’s rope is thick.” The men were very concerned. If your documents do not come quickly then as soon as they come they will drive in a peg. I dispatched a tablet to Ilī-imguranni and he dispatched an answer to me, so I have dispatched (it) to you. The rēdūm whom they keep conducting here to seize the field is going with Šū-ilīšu; your tablet should come to Šū-ilīšu. On the 29th I sent you Marduk-nāšir; on the second of Ayyār I sent you Rabūt-Sīn.

Speak to Šibtu; thus your lord. I heard that Nanna is sick with a disease; also that she dwells at the palace a lot and brings many women into contact with her. Now then, give strict orders that no one may drink from the cup from which she drinks; no one may sit in the chair in which she sits; and no one may lie in the bed in which she lies, lest she bring many women into contact with her. That disease is contagious.

Nanna, you are king of heaven (and) earth; I trusted you, yet Elali son of Girni-isa has wronged me. Judge my case. He had no silver and approached me; I/he paid his debts with my silver. He had a wedding; he acquired a son and daughter. He did not satisfy me. He did not return all my silver to me; and he has wronged his creditor, me.

I trusted Nanna, but, in the orchards facing Ekišnugal, “I will not wrong you” he swore. In Kamaḥ beneath the weapon you love he swore. Within the courtyard facing Ekišnugal, facing Ningal of Egadi, before Nin-Šubur the emblem of the courtyard, before Alammuš, before Nanna-igidu and Nanna-adaḥ he swore to me. “I, will not wrong your sons and you” he swore; “May these gods be my witnesses” he said. Moreover, in the orchards facing Ekišnugal before Nanna, before Šamaš “I, Elali will not wrong Kuzzulum,” before Nanna, before Šamaš “May Elali have no heir” thus he swore.

He who has sworn (falsely) by Nanna and Šamaš becomes covered with leprosy, becomes poor, and acquires no heir. Elali swore by Nanna and Šamaš and has wronged me. May Nin-Šubur, king of property, stand forth that Nanna and Šamaš may judge my case. Let me see the greatness of Nanna and Šamaš.

I have now sent Nabi-Sîn to you; go down to the field with him and look over whatever field preparations they are making, and the sesame field they are working, and address the issue in your tablet when you send it. I would command you that grain be given as food for the boys and moist bran as fodder for the oxen. Send Taklāku-ana-Marduk here to Babylon with Nabi-Sîn.

Speak to Awil-Ištar; thus Ninsianna-mansum. May Šamaš and Marduk keep you well forever. Concerning my servant who is in the charge of Betā, Betā sued. Concerning the slave Aššumīya-libluṭ considerable dispute arose, and Betā will plead on the side of her children; so I have fortified myself and not favored her. I spoke with her about my opinion, (and) said to her as follows: “Our young brother was not married, so our father Saggīya acquired a wife for him. Now his children have laid claim against us. If this complaint is not pleasing to you and your children will not plead in your loss, you yourself must not plead, lest you make us stand before you. Your children and we should go to the judges; let them look into our affairs, and if it is fitting for his sons to take what Saggīya gave us, the judges will say so to us, and we will return the slave.” I pressed her about the matters and have made her consent not to plead. Do not worry at all; I am acting so that you need not worry.

Further, Marduk-mušallim has come here. I will inform him of this. But you must come here quickly so that, before Marduk-mušallim has written somewhere else, we can settle matters (lit., them). As you know, I have no livelihood; I would voluntarily wear myself out working the four-iku meadow next to you. As you know Ilī-šullimanni is not pleased with my working a field or going near the village of Gabiba, and he directed me to give the one-iku field to Ipqu-Šala. Persuade Ipqu-Šala not to work that field voluntarily. Measure his dug-up land, and I myself will pay him for his labors. Tell him that I will work (it). If it is his judgment, let him work the top of the lower meadow that you are working. You will not leave that four-iku field fallow; if you do not let me work it, I will become angry with you. If in truth you do love me, do not be negligent, lest I become annoyed with you. Hang onto that field for me lest I become upset. Send me a report.

Send Šulpae-nāšir to watch over the sesame, lest it disappear. The house is in order. Send me (news of) your health. Let my heart not be constantly broken.

I, Ḥammurapi, the mighty king, the king of Babylon, the king who makes the four quarters obedient, who achieves the victory of Marduk, the the shepherd who pleases him, when Anum and Enlil gave me the land of Sumer and Akkad to rule, handed their halter over to me, I verily dug the canal “Ḥammurapi-is-the-abundance-of-the-people,” which brings abundant water to the land of Sumer and Akkad. I verily turned both its banks into cultivated land. I verily stored up piles of grain constantly. I verily provided a continual (supply of) water for the land of Sumer and Akkad. I verily gathered the scattered people of the land of Sumer and Akkad, (and) provided pasture land and irrigation for them. I verily pastured them in abundance and plenty, (and) let them live in security.

At that time I, Ḥammurapi, the mighty king, the favorite of the great gods, with the powerful strength that Marduk gave me, verily made an august wall with great (mounds of) earth, the tops of which are as high as a mountain, at the mouth of the canal “Ḥammurapi-is-the-abundance-of-the-people.” I verily gave that wall the name “Wall-of-Sin-muballit-the-father-who-begot-me.” I verily proclaimed the name of Sin-Muballit, the father who begot me, throughout the regions.
